The Battle of Labyrinth is the fourth book in the Olympian series written by Percy Jackson and Rick Riordan. The story tells Annabeth Chase as she leads her friends on a quest to find the inventor of the infamous labyrinth when they discover its role in a dark plot against a camp by Kronos's army. Plot Orientation The book begins with Percy Jackson going to a freshman orientation class at Good High School, where her mother's boyfriend, Paul Brophys, teaches. While there, he meets the clear-eye-to-death Rachel Elizabeth Dare, who he previously met at the Hoover Dam of the Curse of titans. During orientation, Rachel suddenly runs away to the gym. Percy follows her and tells him that she has something to do with the two cheerleaders, Tami and Keri. The people in question go into the gym where they reveal them themself to be empocises. Percy kills Tami, but Keri is extinguished by an explosion of fire. Unfortunately, Paul Brophys and several other dead see an incident in which Percy and Rachel were forced to escape through a broken window. They both run outside to where Annabeth is waiting. Rachel left Percy and told her to explain everything when she had time. And Percy goes camping with Annabeth. After arriving at the camp, Annabeth decides to go talk to Clarice La Rue about the secrets, and Percy wanders the camp alone. He will stop at the arena to see the massive Hellhound, Mrs. O'Leary. He tries to kill her, but is soon stopped by quintus, the master of the new sword, who reveals that Mrs O'Leary is his pet. Chiron interrupts their conversation and take Percy to Grover Underwood. He leads them to the grade where cloven elders council is held and falls him next to Juniper, a crying nymph who turns out to be Annabeth, Clarice, and Grover's girlfriend. Mrs O'Leary's Council decides Grover had just one week to find the wild lost god bread. Otherwise, his searcher's license will be confiscated. The meeting is over and Percy is rushing to clean up the cabin for cabin inspection. As soon as he lands in Poseidon's cabin, he sees his brother Tyson tidying up. Tyson hugs him and shows him a repair shield that the latter broke last winter during a fight with Manticoa. That night, Percy struggles to sleep. He notices the room shining with a faint blue light coming from the saltwater fountain his father gave last winter. The surroundings are iridescent light, which is clearly the message of the iris. He deposits one drachma in the fog and shimmers until nico di Angelo's figure is revealed. Nico is in conversation withAsk if there is a way to bring Bianca Di Angelo back to life. The ghost answers that it is possible, but only if the exchange occurs, the soul for the soul. The vision disappears before Percy has time to put it in another drachma. In his mind, he has a cold idea that Nico will come looking for him. The next morning, in a camping game designed by Quintus, Annabeth and Percy, you're attacked by three giant scorpions. They try to find a place to hide and squeeze between the two rocks. They note that it must be the entrance to the tunnel. As they emerge from the entrance, it is revealed that they have actually discovered the entrance to Labyrinth, a magical underground labyrinth, under the fists of Zeus in the center of the camp. Annabeth explains that this is central to the secret mission claris received during the Curse of the Titans, finding an entrance to labyrinths. She also explains that Luke Castellan may be planning to use it as an invasion route. File: 60px-Percy Cartoon .jpg Percy Jackson, one of the quest members. In Labyrinth Annabeth leads a quest with Percy, Grover and Tyson to find Daedalus, the born parent of the Olympus. She tells them that she only delayed Annabeth's choice, adding that the real reason for her visit was to offer them wishes. Annabeth wants a way to navigate labyrinths. Hera replies that she wants something that has already been given before she disappears. They leave the room and go inside Alcatraz, rescuing the ancient hundred-hand Brilles from Campe. The group try to persuade Bryares to join them, but one of the hundred hands is very discouraging in many years of imprisonment, which he refuses to do. The group can do nothing as they move deeper in the maze. While in Labyrinth, Percy continues to have dreams about Dydaloss - how the old inventor's son Icarus dies, and how he indirectly kills his nephew Pericles. Triple G Lunch They meet Nico DiAngelo at a 4 triple G Lunch. Percy returns success, all his friends are tied up and he just finds a gag. The deal is invalid because Gerion tells Percy