Call us crazy (or just obsessed with English and logic), but we think sentence completions are just fun. What's more, they're a great way to expand your vocabulary and improve your logic skills. This is because the completion of sentences, like many of the standardized test style issues on this page (analogies, antonyms, reading comprehension, etc.), are very similar to puzzles. You have a picture of what the final product should look like, but you still need to arrange the pieces until you realize the image. Move down to see our full list of worksheets to complete sentences suitable for all ages and skill levels. In the completion sheets of the printable sentence below, students must select the best words from the list of 5 answer options to fill in the blanks in the sentences. Some sentences contain one empty, while others contain two. These worksheets are very effective in improving vocabulary, syntax and understanding of conjunctions as syntactic road signs. For example, look at the questions in the following diagram. See how the clutch dictates the answer in each question. Note that when there is a clutch and the correct answer is love. This is because the connotation of the first clause continues. However, when the clutch is, but the correct answer is hate. This is because the connotations of the first clause do not continue with the second clause; it gets reversed because of the role played by the connection, however.
