Yugioh main characters

Wikipedia list article Basic manga characters in school uniform. From left: Hiroto Honda, Katsuya Jonuchi, Yugi Mutu (Dark Yugi), Anzu Mazaki and Ryo Bakura. Yu-Gi-Oh! the series has a large cast of characters created by Kazuki Takahashi. The series takes place in a fictional city in Japan called Domino City, in which most of the characters who appear in the series originate. Many of the plot elements are also influenced by Egypt and Egyptian mythology, and as such, Egyptian characters also appear in the story. Original manga Yu-Gi-Oh! tells the tale of Yugi Mutu, a timid young man who loves all sorts of games but often mocks around. He one day tackles an ancient artifact known as the Millennium Puzzle, causing his body to play host to a mysterious spirit with the personality of a gamegeor. From now on, whenever Yugi or one of his friends threatens those with darkness in their hearts, this Dark Yugi shows himself and challenges them with dangerous Shadow Games that reveal the true nature of someone's heart, the losers of these contests are often subjected to a dark punishment called The Penalty Shootout Game. In the course of the series, Yugi and his friends (Katsuya Jonucci, Anzu Mazaki, Hiroto Honda, Micho Nosaka (in the 1998 series) and later Ryu Bakura) learn that this other Yugi inside his puzzle is actually the spirit of the nameless pharaoh from Egyptian times who lost memories. As Yugi and his comrades try to help Pharaoh rebuild their memories, they take many trials as they bid for their lives, encountering others who possess mysterious millennium objects and the dark power of the Shadow Games. Japanese names in western order (given first name before last name) and English manga names are listed first, and English anime names are listed second if possible. Protagonists Yugi Mutu / Yugi Muto (武藤 遊戯, Muto Yugi) Main article: Yugi Mutu Voiced: Megumi Ogat (1998–1999), Shunsuke Kazama (2000–present) (Japanese); Dan Green (English) One of the main characters of the story. He wears a millennium puzzle (千年バズル, Sennen Pazuru), one of seven millennium items and an ancient Egyptian artifact holding the spirit of ancient Egyptian pharaoh. At first, he fears another personality within him; however, as the narrative progresses, he grows a strong bond with his other me and considers his other soul a close and valuable friend. A few defining moments of character for him was when he defeats antagonists without dark yugi's help in games under grim circumstances, proving he is truly worthy of being the winner of the Millennium Puzzle. Katsuya Jonucci / Joey Wheeler (城之内 克也, Jonuchi Katsuya) Voiced: Toshiyuki Morikawa (1998–1999), Chiroke Takahashi (2000–present) (Japanese); Grayson (English) Close friend of Yugi. Jonouchi is loyal, heroic, good-natured, brave, funny, friendly, kind and loving. When Ushio beats Jonucci and Honda, Yugi ups up for them, and that's when Jonucci realizes he's jealous of Yugi's treasure. Later that night, he gets the last piece of the millennium puzzle and brings it back to Yugi's house, where Yugi completes it and challenges Usio in the first shadow game of the series. Jonuchi is touched by Yugi's behavior towards him, and they become loyal friends, forming their own treasure. Jonouchi fights well with his fist and is generally able to take on people larger than him, such as bandit Keith (in the second anime this quality is underestimated). While not exactly the best gamer at Domino's, he develops a better like of them thanks to Yugi, and he managed to use his strong moments to help Yuggy get through earlier storylines. He later develops an interest in dueling monsters game, the last lad at the time. Despite initially being helped by Yugi, he trains at duelist Kingdom and Battle City tournaments for his sister; gradually gets better throughout the series to the point where it can be called a match for Dark Yugi. Jonucci is shown to have a very good heart, soulless and caring, attentive and greedy desire to help and save those he cares deeply and loves, but he also demonstrates a near lack of modesty and can be quite