Mission of deeds reading ma

Mission Deal is working tirelessly to help those in need. They are a truly amazing organization with wonderful people! 1 When my son was 16, he was involved in a car crash! He was not injured, there was no one, but he was charged with minor violations of vehicles. As part of his discipline, he volunteered to serve in Mission Deal for a couple of months! It was, for him, a rewarding experience. He saw people coming in had nothing and they were able to get away with something - whether it was a bed or blankets or pots/pans, etc. it gave him an idea of the reality of how many people live, and it made him understand how people could help each other. He really loved volunteering on Mission. Gave him a sense of purpose. (I'm a financial donor.) 3 Mission Deal is the best!! I've been volunteering for about two years. It feels great to help people who need help. As a board member for nearly 20 years, I have watched this incredible organization grow from a small group of dedicated people to a much larger team of dedicated volunteers. Their enthusiasm is contagious and their mission unwavering. Growth has provided more opportunities, but has not changed the fundamental beliefs on which this organization is built. I am sincerely proud to be a family member called Mission Deal! As a Mission Deal volunteer, I interacted with many clients. One in particular stands out. We just finished loading household furniture for the family. The little boy looked at his father and said. Does that mean I have a real bed tonight. It really sums up The Deal mission! I met Mission Deal through the Trillion family. As a realtor, I had opportunities to direct my customers who are downs cutting or moving to find targeted use for their excess furniture and household goods. My son, then a high school student at Malden Catholic, became a MOD volunteer. It was really life changing for him to understand not only how lucky he was, but how influential help can be for someone in need. MoD clients are always treated with care, compassion and the greatest dignity. My family is honored to participate in this organization and the amazing work they do every day. 2 Periodically I stop at Mission Deal headquarters to reset something. I am always inspired as every volunteer who works there stops for a moment and greets me with a smile. These smiles show me how much volunteers believe in the work they do. And always - regardless of whether my drop-off will be big or small - there are expressions of gratitude. I leave with a slice of candy - or two - but even more so with the feeling that I've done something good. This is the essence of personal giving can be. I volunteer and have seen how much they do for people who need help. It was very Experience. When I first met Mission Deal last year, it was just to donate furniture. Over the past year, their mission and welcoming approach to the needy have become a draw that lured me further into the organization. Now I volunteer one day a week to renovate and refine donated furniture so that the poor moving into their first home may have some access to these parts. It is a warm, congenital, organization working with a minimum budget and aimed at helping the unhappy. It is a privilege to work with them. 2 Mission affairs succeeds in helping each customer by providing them with basic household essentials from new beds, bedding, kitchen items, living and dining furniture to help them re-establish their lives after tough times. Each client is treated with respect and welcome in the Deal family's mission. The work of employees and volunteers is carried out with a strong commitment to help those less fortunate. It's an amazing group of people who help people. I've been working with Mission Deeds for 10 years. I am a professional organizer and senior relocation manager. My clients donate their furniture and household goods to the MoD as they move or clean their space. The MoD goes above and beyond to help me and my clients. I love working with staff and other volunteers. 2 A wonderful organization full of compassion and always here for the community! 2 I started sacrificing for this charity almost 20 years ago, and the more I learned about it, the more I wanted to be involved. This involvement has evolved from donating furniture, to sponsoring financial events, to getting friends to donate, ultimately joining their board. I'm very proud to be involved with Mission Deal. He does so much good for those in need and does so with minimal overhead and good heart - for his clients, staff and all volunteers. It's really a great nonprofit! 1 I have been a volunteer in mission deeds for about 18 years. I volunteer in almost every available position. This great experience has allowed me to see first-hand a few things. First, how well the organization works. We have a large group of dedicated volunteers who not only take their jobs seriously, but also do so with passion, thus lacking the need for too many paid employees. We also take the time to look at each case personally to best help our customers. Our clients are treated with respect and kindness. There are very few things sadder than going to a live apartment with very small furniture. On the flip side, there is great fun knowing that we are helping people through a difficult stage in their lives. 3 I have been a volunteer in Mission Deal for 14 years. Finally, as a person of conscience money, I am proud that 88% of all the money we collect goes directly to serving our customers. A review from Guidestar 2 Mission Affairs provides a struggling family with basic needs to set up home. It is managed by a special group of volunteers and staff. I was fortunate enough to be able to help plan some fundraising activities for the MoD, and more recently serve on their board of directors. I am constantly amazed not only at the generosity of donations from the community, but also how efficiently and tirelessly staff work. Volunteering here also gave me the opportunity to witness customers coming in/out of the MoD, as well as the relief and joy on their faces when they see everything available to them. It's a really special place. 2 Over the past nine years, I have voluntarily played numerous roles in the Mission for Affairs (MoD), an amazing organization that helps clients and their families in need. IU provides its customers with household goods, bed linen, beds and furniture; all items necessary for the arrangement of your studio and/or 1 bedroom apartment. The organization prides itself on the quality of customer experience during the visit to the MoD, as well as the quality of the items provided. The MoD is privately funded and holds several fundraising events throughout the year. My wife and I have been closely involved in these events and are working hard to make these events successful and memorable (please see attached photos of events). I devote 15-20 hours a week to volunteering and looking forward to going to the MoD; and, more importantly, I am very pleased to know that I have worked towards a better life for those less fortunate. I am a frequent donor to Mission Deal, and I am always happy to see the real results of my donations. They have a very specific mission and are a great help to the people they serve. They are well organized, passionate about what they are doing and create meaningful change for people who really need it. I'm a recent volunteer with Mission Deal, but I've been a donor for several years. Over the years, many people have told me that this is a good organization that made me accept a volunteer opportunity. In a short time with Mission Deal I've seen a wide range of needs who have been referred to them for help, numerous charities that direct their clients, and the generosity of the Mission of Affairs and its donors in providing this assistance. I was pleased to participate in any small way. Mission Deal is an organization that returns not only to those in need, but also to our community. It is a valuable organization in reading. Both my children volunteered for Mission Deal and learned not only how lucky they were, but also how good they felt to return those in need. Mission Deal is a charity where you know that your donations/time really affect many lives on many levels. The stories of the families they helped are a heart-warming review from Guidestar 3 I've been a volunteer board member for more than five years. Mission Deal was a completely different organization when I joined than it is now. Yes, they had a successful overhaul campaign to repair and improve warehouses and office space, and yes, they expanded their brand and name recognition. But the reality is that Mission Deal is exactly the same as it was when it began years ago. The organisation still works for volunteer aid and has donated goods to provide a level of hope and support to those in need. We at Mission are proud that 0.88 cents of each donated dollar is used for customer needs. Bruce Murison and his team continue to work miracles every day with little fanfare. Guidestar guide review
