However, when the air is polluted due to particles, dust, vapours and other allergens, it is necessary to protect both the nose and mouth from harmful substances. If you want to do this, you will need a breathing apparatus or a mask that guarantees easy and clean breathing. Whether you have time off or work in contaminated areas, personal protection should always be close to you, as harmful air can negatively affect your body. Even if you do quad driving you should have a mask for aTV riding to guard your lungs. People with allergies or asthma should carry out this personal protection to help themselves breathe safely. What are the main types of breathing apparatus? There are 2 main subcategories and several breathing apparatus. 1. Air purifierbreathing apparatus is characterized by the fact that it cleans the air and filters harmful particles. These types include: Respiratory mouth bit; Quarter mask; Mask vacuum cleaners for half face; Full face. 2. Air respirators provide fresh air from a compressed air box or through an air duct. Should I choose reusable or disposable breathing apparatus? So you can choose between reusable and disposable models should first define the area of use. If you are planning to apply respiratory only once for a short period of time or occasionally (for example, when you are sick or visit someone in the hospital when you do some dusty work at home), then you can buy a disposable one. If your use involves prolonged, repeated wear and you regularly need to be in the respiratory, because your work exposes you to a lot of dangers, then the best choice will be for the reusable type. Where can dust respirators be applied? The range of application of a protective respiratory device is quite wide. Regardless of your field of activity, you need to take personal care of your nose, lungs, and mouth. All breathing apparatus works through several filters that clean the air of dust, bacteria, mold, In fact, it is the same mask used in construction, woodworking, can be applied when working at home, gardening, during sport (for example, a dust mask for riding ATVs is a necessary attribute when driving). Also, if you visit cities with poor ecology, you should protect yourself as well. In addition, anti-dust breathing apparatus works for people with lung failure. like asthma or emphysema, or just a severe allergy. Some people wonder if such breathing devices can be used for children. Unfortunately, there are no certificates but you can choose the smallest size. PS. Sometimes breathing machines or masks are used for fun purposes: scary dust masks are part of festive costumes that dress for Halloween. to choose the right one breathing apparatus for dust? Choosing the right respiratory system is very important. First, it depends on its type – the level of protection and how carefully it will filter the hazards for which it is intended. Subsequently, you need to determine what kind of harmful influence will be in your work. The greater the risk of danger, the stronger the protection should be. If the breathing apparatus is suitable for work at home, gardening or in sports - in this case, you can use types of lighters. But when working with wood, metal or during a high level of environmental pollution - use a respiratory mask with a sufficient level of protection. Choose the type of respiratory apparatus that suits you: whether it should cover both your mouth and nose or only your mouth, whether it will be combined with a cap and glasses, etc. Applicable in one area, it may not be comfortable enough in another. Pay attention to the material from which the respiratory apparatus is made, it must be of high quality, the belts or earloop must sit well, providing a good seal and preventing dust and various particles from entering. A bad product will not only cause discomfort, but also does not guarantee high protection. In addition, when choosing, check the filters used to purify the air. Carefully check how the respiratory system performs the filtration process, because the general protection depends on it. And last but not least. Monitor the respiratory apparatus or protective mask and take care of it. After all, it depends on how long this item will serve you. Choosing the
