It was a decision-based game where players moved through a range of levels, deciding on their stock, prices and advertising, with profits measured after round 12. The game was highly successful because it included enough variables to challenge players, while still providing an easy-to-understand introduction to running a business. Over the years, many developers built on the success of the Lemonade stand, introducing popular titles like the SimCity franchise, the Zoo Tycoon series, the rollercoaster tycoon series and the prison architect, where players were all placed in charge of their own customized prison, including budgets. Most gameplay in tycoon games is numerical with games People how to run a successful business. But, thanks to modern gameplay, the graphics are beautiful now, so they're also fun and realistic. Each game simulates a real-world event and players choose how to spend their money to get the greatest profit. You can be a high roller and take all this risk, or limit your risk to protect your investment. With so many industries, you can learn how to master every business type on the planet, even earning a fortune to rival the world's richest businessmen. If you think what you have behind the scenes to run a business, our tycoon games are perfect for you. In GamePix, all our tycoon games are presented in free, unblocked and HTML5. This means you can play them on any browser or device without the need to download Flash. They're also quick and easy to learn, so you can start building your business empire in no time. Purpose: Create rollercoaster tracks that thrill your riders safely. Instructions: Click on the track of the desired type to compose your rollercoaster and click/draw again. Install a track that collects all coins while maximizing the moves and speed. See also the original rollercoaster maker for the first 21 levels.
