· Discussion Starter • #1 • April 2, 2012 (Edit) What type of transfer fluid for Passat 1.8 auto and filling in 2003? We bought a car and exchanged engines and transmissions. You are trying to figure out the type of fluid that the transfer uses. We called the dealer 23$ per every litter they told us and a special Volkswagen fluid. I want to know if anyone used something else in the auto parts store. I searched here and can not get an answer. Thanks for the help. Also, how do you fill the transfer fluid? · Pentocin. Not something cheap, aunt. For search, see Information Base. · I use Balborin Max Lifedex/Mercenary, others like to use their favorites including OEM fluids. And don't forget the filter/fan gasket kit. You have to find a way to fill it because it is done below where the engine is running. A 14mm and 17mm hexagonal driver, some Torx drivers, a jack stand, and an array to get fluid into the fill hole are required. Use 1/2 of the I.D. hose in the funnel of the ladder, others use hand pumps, etc. If you search, you will find some complete descriptions. · Discussion Starter • #4 • Thank you for the April 2, 2012 response. I saw a database of fluids, transfer fluids, how to fill. I saw for manual transmission and saw one for the v6 model. Not sure if it's the same or not. Due to the way transmission is generated, only about two-thirds of the fluid can be discharged at a time. Therefore, you are always mixing old and new liquids. BTW, a classic tutorial on how to do this is here. 1-60 © 105 product copyrights in 2003-2021 CARiD.com. All rights reserved.
