A Western spoof starring the unparalleled John Astin, late of the Adams family, it also features Mickey Rooney, Henry Gibson, and other comic talents of the time. Don't forget to catch the scene at 1:36 p.m., which would have made Mel Brooks blush. Meanwhile, the dialogue that begins at 8:24 a.m. may be The.Greatest.Ever.John.Astin actually made two Western comedies, the latter one of the most memorable films ever, with its Molly-be-to-hell, but I'll save it for later. All-Star headliners that's hilariously made for fake TV about the Western genre. John Astin (The Adams family) plays the evil Roy Slade, the west's most evil villain. The good guys don't stand a chance, with evil Roy turning the tables on the classic Western story of a good victory over evil. West veteran Pat Botham tells, and Mickey Rooney, Dick Shawn, Henry Gibson, Edie Adams, Pamela Austin, Milton Berle, Pat Morita, Ed Begley Jr., Dom DeLoez and Penny Marshall star. 02/18/1972 You must be logged in to continue.