that he didn't swear the Stykes River. Percy turned his body sideways, shot an arrow led by a spatula, and struck the hearts of the three men to defeat Gerion. Nico refuses to leave with them and they summon the ghost of Bianca Di Angelo as it apparentlyShe was sending a Percy Iris message of Nico's plan. Bianca asks Nico to forgive Percy because her death was not his fault. She gives the last word of warning about hades' children's fatal flaws (holding grudges) before disappearing. Nico still refuses to leave with Percy and his friends and Euricion offers so he can stay for a while. Hefaiestas Forge Yuris also offers to help them find hephasus who help them find their way to Daedalus workshops by giving them spider automatons that lead them to the god of forge. Back in Labyrinth, the foursome matches the Sphinx. Then, meet Hefaiestas and tell him that they will only divulge everything they want to know about Dy Dallas if they know who is invading his training on Mount St. Helens and why. When Grover senses the presence of Pan Hefhaistas, the god of fire and forge, the four begin to move toward the forged body. The four split. Percy continues his quest with Annabeth, and Tyson accompanies Grover. Percy and Annabeth discover who the creatures are with hephaestus forged creatures. As they scout the area, Percy is found by telekinés, who is forced to fight them off. He tells Annabeth to get out of there and report to Hefhaestus. Surprisingly, Annabeth kisses him because she believes Percy might die. Standing in the inferiority, Percy summons water from inside himself to defeat the monster, but the explosion shoots into the air as he loses consciousness. When Percy comes, he finds himself on a phantom island called Ogigia. Percy meets a titan with its occupant, a girl named Calypso, the daughter of Atlas. He immediately charms her, and she, in turn, falls in love with him and offers him a choice - stay with her, become immortal or leave to help his friend. She gives Percy time to consider this. Hefaiestas visits them and personally explains to Percy what really happened on Mount St Helens. He says the energy Percy unleashed has resulted in an earthquake that may have actually awakened taifon, shaking Percy's determination to return to the world. But Hefhaestas gives Percy a clear hint on how to navigate the maze, and he disappears into a pillar of fire. Percy made his decision and decided to tell Calypso his choice at dawn. His decision to return does not surprise Calypso. Before leaving, she gives him a moon race sprigg to plant in Manhattan for her. She sends him on his way back to camp by giving him a magic raft to sail on, and as he travels by sea, he can't help but recall that she will always be his biggest what-if. Back at Labyrinth Percy, you'll return to camp just to be empty. He approaches the amphitheater, where the burial shroud is burned and it becomes clear that everyone is present. He seesAnnabeth regains it and makes his appearance. Annabeth makes a scene, but the whole camp seems relieved that he's alive. Percy tells Chiron and Annabeth of his plans after understanding the tips Hefhaistas gave him, and soon, the two campers head into a deadly world to look for one person they know who can lead them in labyrinth: Rachel Elizabeth Dare. Rachel DeAtrio returns to Labyrinth to go in search of both Davealus' workshop and Grover and Tyson. Rachel reveals how she can see the right path as faint brightness on the floor. They are suddenly captured by Luke's army and led to the arena of Both Poseidon and Gaia's son Anteus, where Percy watches Luke and the rest of his army. It becomes clear that Luke knows the arena is part of the way, and to pass, he provides Anteus entertainment in the form of gladiator fights. Anteus has a special interest in Percy because they share the same legacy through their father. The latter has been given another half-blooded, fighting turn in the arena with Ethan Nakamura. Percy clearly has the upper hand, but refuses to kill Ethan. This causes anteus of his anger to fight Percy himself. Through trickyer and wisdom, Percy rushes to kill Anteus. Luke orders his troops to kill them, but Percy uses the Stigian Ice Whistle that Quintus gave him earlier and summons Mrs O'Leary. The three escape with Ethan, but as soon as they are far from the arena, Ethan leaves them. The group immediately arrives at daedalus workshop, where they find quintus and they reveal themselves to be Daedalus. They just have a conversation with him and he's pichi camping with Nico in tow. Daedalus, trio and Nico fight