A reunion, of any kind - in the news, a talk show, in a movie - I'm in floods. An ad ad a nice old man? Gone. I've even been known to wipe my eyes during a Maury Show makeover. But the biggest offenders, TV moments that really make me cry, are the ones that come from my favorite TV series, whose characters I'm told; characters that often - spoiler alert - die. Shows that I shouldn't be allowed to watch but can't resist, like The West Wing (RIP) - a series that brought me to tears almost every episode. I've always been like that. I'm a crier. A soft one. Sensitive. Call it what you want, I've been in touch with my feelings from a young age. My mother forbade me to see Animal Hospital when I was 10. And when I was 15? She came home to find me so hysterical she thought someone was dead. They had in the emergency room. There have been many TV scenes that have reduced me to tears - episodes that have left me so distraught I couldn't possibly imagine laughing again. Ahead, the episodes catch in my throat and still make me cry my eyes out 16 years later. Warning: There are plenty of spoilers ahead. If you still haven't gotten around to watching The Wire, now may be the time to do it. Skip navigation! We noticed that you are in Germany, would you like to see your local site?