a rash at times, making him a source of comic relief. He also has an extraordinary fear of ghosts, mummies and everything else that can be considered creepy. Jonucci notes that before he met Yugi, he was never really motivated by a thing. As history progressed, he learned to target his anger at games instead of fists. Anzu Mazaki / Thea Gardner (真崎 杏子, Mazaki Anzu) Voiced by: Yumi Kakazu (1998–1999), Maki Saito [ja] (2000–present) (Japanese); Amy Birnbaum (English) Yugi's best childhood friend and extremely supportive girl with plenty of spirit for her friends who have a crush on Atem. Anzu is not an avid player in the game and her abilities are significantly lower than that of Yuggy, although she demonstrates some knowledge of RPGs video games during the Monster World arc. Her dueling abilities are decent and she used to beat Jonouchi at school before he became an experienced duel. She is athletic, has a strong school spirit, and secretly worked at a fast food restaurant called Burger World to save money; her secret dream is to attend a dance school abroad in New York. When Yugi and Jonucci learn about these secrets when they followed her (thinking she was involved in Enjo kōsai), she gains new respect for Jonucci and her childhood friend, who are more than willing to support her dream and keep her secret. Hiroto Honda / Tristan Taylor (本田 ヒロト, Honda Hiroto) Voiced by: Ryotaro Okiaiyu Takayuki Kondo (2000–2001), Hidehiro Kikuchi (2001-present) (Japanese); Sam Riegel (eps.1-10), Greg Abbey (eps.11-224/other media; eps.1-9 uncult dub) (English) Honda, who is in Class 1-B at Domino's High School, a boy who became a friend of Yugi, Jonucci and Anzu. He later becomes a friend in Bakura as well. In manga, Honda starts out as Jonucci's street buddy and also (initially) has a crush on Micho Nosaka. In 1998 he is the head of the department of cosmetologist of the school. Along with Jonucci, he was saved from bully Ushio Yugi, although he still doesn't like Yugi at first. Confessing his love for Micho Nosakes to Jonucci, he is convinced he will ask Yuggy for help writing her love letters in the form of a puzzle. When a useless teacher, Ms. Jeong confiscated the puzzle, threatening to punish Micho if a secret admirer didn't come clean, Yugi and Jonucci stood up for him, saying they were the ones who wrote it. Ms Jeong decides to put together a puzzle to find out who the sender is anyway, and Dark Yugi secretly turns it into a shadow game, touting Ms. Chono's pretty face as a penalty shootout game. Honda has since warmed up to Yugi and becomes one of his dearest friends, despite Micho later turning him down when he asks her directly. In 1998, Honda's anime has a recurring crush on Micho, but he has no involvement with Ms. Chono. In the English version of duel monsters anime, his past was heavily edited to remove violent combat bits, and its importance was slightly downplayed. In a duel of anime monsters, he has great crush on his sister Jonucci Shizuka and his origin story with Micho is never mentioned. He also has a strong rivalry in the English version in the middle of duelist kingdom history as someone they just knew from school, as opposed to being a close friend, and his love of board role-playing games has been heavily penned. Seto Kaiba (海馬 瀬人, Kaiba Seto) Main article: Seto Kaiba Voiced: Hikauru Midorikawa (1998–1999), Kenjiro Tsuda (2000–present, teenager), Kiyomi Yazaki (2000–2004, child) (Japanese); Eric Stewart (ENG) The current president and CEO of Kaiba Kaiba Corporation was first introduced as a quirky, cold-blooded gamer who stopped at nothing to achieve his goals, even resorting to seemingly killing his opponents. He lived a bad childhood because of his goodness for nothing to his stepfather. When Kaiba learned that Yugi's grandfather owns a Blue-Eyes White Dragon card, he finishes a Yami Yugi duel and lost while in a coma after Yami used his power to instantly break Kaiba's heart to cleanse him of evil. Despite reforms later learning that his rival would be Atem, Kaiba retains his arrogance and rivalry with Yugi. While Kaiba leaves the story after the