I'm not robot

reCAPTCHA

Continue

I'm not robot

reCAPTCHA

St louis christian college accredited

Christian College of St. LouisTypHis of the Biblical CollegeIt was placed in 1956 The religious affiliation of christian churches and churches of ChristPresident E. StineAcademic staff50 (including staff)Undergraduates153LocationFlorissant, Missouri, USA38°46'32N 90°17'41W / 38.775574°N 90.294721°W / 38.775574; -90.294721Coordinates: 38°46'32N 90°17'41W / 38.775574°N 90.294721°W / 38.775574; -90.294721Campus11.5 acres (4.65 hectares)Websitestlchristian.edu St. Louis Christian College is a private biblical college in Florissant, Missouri. It is theological and ecclesiastically associated with the Restorative Movement of Christian Churches and Churches of Christ. Accredited by the Association of Biblical Higher Education. [1] Reference to Institutional Accreditation. National Center for Educational Statistics. Retrieved January 31, 2011. External Links Official site This article about a university or college in Missouri is a stub. You can help Wikipedia by expanding it.vte Obtained from St. Louis Christian College accredited by the Accreditation Commission (COA) of the Biblical Higher Education Association (ABHE) to provide certificates and degrees at the associated and grocery level. Contact information for ABHE:5850 T.G. Lee Blvd. Suite 130, Orlando, FL 32822407-207-0808www.abhe.org Note: These topics were chosen to provide important information to potential and current SLCC students online. Additional information about these and other issues related to the Online Program is available from the SLCC Online Program Coordinator. Online design slcc online courses are offered in an eight-week enrollment period. Students enroll in one or two courses at a time and can initiate their online coursework at the beginning of any of the six enrollment periods per year. The minimum age gap required for students seeking an online degree allows them to take full advantage of an adult and vocational learning environment. St. Louis Christian College has been offering accredited degree programs to adult students for more than 20 years. Enrollment periods consist of semesters and modules. The year is divided into two semesters, with one beginning in January and another beginning in July. Each semester contains three 8-week modules. Students can start their online coursework at the beginning of any of the six modules (also called enrollment periods), but must accept the basics for academic excellence as a first year. Students can take up to 18.5 credit hours of regular work per semester to maximize their progress before completing a degree. Online students receive counseling from the online program coordinator to each semester to discuss learning progress and planning. For practical purposes, the terms enrollment and registration are synonymous. Initial registration is a simple process: First, fill out and submit an online application form on the college's website. You will be contacted by a member of the college enrollment team who will guide you through other steps. If you want to apply for federal financial assistance, follow the instructions on the college's website. Students choose between degree programs based on previous college work, if any, and general educational goals; it is important to discuss these issues with a member of the registration group. Entry requirements Online degree programs are intended for those 21 years and older. Applicants under the age of 21 can be admitted under certain conditions. Entrants must provide a high school diploma or its equivalent, personal links and ACT assessment for those who have graduated from secondary school within the past three years. Those who attended another college must submit a transcript of previous courses and a good standing affidavit (the form is available at the SLCC Academic Office). Full details of these requirements are published in the college catalog, available on the college's website. By law, international students are unable to enroll in online degree programs at U.S. Visitor Students The guest student open enrollment option is available to individuals, including students from other institutions wishing to take up to three online courses without working up to a degree at SLCC. Guest students do not qualify for federal financial aid. Technological requirements Online students must have adequate computer equipment and sufficient skills to be able to receive training through this medium. To participate in online classes you will need a computer and broadband connection. To help you communicate with the teacher and other students, access course materials, and send tasks on time, you'll need an email app or app like Outlook or Gmail. A desktop or laptop computer with enough processing power to play various media and audio files such as mp3, mp4, etc. internet browser such as Chrome or Firefox. A reliable Internet connection that is always on. For more information, students should contact the SLCC online program coordinator. Online platform and technical support The main online platform used by the college for its online programs is called Atheneo. Atheneo is available through slcc membership in the Educational Knowledge Elements Network, which also offers 24/7 technical support. The commitment time lasts according to the recommended sequence of courses, the student can fulfill the requirements for an AARS (Associate) degree within 21 months. bscm (bachelor's degree), who have completed all the necessary prerequisites (An associate degree or its equivalent, with enough hours in general research) can complete the program in 21 months. The required courses may be smaller for students who transfer college loans to the SLCC. Students who choose not to max. follow the recommended course schedule (two courses for the enrollment period) will take longer to complete their program. Courses offered in online programs are generally available to students at all enrollment periods, allowing maximum progress before completing a degree. Rigor Online academic courses are offered only on credit, and can be compared in academic rigor to courses on the site. Online courses are demanding and therefore not for everyone. Students should have basic internet navigation skills, use word processing software, and maintain self-discipline habits that allow regular reading, research and writing. Accreditation and approval of St. Louis Christian College has been authorized to provide degrees to the state of Missouri since 1956. The SLCC is accredited by the Biblical Higher Education Association, an agency approved by the U.S. Department of Education. National College Accreditation allows qualified students to receive federal financial assistance to assist in paying their college costs. The online program was developed in accordance with best practices of online distance education, established by the Western Educational Technology Cooperative (WCET) and approved by the ABHE Accreditation Commission. Online faculty courses are taught by professors who meet the established requirements for teaching in slcc. They are members of Christian Churches/Churches of Christ, have appropriate credentials for teaching (minimum master's degree in their field of teaching), completed a rigorous qualification process and are certified nationally to teach online courses. &; Tutorials Learning Resources Required tutorials are regularly available through a virtual college bookstore, accessed through the SLCC website or through the Atheneo platform at check-in. The necessary materials of the course can be embedded in the curriculum of the course and in this case are automatically provided to the student after enrollment. For these courses listed in EM (embedded