The killing (danish tv series) cast

Get all the best moments of pop culture & entertainment released to your inbox. No matter how things shake out with Robert Mueller and the FBI's investigation of the Trump campaign and Russian collusion, there has to be a movie about all this one day. If it's not a movie, maybe a television series. But seriously, someone called Scorsese Martin or Oliver Stone. With the knowledge that such a movie is almost inevitable, we turn the attention towards one of the true most complicated stories of all time. Who would play Donald Trump? What about Sean Spicer, Melania Trump, and Kellyanne Conway? Let's take a look at who might be vying for these starring roles, with the only caveat that we don't include actors who have already displayed the character No. 1. Ivanka Trump Left: Ivanka Trump | Chip Somodevilla / Getty Images, Right: Amanda Seyfried | Mark Milan/Getty Images Ivanka Trump is president Trump's daughter and one of his key advisers. Besides selling clothes around the world, Ivanka has tried her hand at foreign relations since her father took office. Amanda Seyfried has the look to play Ivanka, and her well-remembered role at Mean Girls is a tooth in her favor as well. Most recently, Seyfried is known for Less Miserable and Recurring Roles on Twin Peaks. Next up: Who would have played Jared Kushner? 2. Jared Kushner Left: Jared Kushner | Olivier Douliery - Pool / Getty Images, Right: Michael Cassidy | Dia Dispaupil/Getty Images Paired Up With Seyfried to play Ivanka's husband, Jared Kushner, should be Michael Cassidy. He's not a household name as yet, although TBS comedy fans of Earth will know him as Jonathan Walsh. However, Cassidy's most renowned role belongs to like Dylan West in 2006's Tim All Heroes - Comedy, Lever. While Cassidy is a good actor, she fits right alongside Seyfried in the big-but-not-too-large category of movie stars. Not to mention, it kind of looks like Kushner. Next: Our choice for Sarah Huckabee Sanders 3. Sarah Huckabee Sanders Kite: Sarah Huckabee Sanders | Chip Somodevilla / Getty Images, Right: Rosie O'Donnell | Alberto E. Rodriguez/Getty Images to show if anything, this would be fun just because it would really stick to Trump's designs. Trumpe's long-time distribution of footage, Rosie O'Donnell, as White House Press Secretary Sarah Huckabee just seems too perfect. The only question here is the age difference, with O'Donnell coming in at more than 20-year-old Sanders. We can stop a little disbelief, right? If O'Donnell really isn't a fit, however, maybe Amy Schumer and some freshly dead hair. Next: Here's a good option to play Paul Manafort. 4. Paul Manafort Left: Paul Manafort | Mark Wilson / Getty Images, Right: Chaz Palminteri | Cindy Ord /Getty Images for SirisXM is known for its raspy voice and roles in '90s hits, such as the usual suspects and a Bronx tax, Chaz is the perfect pick to play former lobbyist and campaign manager Trump manager Paul Manafort. Both are around the same age and have both have a complex time and dark hair, so Palminteri hits the Manafort look out of the park. He was also an actor fulfilled, of course, so there's that. Manafort would be a smaller part of the film, and Palminteri wouldn't overshadow any of their larger roles. Next: This star may be the perfect choice to portrait Michael Flynn. 5. Michael Rob Left: Michael Flynn | Mandel Ngan / AFP / Getty Images, Right: Anthony Michael Hall | Plan B Entertainment Casting Anthony Michael Hall as General Michael Flynn is unlikely because former star ellising Canden's ex has essentially already played him. Hall's role as Greg Pulver in 2017's War Machine was based on Flynn and required the actors to pack about 20 pounds and truly dive into the psyche. Key witness Robert Mueller's side will play a semi-regular part in the film, at least at the beginning. Hall would likely be aging a little bit, and it doesn't really look like Flynn at all. But if you have seen War Machine, you know he can pull it off. Next: The actors who could pull off Anthony Scaramuci 6. Anthony Scaramucci Left: Anthony Scaramucci | Mike Coppola / Getty Images, Right: Jon Hamm | Matt Winkelmeyer/Getty Images in the big, Trump-Russia movie, Anthony Scaramucci would be nothing more than a camera role. The former White House Communications Director has been doing his role in the Trump administration for just a few weeks, and then he essentially swept off the sunset. So why not bring in Mad People star Jon Hamm to take home the house? Sure, Hamm might be a little distracted from the main draw, but there's probably not another actor in Hollywood who's in more summed up for the job. Unless we're counting the guy in '80s from Futurama, and we're not because it's just a cartoon lower. Next: Will this actor finally get his wish to play Stephen Miller? 