Battle City arc, he appears in the anime adaptation as the lead character and is mentioned in the Yu-Gi-Oh sequel The GX series as the founder of Duel Academy. In the film The Dark Side of Sizes and its prequel manga chapter, it appeared to have developed a solid vision. Kaiba tried to turn Atema to settle things between them, causing much of the storyline before he set off in the aftertaste after Atema. Kaiba uses the Blue-Eyes deck, and his monster ace is Blue-Eyes White Dragon. Mokuba Kaiba (海馬 モクバ, Kaiba Mokuba) Voiced: Katsue Mojwa (1998), Yunko Noda (game), Yunko Takeuchi (2000-present) (Japanese); Tara Sands (4Kids, 2001-2005, 2017), Kerry Keranen [1][2] (4Kids, 2005-2006) (English) Setho Kaiba's younger brother and expert on monster capsule chess (カプセルモンス タチェス, Monsuta Chazu Cabbage). In Manga Mokuba like a spoiled rat, always trying to trick Yugi Muto into returning to him for his victory over his older brother. In the pre-Death-T head of manga, Mokuba tries to beat Yugi before Kaiba has a chance, threatening to cut off Yugi's fingers if he wins, and challenges Jonouchi and Yugi to the Russian Roulette Death Dinner (死の料理:ロシアンレット, Shi neither Rory Roshian Rureto) and Jonouchi poisons. In Yu-Guy Oh! Duel Monsters, Mokuba is eternally devoted to his brother Seto Kaiba and is constantly by his side. He is not as cruel as his manga counterpart, and does not seek to avenge the defeat of Seto. He befriends Yugi's group after they have saved him, thereby making him a warmer, more sociable of the two brothers. Micho Nosaka (anime version) / Melody (video game title) (野坂 ミホ, Nosaka Miho) Voiced: Yucca Single-shot minor character in manga, who was rewritten as the protagonist for the 1998 adaptation of Anime Toei. Here she is a very good friend of Yugi and the best friend of Anzu. This version of Micho is a cheerful, kind and caring girl who loves all things that are cute, her friends, and is one of the school's treasures (according to Honda). Micho tended to speak from a third person and got a crush on many male actors throughout the show (especially the ones she finds cool), but isn't interested in Honda anyway other than as a friend (while he's madly in love with her). Micho has a stubborn side, and whenever her friends are threatened, she won't hesitate seriously and do her best to protect them, like when Warashibe poisons Anza, Honda and Jonucci. Although Miho is generally sweet and innocent, she is shown to be smarter than she allows and has a manipulative side to her and not above, allowing her desire to be known in front of a Honda she knows has a huge crush for her. This includes him waiting in line to buy her a collectible watch while waiting in line for perfume, and making it sound like she's considering taking it on a trip with her if he won her a digital pet competition. Although it would have thawed at Honda's lack of care, Micho is shown to love him dearly (just not in a romantic way), as when she thought he was dead, she began to sob uncontrollably and decided to fight for his sake. When she finds out he is alive, she will be circadian with Jonucci to fight against Ruichi and Aileen, who held Honda and Yugi's grandfather captive. Antagonists Dark Bakura / Yami Bakura (闇獺良, Yama Bakura) Voiced: Tsutum Kashiwakura (1998), Yo Inoue (2000-2001), Rika Matsumoto (2001-2004) (Japanese); Ted Lewis (English) The dark spirit found inside the Millennium Ring, Dark Bakura is looking for millennium items to open the Door of Darkness, giving evil power to anyone who opens it. To do this, he takes control of Bakura's body against Bakura's will as he have your own body. The story, he torments Bakura by taking over his body as he played the game with his friends and used The Execution Games to trap his souls in TRPG miniatures for the Monster World game, resulting in Bakura constantly transferring schools. With the help of other yugi and Yugi, Jonucci, Anzu and Honda (and Micho in the 1998 anime) they were able to temporarily clean up dark bakura's influence on their friend by defeating monster world's eventual boss, The Dark Master of Okra (闇の支配者ダク・マスタゾク, Daku