Published 2019 ProgramDescription SkillFlix™ for Parents (SkillFlix) is a skill-building online video library designed for parents of mildly cognitively impaired youth. By modeling effective conversations, SkillFlix videos teach parents conversational skills and sexual health information that allows them to have more productive conversations with their children. SkillFlix for parents is undergoing a formative evaluation to improve the program's design and implementation and add teen pregnancy prevention evidence-base. The formative evaluation will be followed by an evaluation of the effectiveness of the programme. Program Snapshot Population: Parents of cognitively impaired pupils (ages 10-26) Location(s): Kent, Ionia, and Montcalm Counties, MI Partners: Nine School Districts in Kent, Ionia and Montcalm Counties Goals Increase parents' knowledge of adolescent sexual health Teach parents conversational skills and increase their ability to have effective conversations about sexual health with their cognitively impaired teens Increasing the frequency of communication about sexual health between parents and their cognitively impaired teens Strategies SkillFlix-building videos for parents SkillFlix for parents is a skills-building online video library that teaches parents how to have conversations about sexual health with their cognitively impaired teens. SkillFlix videos feature actors depicting cognitively impaired youth and their parents having conversations about sexual health. Every sixty-second video models a Micro-skill™, a small action parents can take to improve the quality of their calls. Videos are organized by skillset; Each skill contains three to five videos that teach separate Micro skills. For example, the skill using a conversational tone includes videos on Micro-skills using relaxed and open body language and staying positive or neutral when surprised. Videos also contain information on sexual health topics, including abstinence, pregnancy, and sexually transmitted infections (STIs). By watching the videos and practicing, parents learn skills that enable them to have effective conversations with their children and respond to unpredictable situations. SkillFlix for Parents is an extension of SkillFlix's educational technology, which was originally developed for health educators through dfusion with National Institutes of Health funding. Parallel school-based lessons for young people All participants in the SkillFlix for Parents intervention have children who receive the Making a Difference curriculum at school. This show-based program is funded by the HHS Administration for Children and Families' Family and Youth Services Agency and is implemented by the Kent Intermediate School District and has been adapted for students with mild cognitive impairment and provides them with knowledge and skills to reduce the risk of pregnancy. The SkillFlix for parents videos adapt to the making a difference curriculum and allow parents to have conversations with their children about what they learn in school when they learn it. Teachers at these schools have been trained by facilitators and provide students and their families with an extra layer of support. About TPP Program The Office of Population Affairs Teen Pregnancy Prevention (TPP) Program is a federal grant program that funds various organizations working to prevent teenage pregnancies across the United States. OAH invests in both the implementation of impact-based programmes and the development and evaluation of new and innovative methods to prevent teenage pregnancies. The OAH TPP program reaches young people's ages 10-19, focusing on populations with the greatest need to reduce differences in teenage pregnancies and birth rates. And while higher-quality schools are usually accompanied by higher property taxes, homeowners in such districts are eventually paid back through a higher home sale price. Getting paid back sounds great, but how much are we talking about? New research research Realtor.com shows that for admission to a desirable school district, 9% of buyers say they would pay 11% to 20% over budget. Separately, 17% report that they would pay extra to be close enough that their children could go to and from school. Realtor.com that 62% of buyers would miss a home spa if it meant getting into the right school district. 50% would allow easy access to shopping, while 44% would give up space in the form of a bonus room. If the house you plan to sell is located in a highly sought after school district, do everything in your power to highlight this fact in all your real estate marketing materials. Many potential buyers are parents of children currently in the school system, so be sure to get the word out among neighbors and local friends. If you buy a home, use a search tool that allows you to filter by school district, because district boundaries don't always match city, village, and city lines. After all, you can't assume that your kids will be assigned to attend the same school as the kids down the block or even next door. Individuals can use ForRent.com, Zillow, or Hotpad's websites to look for apartments in a particular school district and to see the boundaries of the district. Users can see the attendance zone of a particular school to find out if their children would be eligible to attend a particular school while staying at the apartment's address, Hotpads notes. Users can visit hotpad's website and select any filters for the number of bedrooms and price range for the apartment. They can then type location information in the search box and then run the search to see a map of apartments in the area. Clicking on a result brings up a listing that shows that includes a list of elementary, middle, and high schools that residents can attend, showing hotpads.Zillow website allows users to select filters for the desired type of apartment and then type a school district name in the search box. This brings up a map with a border, with apartments within the border being part of the school district. If you click on a property performance on the map, you'll see a detailed list of school information. ForRent.com allows users to type a specific school district or school name into their search box and then see apartments nearby. After putting filters for the price, bedrooms, amenities, bathrooms, animal policy or features, users can type the search term to see apartments that qualify. Jonathan Kirn/Stone/Getty Images The best way to find out a school district is to consult an online search engine that uses geographic identifiers to determine the school district. National of the U.S. Department of Education's National for education statistics provides such a tool, and and The schools provide a similar one. Once the right school district has been decided, it is sometimes still necessary to figure out which school you are assigned. This can be done by calling the local school district. Many major school districts, including the districts of Los Angeles and New York, provide online search tools that use the requester's home address to determine the assigned school. School.