7. Stephen Miller Left: Stephen Miller | Chip Somodevilla / Getty Images, Right: Zach Braff | Astrid Stawiarz/Getty Images for SCAD atVfest 2018 White House press secretary and assists Stephen Miller and the fan-favorite of KKK leader, David Duke, once argued that the poem on the huddled march of years wanting to breathe free on the Status of Freedom is not actually part of the statue. This, from a third generation Jewish-American. At any rate, actor Zack Braff of Scrubs' firm was unsuccessful to play Miller on Saturday Night Live, and the fit is solid. Since Braff hasn't technically technically played Miller in a parody as of yet, that's what we're going with. Next up: This guy could play Steve Bannon. 8. Steve Bannon left: Steve Bannon | Mike Theiler / AFP / Getty Images, Right: Michael Harney | Wargo/Getty Images it's not difficult to find someone to play former White House strategy chief Steve Bannon. Not only Trump fires Bannon, but he also stated that nationalist lost his mind. Actor Michael Harney looks like he's probably a great guy, but he certainly pulled off the hair, jerking off, alcohol and some real loose screws. For evidence, look no further than his role in the Jenji Kohan series Turf and Orange in the New Black. If Harney were down a 24-pack of beer and stayed up for 48 hours straight, it would be a dead-ring person for Bannon. Next: A word ring for Bernie Sanders 9. Bernie Sanders Left: Bernie Sanders | There's McNamee/Getty Images, Right: Larry David impersonating Bernie Sanders on Saturday Night Live | This NBC drama – Russia would need more than just the Jon Hamm reach, and in fact could use a little comedy infused in it. Senator and former Democratic presidential candidate, Bernie Sanders, would certainly have to make a quick settlement, and there's a universal agreement that the only actor who has adapted to play the autotjenarian is Curb The Enthusiam Larry David. Our policies especially state no payroll actors, but we want to let it slide here. The two even recently found out they're away from family! Next: Who would play important role in Melania Trump? 10. Melania Trump Left: Melania Trump | Jim Watson / AFP / Getty Images, Right: Claire Forlani | Dan Kitwood/Getty Images Melania is an important person to cast in the Trump-Russia movie. The actress has the look and helicopter to act in pulling it off, but also by covering the biggest stars in the movie. For this reason, we will be with NCIS: Los Angeles' Claire Forlani. He was also known in his roles opposite Brad Pitt in Meet Joe Black and Kevin Smith's culture-classic Mallrats. Forlani is just over a year older than Melania and certainly looks enough like it makes it work. Next up: Who could be a good match for the role of Sean Spicer? 11. Sean Spicer Left: Sean Spicer | Tibrina Hobson / AFP / Getty Images, Right: John C. McGinley | Frederick M. Brown/Getty Images Another Europe alum makes the list is John C. McGinley, role player in Sarah Huckabee Sanders predecessor Maher Sean Spicer. Known for his brief stay in the role and the time he hid behind a tiny press rub in his remake, Spicer is another small fit role for a character quality character-actor like McGinley. If you are familiar with his role in Dr. Cox on Scrubs, you can remember McGinley as one of the Bobs in Office Space. Next: Our choice for Jeff Sessions 12. Jeff Sessions remaining: Jeff Sessions | Chip Somodevilla / Getty Images, Right: Dana Carvey as Ross Perot on Saturday Night Live | NBC can we cast the Elf Keebler in a movie? It's unfortunate that actor Henry Gibson passed away in 2009, because he was both accomplished enough and looked enough as Jeff Sessions does the job. Comedian and actor Dana Carvey doesn't look much like Sessions on his own, but check back on his early-90's of Ross Perot on SNL. We're thinking Carvey could nail him in the role of Attorney General Trump and most importantly confederatize. Next: Here's who could play Paul Ryan. 13. Paul Ryan Left: Paul Ryan | Adam Glanzman / Getty Images, Right: James Lafferty | Jason Kempin/Getty Images It Would Be Hard to Make a Movie about Donald Trump without at least one appearance by Republican Speaker of the Chamber, Paul Ryan. That goes double to whether the Russia investigation eventually takes us down the path to an impeachment vote. Ryan has, at times, been both trump's biggest control and most adversary most adversaries, depending on who favors his political agenda most on a given day. As for this role, A Tree Hill's Jason Lafferty devices nicely. Next up: Who will portrait Mike Pence? 