Masutā Zōku). Later, however, when the group seemingly finds themselves trapped in a maze below the Kingdom of Duel, the voice of spirit within the Millennium Ring tricks Bakura into putting it back on, fueling Bakura that his other half will help save his friends and that the dark spirit has undergone a change of heart. With Bakura's friends not knowing what he put on the millennium ring again, Dark Bakura helps Pit Yugi in his game designed to outsmart the cunning of the Meek brothers, and they head to the surface. For a while, it was unknown in manga whether the dark Bakura was still a malnourous spirit. On the one hand, he occasionally helped Yugi and his friends in an effort to win their uneasy trust and seemed to allow Bakura more free control over his body compared to his previous treatment of his master (who was still unaware of what was happening every time his other half took over). On the other hand, unfamiliar to others, he is shown to be the one who killed Pegasus, plucking the Eye of the Millennium from his eye socket and taking it for himself, licking the remnants of blood. It is soon clear where his true standing was in the dungeon's dice monsters: after giving Yugi moral support during the game against Ryuij Otogi and helping him get chunks of the broken millennium puzzle, Dark Bakura secretly plants part of his soul into one of the pieces to uncover the Real Door from within, and intends to do everything he can to manipulate everything in place until the day comes when all the millennium items come together. In preparation for shadow role-playing / Shadow RPG (闇・R・P・Gロル・ブレイニング・ゲーム, Yami Ā Pi Ji (Yami Rōru Pureingu Gēmu)), with the ultimate goal of opening the Door of Darkness and unleashing darkness sealed in the puzzle. Unbeknownst to Bakuri, for a later part of the manga, his other I will occasionally take over my body when I see chances to further achieve my own selfish goals. During the final arc, Dark Bakura and does not accompany Yugi and his friends as much as he did in the manga, and is excluded from the filler arc. In addition, he is presented in the middle of duelist kingdom history as someone they just knew from school, as opposed to being a close friend, and his love of board role-playing games has been heavily penned. Seto Kaiba (海馬 瀬人, Kaiba Seto) Main article: Seto Kaiba Voiced: Hikauru Midorikawa (1998–1999), Kenjiro Tsuda (2000–present, teenager), Kiyomi Yazaki (2000–2004, child) (Japanese); Eric Stewart (ENG) The current president and CEO of Kaiba Kaiba Corporation was first introduced as a quirky, cold-blooded gamer who stopped at nothing to achieve his goals, even resorting to seemingly killing his opponents. Unbeknownst to Bakuri, for a later part of the manga, his other I will occasionally take over my body when I see chances to further achieve my own selfish goals. During the final arc, Dark Bakura became part of Zorc and was destroyed by Horakti, while in manga, his life was connected to Ichnaden and Okrz and was killed when Zork died). Maximillion Pegasus / Pegasus J. Crawford (ペガサス・J・クロフォード, Pegasasu Jei Kurofodo) Voiced by: Jiro Takasugi (Japanese); Darren Dunstan (English)/Dameon Clark (English) He is known in English manga as Maximillion J. Pegasus Eccentric American Head of Industrial Illusions (Abbreviated to I²) and creator of the game Duel Monsters (デュエル モンスダズ, Dyueru Monsutāzū) (originally Magic & Wizards (M&M&Wizards) W (マジック&amp;ワイザズ), Majikku ando Wīzāzū)). He is the owner of the millennium 千年眼 (ミレニアムア, EPIFANIYイ, Sennen Hahn, Miriam Aī). In the original manga, it's his story of meeting Shadi and the supposed evil intelligence of the millennium elements, prompting Yugi's pits to seek an answer about who he is or where he came from. During his last Shadow game with Yugi/Dark Yugi, he tells them about his discovery of an ancient Egyptian shadow game during his travels in The Valley of the Kings, which inspired him to create Duel monsters and create card games in general, such as Tarot cards. In the second anime, as the creator of the card game Duel Monsters and the discoverer of their ancient Egyptian roots, Pegasus