Before asking the question, Cena gave an emotional and touching speech, paving the way for the public proposal, which began while Garcia-Colace, 33, underwent neck surgery in January 2016: 'Just before the surgery, there would be a time when it would be a bit loopy and I could ask you everything I wanted, he said. Garcia-Colace never remembered Cena's question then, but promised that he would tell her when the time was right. It's the right time, Cena told her Sunday in front of fans, family and thanks to a pay-per-view broadcast, much of the world. This content is imported from Instagram. Garcia-Colace said yes then, and she said yes, officially (not loopy, not at all, this time!) on Saturday. And by officially we mean that he got a Tiffany & Co. rock that could have dropped the best of WWE, combined, from the ring – with a big (huge!) round stone on a band on the canal, shone under the stadium lights. WWE Cena and Garcia-Colace won the Today Show on Monday morning, where Cena explained another unexpected element of the night: My mother who lives in Massachusetts and never travels and hates him and I've been to 14 Wrestle Manias and she's never been to one, she said I slide into the ring, I look at the huge audience and the first person I see is my mother. She did not know that her mother would be there that night - a happy coincidence that added to the magic of the moment. This content is imported from Instagram. The road to Cena's proposal was difficult, though - after his first marriage to his high school sweetheart, Elizabeth Huberdeau, ended in 2012, Cena repeatedly told the audience that he had no plans to marry again. Until Nikki Bella arrived. I found a strong person that I consider an inspiration, a peer, someone who when I feel down takes me, he said today. It took such a strong person to change my view of life. And it looks like he couldn't agree more. My prince charming made me his queen in a place we call home, Garcia-Colace wrote on Twitter. Last night was truly unforgettable. A dream come true! [h/t Daily Mail This content is created and managed by third parties and imported into this page to help users provide their email addresses. He shot to stardom as an embodiment of hip-hop wrestling. Like Enimen, John Cena used his ability to insult those he doesn't like. He also customized the WWE title into a piece of bling-bling with a rotating WWE logo. As the company became more child-friendly, Cena moved away from hip-hop and extolled the virtues of never giving up. Date: April 23, 1977 - John Cena was born in West Newbury, Massachusetts on April 23, 1977. As a college football player at Springfield College, he wore the number 54, which was described on some of his WWE products. In 1999, Cena began his wrestling career as part of Ultimate Pro Wrestling, a California-based school and wrestling company. While there, he was given the name The Prototype, where his gimmick was half man and half machine. The following year, he signed with Ohio Valley Wrestling. Before being named to WWE's main roster, he was on the 2001 reality show Manhunt, which was canceled due to bad ratings and a controversy over the program's legitimacy. In June 2002, he made his SmackDown debut accepting a challenge from Kurt Angle. The only thing he lacked was a compelling gimmick. That Halloween, he dressed up as an imitator of Vanilla Ice and did his first rap. With this new personality he insulted the crowd before the games by doing ugly raps on their city and wearing return jerseys of the enemies of the local sports team. With the help of his and improving wrestling skills, he was in a main event title match in April 2003. That November, the inevitable facial turning point occurred and since then his career has skyrocketed. He was involved in a feud for the U.S. Championship with the 500-pound Big Show. At WrestleMania XX, he won the title. Although he was not the world champion, he solidified his place as the most popular wrestler on SmackDown. For the next few months, Cena was involved in a feud with Booker T and Carlito for the U.S. title. In early 2005, he won a tournament to fight JBL for the WWE Championship at WrestleMania 21. Prior to this match, he lost the U.S. title due to JBL interference. Cena retaliated by becoming WWE Champion at WrestleMania 21. He defeated JBL in a rematch the following month in an I Quit match. During the annual draft lottery, John Cena moved to RAW. This move put him in an immediate feud with Chris Jericho. Jericho released rock albums with his band Fozzy, and Cena had just released his rap album. In this battle, hip-hop has pinned rock. John Cena also began in poor condition with GM Eric Bischoff, who vowed to do everything he could to get the title from Cena and make his life miserable on Raw. Cena feuded with Shawn Michaels and Kurt Angle and also caused Eric Bischoff to be fired by beating Kurt Angle and Chris Masters. At New Year's Revolution he defeated both men plus Kane, Carlito and Shawn Michaels in an Elimination Chamber match. Soon after the match, Edge used his Money in the Bank Title Shot and easily beat the worn champion. He regained the title a few weeks later, but later lost the title to Rob Van Dam. Shortly before the release of his film, The Marine, John defeated Edge in a Tables, Ladders, and Chairs Match to win the WWE Championship for the third time. Around the same time, as part of an image makeover, he moved away from rap and returns. His third reign lasted more than a year and he lost it to injury. A few months after returning from the arm wound, he suffered neck damage. In his first match after having neck surgery, John won the World Heavyweight Championship for the first time by defeating Chris Jericho. In early 2009, his two distinctive moves, fu and STFU, were renamed Attitude Adjustment and STF, respectively. Since his return, he has won and lost the WWE Championship on several occasions. He is the most decorated world champion in WWE history as he has won a world title with the company on 15 different occasions. In addition to being the company's biggest star in the ring, she is also their biggest ambassador outside of it. John Cena went over wishes for the Make-A-Wish Foundation. After starring in a series of WWE films, Hollywood came to call him. In 2015, she had roles in three Hollywood comedies (Trainwreck, Sisters and Daddy's Home).