materials)- there is an additional registration fee of $50, but students do not have to buy any additional course materials. Online students receive a SLCC student ID and have research and borrowing privileges at McCaslin College Library. All SLCC students can access the library's online catalog of more than 30,000 printed materials. Additional resources include full-text online journal articles and selected e-books. Staff at the library's research team can help online students with research questions during regular opening hours. If it is determined that the student access to printed materials, the Library will check them in the student's name and at free mail to the student. Opt-out/withdrawal The refund schedule and implications for students coming out of the classroom are as follows: Withdraw before the first day of class: 100% refund; the course does not appear on the transcript. Remove up to seven days from the beginning of the lesson: return 75%; class W entered into the transcript. Withdraw after the first seven calendar days of the lesson: no refund is made; class F entered into the transcript. To request an exit request, contact slcc registrar (cbingamon@stlchristian.edu) or call 314-837-6777, add. The date of submission of the request will be honored as the date of the recall. Online spending courses and financial policies are offered at the slcc's standard current training rate. Students should consult the current pricing schedule published on the college's website, or contact admissions counselors or slcc business office for current information. Financial assistance for financial assistance is available for qualified students enrolled in an online degree program at slcc. Students are approved for federal grant and credit programs, subject to standard qualifications. Students should consult the information available on the college's website or contact admission counselors or the Director of Financial Aid (finaid@stlchristian.edu or 314-837-6777 x1101) for current information. Compass Compass is a component of training the service of all slcc degree programs, which emphasizes the formation of the nature and involvement of the ministry. Students report their weekly church visits, participation in services and supervision to the SLCC Compass Coordinator in accordance with the procedures explained in the Compass curriculum. Students are enrolled in a 1/2-hour compass credit each module in which they are enrolled for at least 6 hours. These professional field education loans apply to all slcc degree programs. Learning Progress In order to have permission to participate in the following modules, students must maintain a minimum cumulative average graduation level score (CGPA) of 2.0. Students attending online can submit assigned work at any time of the day or night, as well as in accordance with the terms subject to the professor's position. Classroom work must be completed in a timely manner to meet attendance standards. Additional and previous coursework Additional online or traditional coursework can be applied to online applications. Students can apply loans previously earned, either at SLCC or elsewhere, to an online degree, subject to a) standard loan transfer terms, and b) a requirement that at least 15 hours are taken at slcc for AARS, and at least 30 hours are accepted at slcc for BSCM. Students can also apply for a loan earned at the current full-time or evening course, if it relates to their online degree course Transfer of online loans to other colleges Decisions on the transfer of academic loans, and recognition of earned degrees, always rest with the host institution. Students wishing to transfer loans earned in an online program must receive extended approval in writing from the college or university to which they plan to transfer. Transcript for Academic Record Permanent recording of final grades is conducted by St. Louis Christian College on student transcripts. Students can view their course scores, both on the Atheneo course delivery platform and soldiersNet, the SLCC student information system. Under the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (FERPA), transcripts cannot be made public without the student's written consent. Students must submit a request form for a transcript available from the SLCC Academic Office (jevans@stlchristian.edu, or 314-837-6777, ext. 1520). Transcript processing is a free service for students, but cannot be released unless all financial obligations to the college have been met. Students can view an unofficial copy of their academic transcript at SoldiersNet. This thesis is useful only to students and their academic consultants SLCC; This is not an official transcript. The final assessments of the Course conclude when the student completes all the requirements in the training course, and the final class was placed by an instructor. Please allow one week on the appointment submission for the instructor to accommodate the destination class. Class replacement Any course may be repeated if specified in the SLCC directory. Courses in which the final class F must be repeated, and passed, in order to apply for a diploma program. Integrity, Academic Honesty As an academic community that has been the oxtaed of Christ, everything we say and do at St. Louis Christian College reflects our identity in Christ as well as our scientific mission. The servants of Christ must live the standards of Christ. Integrity in all walks of life is expected on the part of students, teachers and staff. Academic dishonesty is a serious violation of academic integrity and Christian standards of conduct, and so it can lead to significant punishments. Students are urged to review the Academic Dishonesty statement published in the Academic Information section of the college catalogue available on the SLCC website. The college uses several means to verify the identity of online students. Authentication methods include a photo ID issued by the government; secure logins and access codes; contacts by email or phone to confirm participation in current courses. A resolution on student complaints by the U.S. Department of Education amended the Higher Education Act (HEA), authorizing the Program Integrity Rule. This amendment provides, among other things, regulations related to federal financial aid program requiring colleges and universities authorized to offer after-drug education in one or more states to provide access to a complaints process that allows student consumers to address the following: Alleged violations of state consumer protection laws that include but are not limited to fraud and false advertising. Alleged violations of state laws or regulations relating to the license of post-economic institutions; complaints related to the quality of education or other requirements of the state or accreditation. SoldiersNet Student Information System In addition to using Atheneo's course delivery system, students on online courses will also have to use SoldiersNet, slcc's student information system. SoldiersNet is a platform that allows students to sign up for courses, view current classes and unofficial transcripts, and view and pay student bills. It is also the main means by which the college communicates with students. Once accepted, students will receive both the school's email address and SoldiersNet registration information, which will allow access to the student portal. Students of online students have access to services that reflect those available to all SLCC students, including academic advice, participation in campus functions (including graduation exercises), vocational guidance and access to campus premises. They can also participate in college-sponsored sporting events subject to standard requirements. Requirements.