often plays a key role thanks to his extensive knowledge of the game and its mysterious origins. He has a habit of calling Yugi Mutu Yugi-boy and Seto Kaiba Kaiba-boy. This trend continues in Yu-Gi-Oh! GX anime, calling Jayden Yugi Jayden-boy. Pegasus often uses English words intertened with Japanese, including English words such as goodness gracious! and snap! and using the English pronun you instead of the Japanese words of the second person. His speech is also unique in terms of speaking out. In both English and Japanese, he tends to lengthen vowel sounds, especially near the end of the sentence. Pegasus quickly established himself as the manga's fourth major antagonist (and second major antagonist adapting anime), challenging Yugi's shadow game, to get him to come to his Duelist Kingdom tournament (決闘者の王国 (デュエリストキングダム), Dyuerisuto Kingudamu) and face him, taking the soul of his grandfather Sugoroku Mutou as a penalty game for losing a timed match to secure it. Throughout the battles to reach Pegasus Castle, Yugi was seen talking to his grandfather through the use of a video camera. In the second anime, he traps Sugorok in a Soul Prison Duel Monsters card. Pegasus also kidnaps Mokuba to persuade his brother Seto Kaiba to come as well, later capturing their souls as well. Through a series of flashbacks, Pegasus appeared to have a lover, Cecilia(シンティア, Shindia), who died after her 17th birthday (she dies after their marriage to anime). While the exact details range from medium to medium, his actions were carried out in the hope of resurrecting her. He was eventually defeated in the final game by Duel Monsters Yugi and Dark Yugi at the end of the arc, and is obliged to release the souls of his victims. He was killed shortly after Dark Bakura and his millennial point were adopted. In a duel of anime monsters, he is not killed by the Dark Bakura attack and makes short appearances in later seasons. Mr. Clown (MRクローン御伽父, Misuta Kurau/Otogi-chichi) Antagonist exclusive to manga. He owns the Black Clown (ブラッククローン, Burakku Kurau) game shop across the street from Sugorok Mutu's Kame Game store. Long ago, Mr. Otoghi asked Sugoroca Muto, the game's master, to accept him as a student. After a while, they challenged each other for ownership of the millennium puzzle in a shadow game called The Devil's Board Game. Mr. Otogie, who lost, aged 50, overnight as a penalty shootout. He has since wished revenge through his son Ryuji (known as the Duke of Devlin in English Anime). In the anime adaptation, his character is excluded completely. He appears in The Dark Side of Dimensions, a film set in manga continuity, where he opened a cafe with Ryuji to replace the burnt-out Black Clown store. In the English Dungeon Dice Monsters video game, he was named Sindin the Clown. Maric Ishtar / Yami Maric (マリク・イシュタル / 闇マリク, Marika Ishutaru / Yami Marika) Voiced: Tetsuya Iwanaga (adult), Akiko Kimura (child) (Japanese); Jonathan Todd Ross (English) Heir to the tomb clan and younger brother of Ishidzu Istar. Maric's hatred of the insanity-free pharaoh makes him neglect his duties and turn into a life of crime, as well as develop a split personality, as a child after he underwent a ritual of initiating a tomb (which burned the key to Pharaoh's memory on the back with a hot dagger) and was forever destined for a limited life in the dark, apart from the rest of the world. Breaking one of the laws of their clan, his dark personality appeared and brutally murdered his father (sent him to the Shadow Kingdom in English anime). However, his foster older brother Rissid (known as Odion in the English version of the anime adaptation) managed to seal his dark side, leaving him with no memory of his actions. He believed Pharaoh killed his father and became obsessed with killing Pharaoh to avenge his father and put an end to his clan's suffering without ever knowing of his own identity. To that end, he created Rare Hunters, a gang of thieves who stole and collect rare maps of Duel Monsters, and uses his Millennium Rod for people's consciousness. Although he was initially innocent and kind as a child, he