monsters. Mrs. O'Leary shows up and helps them. Daedalus tells the four of them to flee, and they use his improved metal wings to escape to the world of death. Rachel can soon ride them back to Labyrinth. They come across a tunnel that Percy considers to be the entrance to Titans Palace. He enters by himself, fearing for the safety of others. Inside, he finds and opens a golden sarcophagus and is shocked to see that it is not Kronos, but it is Luke who is inside. Percy speculates that Kronos must have fused with Luke. He keeps it long enough for Ethan to enter Kronos and see Telekiné, who has a Kronos sickle. Kronos wakes up and Percy tries to run from him, but Kronos stops time. Suddenly, Rachel throws a hairbrush in Titan's face. Luke yells. But as Nico summons a wall of black stones, giving the four men time to escape, Kronos regains control. File: Pan 2.jpg Bread, Lost God. After their flight, Percy and Annabeth discuss Luke. Percy tells her that Luke has become completely evil, but Annabeth refuses to believe this, seeing that it was Luke who screamed when Rachel hit him with a hairbrush. Percy go to talk to Rachel, but is surprised to see Grover's hat lying on the ground. The cap lays near the entrance to the tunnel, and the four push in. There, they find Tyson and Grover unconscious. They somehow wake grovers, and together, the six finally enter the final resting place of bread, the Carlsbad Cave, under New Mexico. God asks Grover to spread the word that bread is really dead because his area is too damaged and saved. Grover refuses at first, but he eventually succumbs. Bread addresses each of them individually, except nico. The bread finally melts, a small curl of white mist enters 6, and the grover is a little more than the others. They make it out of Labyrinth, and Rachel tells Percy that her father is a very rich land developer who explains why she was able to get them back into the maze right away, and why she felt guilty about Pan's death. Percy reassures her that it's not her fault. Soon, the three campers and Nico will return to camp in Pegasus. The four return to the camp in time to see the camp preparing for war. Percy and Chiron can talk for a while before Kronos' army explodes from labyrinth. The campers, along with Sateya, Nymph and Chiron, do their best to protect the enemy forces, and Daedalus, Mrs. O'Leary and Briareer appear, and the camp may be saved, but Campe suddenly bursts from labyrinth. When Grover panics, unleashes gifts from bread, and enemy forces scramble back to Labyrinth, the odds stack up against the camp. Demigods know that the monsters will be back soon and they will start regrouping. Daedalus has his choice to end his life, and therefore the maze, so that the camp is saved. Before he dies, he gives Annabeth a sleek silver laptop with all the ideas and notes he never had a chance to continue. Nico releases him, labyrinth is destroyed and the camp is saved. After nico di angelo dinner, Percy catches Nico just as the latter is leaving. Nico apologizes to Percy for being such brave and Percy forgives him. Percy offers Nico a place to camp, but Nico refuses, saying it's unacceptable anywhere but the dead. He can leave, as Percy knows Nico has to find his way. Towards the end of summer, Percy gets Annabeth to reveal the rest of her prophecy. Hera suddenly appears, and they're both hers.For a family, she only cares about the perfect family. Hera replies that she remembers this insult and disappears. Percy returns home to celebrate his 15th birthday with his mom, Paul and Tyson. Poseidon arrives on Percy's birthday, and Percy explains everything to him. Poseidon tells Percy that he is his favorite son and gives him a dollar of sand before leaving. Nico suddenly appeared and claimed to have found a way to beat Kronos. Percy points out how badly Nico sees birthday food and invites him inside for both food and talk. Prophecy The prophecy of this book is given to Annabeth Chase: you must delve into the darkness of endless mazes, the dead, traitors, and raises for the lost. You must rise or fall by the child in the last stand of the ghost king's hand, Athena. Destroy in the last breath of the hero and lose a worse love than death. Unravel the prophecy Annabeth and her group and enter labyrinth. Nico raises the dead, Ethan Nakamura joins Kronos after Percy saves his life, and Grover succeeds in finding bread (the dead, the traitors, the lost). Nico calls himself the Ghost King during a fight in the Daedalus workshop and chooses to save the lives of Percy and Annabeth. Daedalus' determines who's on the side.
