This sweet couple has an amazing story and I am honored to have shared it with you today. Sarah and Jon met five years ago in Italy. She was studying abroad and Jon was backpacking. Interestingly, they ended up in the same hostel. Sarah was placed in the wrong room – but it turned out to be the best room because that's where she met Jon. They got along instantly and traveled together for the next six months while both were in Europe. They kept in touch after they both traveled home (Sarah to America, Jon to Australia) and set up another two-month trip to explore Australia and America together. Shortly after that, Sarah decided to move to Australia for the following year. In December 2016 they decided to get married! Isn't that an amazing story? To top it off, Jon is half Australian, half Australian and Sarah is British – so talk about a beautifully diverse couple with some amazing accents to complete! Together, these two laugh constantly. They are of curiosities. Travelling is their passion (obviously...) – but they even love road trips and always stop at the no attractions along the way. They had a wedding at the Royal Crest Room in St. Cloud, Florida. While the weather seemed ominous, the clouds behaved for us throughout the day! Sarah was surrounded by her sisters and two close friends (one of whom offended the wedding) who wore fruit dresses and a gray suit. Jon's childhood friends and brother were his godparents – they were absolutely hilarious and made me crack throughout the day! The reception space had details of the trip scattered everywhere. The seating table was a map of the world. Each table represented a city that was important to Sarah & Jon's relationship. The guest book was a travel book where guests could leave advice for future travel. Toasts were given – each full of laughter and some teasing tears. All the guests tore up the dance floor overnight. At the end of the night, Sarah and Jon escaped through a bubble tunnel! Now they are living permanently in Australia – talk about an adventure! Jon and Sarah - you two are so, so sweet! Thanks for making me laugh all day long! You had the best energy and I can say that you two are so excited to get married! I wish you the best in this next step of your journey. Thank you for your generosity and gentle gestures throughout the planning process – I have your crown at the door of our new apartment and think of you daily! Hugs! This wedding at the Royal Crest Room was my first time filming at this location but I knew it would be spectacular. A few days before the wedding, I took a tour of the property to get some ideas of what we could do for photos and I was amazed at all the different photo opportunities all over the golf course. The location of the ceremony was beautiful, and I could predict ourselves by making some fantastic sunset shots near the red phone booth and the beautiful stone bridge. I couldn't wait to see Michelle and Ben and capture all the memories of their wedding day. However, once the wedding day arrived our plans quickly changed. They were asking for rain, which is not uncommon for an afternoon here in Florida, but we were still holding hope for the best. Unfortunately, the rains came anyway and we had to scrape many of these fun photographic ideas. But as I always say, the show should go on, and we had to be creative and use what we had. We managed to take great pictures all over the bar area and then we went out under a ledge so we could take some pictures outdoors. In short, we did our best and had a spectacular time. Steve with Event Concepts was the DJ and kept the party all night! He is an amazing DJ and made the reception very fun for everyone! I especially loved the battle of lip sync of the sexes! This definitely created some amazing photos! It was an honor to photograph Michelle and Ben's wedding. Time didn't seem to phase them at all. It was their wedding day and they were going to enjoy it, no matter what. They're a beautiful couple and I admire their love for each other. We've taken so many great photos, but below is just a peek at some of my favorites so far. - Matthew I love reflections and bisbiscos! They are one of my favorite things to look for, and the Royal Crest Room has a huge mirror in the bridal suite that's perfect for that! I showed up the lights and lit it with the Ice Light which is of my favorite secret weapons on their wedding day! When I go into a bridal suite, I always look for the best light. O O it was beautiful, but the lights were on the ceiling and would have produced dark shadows under his eyes. I saw that the room had a small door to the outside so I appeared all the lights so I could make the background disappear into the darkness. I prefer to use soft, natural light from a window or door instead of using flash that would have just flooded the room. I always love it when bridesmaids help and have fun. Michelle looked beautiful on her wedding day. She made my job look easy! I like simple backgrounds so the focus goes straight to the subject. In the men's locker room I saw that there was a window next to the lockers, so this was the perfect place to pose the groom. Outside, we did some fun poses with the guys. I liked this photo because the eye is once again drawn straight to the subject. The weather was cooperating and I thought the rain was going to hold, as the groom was finally able to catch a glimpse of his bride. The Royal Crest Room is definitely one of the most beautiful places to have a wedding ceremony. I would have loved to have seen my wife walking under this arch down the hall to find me! Unfortunately, the rain fell on us, but just because it started raining doesn't mean I stopped filming the wedding. These are still fantastic moments that the bride and groom will look back on and cherish... and I hope to laugh at one day! We all got totally soaked, but the ceremony was still beautiful! After the ceremony, he was still pouring so we couldn't go out and take pictures all over the golf course. Instead, we're still in disguise, and we still managed to make great double photos. If you didn't know by now I love looking for reflections. As the rain ruined our plans to leave, we still managed to create some beautiful moments inside the bar. Even though it rained during the night, it didn't stop the party from continuing. Everyone had so much fun and Disney's lip sync battle of the sexes was pretty epic when the bride won her hands down! down!