became very violent and errant; his tier servants when they are dissatisfied with him and developing a love of torturing people. Dark Marik is eventually able to reappeal and take control of Maric's normal body later in history and replaces him as chief antagonist. Dark Marik turns out to be even more vicious than the original Marik. While the real Maric enjoyed violence and cruelty, he will only use it when he has been angry or when it will be further his own desires, but his dark side will attack anyone who has crossed his path and will prolong his suffering as long as possible; in manga and Japanese duel Monsters anime, he bluntly stated that he liked killing people because it was fun and was the only thing that bought him happiness. He only cares about his own survival and actively tries to kill the normal Marik so that he can have sole possession of his body. Nor does he like Risid for sealing it away and actively trying to kill him too, although he continues to miss a chance. Although it is associated with the millennium pivot, Dark Marik differs from Dark Yugi and Dark Bakura in that it is an inhumane entity born of pain and despair by Maric Ishtar

and can exist independently without a master. (He explains that Dark Yugi would cease to exist if Yugi had been destroyed, but Maric's non-moral destruction would not have affected him.) Although not directly stated, the manga hinted that he manipulated Maric into committing some of his later crimes, as he told Dark Yugi that he had taken Maric's quest for what he had done. After Maric's surrender against Yugi, Dark Maric is destroyed, Iaco Tenma (天馬 夜行, Tenma Iako) Kohai (protégé) and adopted son (often mistaken, or wrongly translated as younger brother) Maximon Pegasus (Pegasus J. Crawford in the Japanese version), who wants to avenge the defeat of Pegasus. Priest Ichaden (神官アグナディン, Shinkan Akunadīn) Voiced: Hitoshi Bifu (#201-212), Koji Isii (#213-214) (Japanese); Oliver Willman the Guardian of the Millennium Eye and brother of King Aikhenmanhan. As they grew up, he was secretly jealous of his brother Pharaoh's position, considering himself a true force behind the throne. Using a shadowy alchemist inscribed in the Millennium Spell Book/Millennium Tome (千年魔術書, Sennen Majutsu Sho), he ordered a massacre in the village of Clu-Elna, using their blood and melting their corpses into gold so he could create millennium items to protect his brother's kingdom, keeping slaughter secret and brainwashing his soldiers to keep it that way. To protect his family from those seeking revenge, he left his wife and their son Seto. Seto later entered Pharaoh Atham's trial as a priest, but Ochndnen kept their relationship a secret. Seeing his son after he abandoned him, Eschnaden's desire began to see Seto reach power. Thanks to Zork's influence in his Millennial eye, he is slowly convinced that he needs to kill Pharaoh and contract with Zor to become prince of darkness (闇の保持者, Yami no Daishinkan). In manga, Eschnaden's soul merged with Zorc's and sealed inside the Millennium Puzzle alongside Atem, and released during the final arc. His mummy is then used as a second player on the Dark Bakura side shadow RPG, affecting his own game piece as the rest of the game event continued. When Atem wins the game, the mummy's skull is divided in half, indicating that Okka's soul has been defeated forever. In the second anime series, when Dark Bakura planted part of his soul in his Millennium Eye, Ekhndnen's mind spoiled. He later collected the rest of the items he created (instead of the Dark Bakura, which still uses a frozen hourglass for a while) and granted him power from Dorke, turning it into a priest of darkness (The Great Shadow Magus in english dub). He later sealed the White Dragon shortly before he was killed by his own son Seto. When his soul entered Seto's mind to kill Pharaoh, it was stopped and killed for the good of Kisar in her White Dragon uniform (Eckndnen was sent to the Shadow of the Kingdom afterwards). Ochndnen's purged soul is later spotted with his brother on the other side of the door to the afterlife as Atem