Providers interested in finding out more about the Illinois Quality Counts Quality Rating System (QRS) can participate in the free QRS orientation offered by their local child care resource and referral agency (CCR&R) or available online. Orientation includes eligibility requirements, application processes, and support and available resources. Prospective applicants must attend this hearing before applying. Training on the assessment scale is also required before application. Training on the Environmental Rating Scale is required before applications at any star level. Business Administration Scale (BAS) training is required if applying for a level 3 or 4 star. Both trainings are offered by CCR&R locally at a cost of $15 per 3 to 4 hour session. Before applying to ExceleRate Illinois, a licensed day care center is required to complete a free 2-hour ExceleRate Orientation in addition to other training depending on the Quality Circle they choose to prepare and achieve. Orientation includes Illinois ExceleRate cross-sector standards, eligibility requirements, application processes, and support and resources available. All licensed centers are recognized in the Licensed Quality Circle, the basic level of quality of the system. The Bronze Quality Circle focuses on training around quality practices. Silver and Gold Quality Circle focuses on improving quality and continuous quality assessment. No one likes to pay property taxes, but it's even worse to pay too much property tax. In Cook County, Illinois, the appraiser's office determines the assessed value of your property. This value is then used to determine how much you owe to the tax agency for which you are responsible. While the appraisal office does not control the tax rates imposed by districts, cities, cities or schools, assessing your property is key in determining the amount of tax owed. Accurate assessment is important, and property owners should be aware of how to appeal property valuations. Specify the type of property you own. Cook County classifies properties in five categories for property tax assessment: vacant land, housing, apartment buildings with more than six units, non-profit and industrial/commercial. To appeal to a property tax assessment, you must first determine which categories apply to your property. Each land category has a different form of attraction. Housing is the widest category. All single-family homes and multifamily homes with six or fewer units are in the housing category. Determine which type of attraction applies to your property valuation. People usually make property valuations because they are wrong of three reasons. The first is the appeal of uniformity, where your property is not valued the same as a comparable property in your area. The second is the appeal of overvaluation, where you feel that your property valuation reflects the increased valuation of your property. The third is the appeal of the property description error. In this type of attraction, part of the description used to calculate the value of the property is rated incorrectly. For example, square recordings differ from what is recorded in the appra appra appra appra appra appra's office. This difference, if significant, can affect the value of the property. Complete and submit the required form. The exact shape required will depend on the type of property. The Cook County Appraiser's Office offers several options for appeal. Its website (see Resources) has the forms it needs to download. Each assessor's office provides experienced personnel to assist you in appealing and obtaining the right form. An appeal form is also available by mail. To request a form by mail, call 312-443-7550 or write to the Cook County Assessor at 118 N. Clark St., Chicago, IL 60602. Property owners will receive a notice of revaluation of their property every three years. Any owner wishing to appeal must do so within 30 calendar days of their assessed assessment notice. The notice indicates the last acceptable date to appeal. Any documentation required must be submitted by the documentation deadline, which is approximately two weeks after the appeal deadline. Property owners can appeal their property tax assessment between the years in which they received the assessment. This is especially important if property or house prices for comparable properties have changed dramatically since the last valuation. Decide to accept the outcome of your appeal or take it to the Cook County Board of Review. Once your appeal has been submitted and any necessary documentation has been received, the appraiser's office will review your information and submit the results of your appeal. If you have questions about the outcome of the appeal, you can call 312-603-7530 and speak with a taxpayer advocate, who can explain the results and answer questions. If you are not satisfied with the outcome of your appeal, you can take your appeal to the next level through the Cook County Board of Review. The Review Board can be contacted by calling 312-603-5542.