14. Mike Pence Left: Mike Pence | Hal Yeager/Getty Images, Right: Leslie Jordan | Rodin Eckenroth/Getty Images for Tailwagers Foundation, 2017 Waggy Award Vice President Mike Pence should have one of the greatest roles in the film, which is why an accomplished character-due character-actor would need to be cast. It's unfortunate that Hank Hill's father, Cotton Hill, from King of the Hill, is just a cartoon lower, because he and Pence are otherwise separated at birth. Jordan Leslie may not have a name in the house, but he may pull the look at Pence while his diminutive height would give the proper allusion against a higher Trump actor. Add in the fact that Jordan is openly gay, while Pence is often criticised for his anti-gay positions, and it's hard to find a better pick for the vice president. Next up: Eric Trump. 15. Eric Trump Left: Eric Trump | Astrid Stawiarz / Getty Images, Right: Jon Heder | Alberto E. Rodriguez / Getty Images President Trump's son Eric, would probably be often seen, but they don't often hear throughout the film, so for this role we need an actor who pulled the vision in a really great way. Look no further than Napoleon Dynamite lead actor Jon Heder. When you see Heder here without the bird, Curly Afro, with his thick glasses, and you can understand why he's such an excellent pick for Eric Trump. Heder is actually around eight years older, but his youth seem to cover it easily. Next: This actor would make a fort Donald Trump Jr. 16. Donald Trump Jr Left: Donald Trump Jr. | David Becker /Getty Images, Right: Will Arnett in Arrested Development | Netflix's oldest Trump son, Donald Trump Jr., must have been played by none other than Will Arnett. This would be an excellent indoor joke for fans of Arrested Development, the Fox/ Netflix series on a real estate firm's and his family that actually unimpeded based on their Trumps. Arnett appeared in the series as Trump's oldest son, Gob Bluth, and brings that over into a film about the Trump-Russia investigation would be a no-brainer. Next up: This actress would be a great pick for Conway. 17. Kellyanne Conway Left: Kellyanne Conway | Mark Wilson / Getty Images, Right: Anna Gunn | Kris Connor/Getty Images for Emily Conway's List would easily be one of the most inclusive characters in the film, and Anna Gunn's smash bad has a ton of experience playing a character that the audience found easily hated. Gunman Skyler White was together for the ride with her husband Walter, eventually becoming involved in his criminal scheme. Gunfire is not exactly doppelgänger, but she is an excellent actress and could easily pull off the role as one of Trump's key advisers. Next up: The actress who would make ideal Hillary Clinton 18. Hillary Clinton Left: Hillary Clinton | Jisin Sullivan / Getty Images, Right: Glenn Close (as Clinton) | Theo Wargo/Getty Images for Tony Awards Production How could there be a Trump film without an appearance or two by Hillary Clinton? For better or worse, these two American politicians forever connect to their cancellation of history. The first part of the biggest presidential candidate could be played by Glenn Close, a criminal actress with a lot of movie credits to her name, who spoofed Clinton in the 2016 Tony Awards including Fatal Attractions, The Natural, and Sarah, Plain and Tall. She even experienced playing the first lady in the U.S., in Mass attack! Next: One option for Robert Mueller 19. Robert Mueller Left: Robert Mueller | Alex Wong / Getty Images, Right: Michael Douglas | Alberto E. Rodriguez/Getty Images for MPTF for the FBI investigator, Michael Douglas fits like a glove. There are probably actors who look more like Mueller who might be cast, but outside of the president this would be the biggest and most important role in the film. With Mueller you have to think big, and Douglas certainly fills the bill. Its credits include Wall Street, Fatal Attractions, and Basic Instinct. Another Hollywood legend who could possibly take on this role would be Robert Redford. Next: This actor would nail a portrait of Donald Trump. 20. Donald Trump Left: Donald Trump | Olivier Douliery-Pool/Getty Images, Right: Bryan Cranston | Pascal Le Segretain/Getty Images for Donald Trump, there would likely be a massive list of actors pouring for the role. He would who is in Hollywood. It might even include President Trump, himself, because who better to play the role of Donald Trump than Donald Trump? It's impossible to narrow this down to just one, although Alec Baldwin is immediately interrupted due to our parody rules. Blue Collar Comedy Tour comedian Ron White may look at them playing Trump, while back to Tom Wilson of the future (Biff Tannen) has the experience of playing a character based on Trump. Jon Voight, Robert DeNiro, and Bryan Cranston all a fit here, too. Check the cheat sheet on Facebook! Facebook!