walks on to Zorc Necrophades (保邪神 ソーククロファデス, Dai Jashin Zōku Nekurofadesu) A destroyer of worlds who was born of darkness in the hearts of men (in English anime dub, he is the creator of the Shadow Kingdom). It is caused by the power of millennial subjects and attacks the kingdom, sending advisers to Atema. In the world of memory, an RPG-style shadow game that Dark Bakura created based on ancient Egypt, Zorc is the game's ultimate boss and has three Ba calibers, and if Dark Yugi loses the shadow of the RPG, Dark Bakura will get the final forces of darkness and Zorc will be effectively involved once again. However, with the help of Yugi and his other dear friends, Atem defeats him and prevents him from being resurrected, also freeing Bakura from the Millennium Ring once and at all. The dark Bakura was an entity made of both the souls of Okrka and the thief king of Bakura, and the manga also has an entity made of both the souls of Oker and the priest Ochndnen, who calls himself Zorc Necrophades, the priest of darkness. Minor Death-T Antagonists (DEATH-T(死のデマフ), Death Theme Park) A ruined theme park created by Seto Kaiba in an attempt to kill Yugi Mutu through deadly games, and the hiring of deadly opponents. These events do not take place in the second series of anime. Ryugui was transferred to Domino's High School, where Yugi Mutu (grandson of Sugorok) goes to school. His father used this as an opportunity for Ryuji to defeat Yugi in a series of games and perform the family rematch by taking the Millennium Puzzle for himself. Unfortunately for Mr. Clown, Ryugi ended up being moved by the games he had with Yugi, and can't bring himself to hate him, eventually rejecting his father's revenge and eventually joining a circle of Yugi friends. It is somewhat serious and quiet, but also level headed and very reasonable. In the second anime, the influence of Ryuji's father is completely missed and Ryuji's identity is rewritten. Instead, it is explained that Ryuji befriended Pegasus, who admired the Dice Monsters dungeons (ダンジョンダイスマンズ, Danjon Daiisu Monsutāzu), and wanted to help him sell the game. When Maric admitted that he was terrified of being forced to adopt an initiation ritual, he unsuccessfully tried to stop his father forcing him on him. When that failed, he scared his own dagger face to share the pain and prove his loyalty to his family. When Maric unknowingly developed his dark split personality, Rissid was the only one who was able to restrain Dark Maric and defended Maric ever knowing the existence of his dark side and the crimes he committed. He was originally one of Pharaoh Achenamhanen's original guardians and was a former Millennium Key keeper. Shada's predecessor, Mana (マナ, Mana) Voiced: Yuki Nakao (Japanese); Bella Hudson is a (English) childhood friend of Atem and studies magic under Mahad as his disciple. It is an open, playful and caring girl who shares a deep bond between her host and Atem. Anime reveals that all three were childhood friends. She appears in the millennium world bracket as NPC during the RPG Dark Bakura Shadow game. Her Ka is a dark magician's Ka. In the second anime, she can see Atema's friends from the present and first Yugi's mistakes for Atema. Kisara (キサラ, Kisara) Voiced: Ri Nakagawa (Japanese); Kerry Keranen [2] (English) Blue Eye Keeper White Dragon Monster Spirit in the millennium world spirit. Her pale appearance is unusual, and she is remembered as being from a foreign country in a Japanese anime. In the second series of the anime adaptation, he declared that, as children, the priest Seto saved Kisara from a slave trader, and she repaid him by unknowingly releasing his inner dragon spirit after traffickers set fire to his village and killed his mother. Years later (their first manga encounter), Seto again stumbles across Kisar being stoned through her pale white skin, deep blue eyes and white hair. Shada feels immacably strong power and strength within her - which he considers equal than that of the [Egyptian] gods - and Seto takes her back to the palace, where he recognizes her as the girl he once saved a few years ago. Kazuki Takahashi said he initially planned for the story to explore the strong romantic relationship between Seto and Kisar much more, but in order to meet the deadline, those details had to be cut short. According to Takahashi, Seto's strong romantic feelings for Kisar are the main pillar of Kaiba's modern unusually strong obsession with the Blue-Eyes White Dragon map. [7] Bobas (ボバサ, Bobas) Voiced by: Yū Mizushima (Japanese); Sean Shemmel (in English) In manga, he is a member of the Egyptian tomb clan, which protects millennium items under Shadi's command. It has a shade millennium scale as well as its millennium key. Bobas protects items by placing them on their abnormally shaped breasts and hawking their clothes. Then he swallows the key, and is able to restore it by the housekeeper. He accompanied Yugi and his friends to the Millennium Puzzle maze, a sequel to a made of treasure hunts from an early manga, to find a real door in memory of the king. He later enters the world of remembrance with Yugi and his friends and becomes an NPC in the shadowy RPG. In manga it turned out that he is actually Hesan, which in turn means that he is actually Shadi. In the duel of monster anime version, its role and character are completely altered. Bobasa appears as a comic relief of NPC, which is channeled by the shadow of the RPG. He is a key switcher who can bring a player to where Pharaoh's name is if the player gives him enough food to eat. It's never fully explained who and what he really is, but implied that he could have been or some other supernatural entity because he said that now that it is full, it can grant your wish. When he finally took them to Pharaoh's tomb, he disappeared and seemed to know much more about the situation, something he first meant. Unlike manga, Bobas is not Shadi's alternative identity. Sozoi detects an exchange and beats Hanasaki. Yugi arrives at the show without selling a single ticket. The puzzle is intercepted by miss Chono's evil wicked teacher, but her attempts to shame Honda are thwarted by the Dark Yugi. Unfortunately, when Honda asks Micho straight, she turns it down flat. Despite this, Honda is friends with Yugi, eventually joining the group. Ms. Chono (榎野先生, Chono Sensei, known as Lynn Madusa in the DDM English Video Game) Voiced: Masako Katsuki The Evil Teacher, as well as the middle and nasty villain from manga and the first series of anime. She has known as The Expulsion of Desu学魔女 (a friend, Taigaku Majō), since she expelled fifteen students within six months, thereby earning her a nickname. Her beautiful appearance is conditioned by the immeasurably thick layer of makeup she wears, which covers her real, ugly face. She also loves dating, but the part she likes best is to drop men off to see them cry, and she actually considers it a hobby. The owner of the drug lord ジャネスキコビアン's 0(ano, 8,000, Jan'ki Sukōpion no Ōna) is a minor villain exclusive to manga. [10] 金倉 (金倉, Kanekura) Curator of the Domino's City Museum, who exhibited the Millennium Puzzle after Yugi Mutu agrees to allow him to exhibit it for one day. Tsuruoka (鶴岡, Tsuruoka) Guiding Advisor to Domino's High and a minor villain exclusive to manga. He tends to abuse his position as a teacher to be unfair to pupils. He was pleased to learn that Katsuya Jonucci, who was poor and struggling to pay off his father's gambling debts, would be on the show. He thought the audience would like to see a poor person struggling and would like her to see it fail even further in the last minute. He and the technician tried to win the final stage of the game to prevent Jonucci from winning prize money. This had to be done by pressing a button that would prevent the wheel stopping in the final game on the ¥1,000,000 partition. The button was painted red to distinguish it from the other buttons on the switch. Dark Yugi's attempt to punish him ends up backing up, and Jonucci didn't get the prize money regardless. Since the game was Shadow Game, Nagumo's face cracked in the first set, which went to Dark Yugi. The shadow game dictated that players, instead of monsters, get damaged in the game.
