[1] The original version was sung by Cliff Edwards in the Jiminy Cricket character,[1] and was heard through the opening credits and in the film's final scene. The song has become a representative song of The Walt Disney Company. Recordings by Cliff Edwards and Chorus were released by Victor Records as catalog numbers 261546 and 26477A (in the US) and by EMI on his Master Voice Label as catalog number BD 821. Edwards recorded another version in 1940 for the American Decca Records cover version of the Pinocchio score, performed by Victor Young and featuring soprano Julietta Novis and The King's Men. The album was first released on the set of the 78-RPM 4-record album, and many years later as one side of the LP, supported by a selection from The Wizard of Oz. Recorded with Christian Rub (with the voice of Mister Geppetto), Cliff Edwards and Chorus was released by Victor Records as catalog number 26479B (in the US) and by EMI on his Master Voice label as catalog number BD 823. The song won the 1940 Academy Award for Best Original Song. [1] It was also the first Disney song to win an Oscar. The heritage and influence of The Library Of Congress considered the song culturally, historically, or aesthetically significant and preserved it into the National Record Registry in 2009. The American Film Institute placed When You Wish Upon a Star seventh in their 100 Greatest Songs in Film History, the highest rating of only four Disney animated film songs appearing on the list, others being Someday My Prince Will Come from Snow White and Seven Dwarfs ranked No. 19, Beauty and the Beast from Beauty and the Beast ranked No. 62, and Hakuna Matata of The Lion King, ranked No. 99. The song reached the top five on Billboard's Record Buying Guide, a precursor to the retail sales chart. Popular versions in 1940 were by Glenn Miller (vocals by Ray Eberle), Guy Lombardo (vocals by Carmen Lombardo), Horace Heidt and Cliff Edwards. [2] It has been recorded by many other artists since then. In recent times, Beyoncé has sung the cover of the song as part of The Disney Family Singalong. Brian Wilson said that the melody of beach boys' hit song Surfer Girl, which has the same AABA shape, [3] is loosely based on the version and Belmonts from When You Wish Upon a Star. [4] [5] [6] [7] In Swedish, Finnish, Norwegian, and Danish, the song has become a Christmas song, often referring to the Star of Bethlehem. The Swedish version is called Ser du stjärnan i det blå, translated roughly: Do you see a star in blue, and the Danish title is Når du ser et stjernesud ("When you see a shooting star"). In Denmark, Sweden, Finland, and Norway the song is played on television every Christmas Eve in Disney's traditional Christmas cabaret for an hour of All Of Us to All Of You, and gathering the whole family to watch this is considered a Scandinavian tradition. Over the Christmas period in 2011, the finalists of The X Factor UK that year covered When You Wish Upon A Star for this year's Christmas advertising campaign for UK department store Marks & Spencer. [8] Disney icon When You Wish Upon a Star, along with Mickey Mouse, has become an icon of The Walt Disney Company. In the 1950s and 1960s, Walt Disney used the song in the opening sequence of all editions of Walt Disney anthology television series. It has also been used to accompany the Walt Disney Pictures logo - including the current logo - since the 1980s. All Disney Cruise Line ships use the first seven notes of the song's melody as a signal to their horns. In addition, many productions at Disney theme parks - especially fireworks displays and parades - use the song. As jazz standard As Someday My Prince Will Come of Snow White 1937 and the Seven Dwarfs, the piece has become jazz standard. [9] This has been done by artists including Linda Ronstadt, Louis Armstrong, June Christy, Dave Brubeck Quartet, Glenn Miller, Vera Lynn, Shakatak, Harry James, Joe Pass, Trio Keith Jarrett, Transfer Manhattan, Sun Ra, Jason Becker, Leon Redbone, Wynton Marsalis, Gregory Porter, Bill Evans, Bill Frisell, Rod Stewart and Shirley The song is widely referenced in the episode Chapel Perilous by Mild High Club. Family Guy's parody and lawsuit The rights to the song, Bourne Co. Music Publishers, are suing Twentieth Century Fox Film Corp., Fox Broadcasting Company, Fuzzy Door Productions, Cartoon Network, Walter Murphy and Seth MacFarlane for trying to stop the distribution of a 2003 episode of Family Guy titled When You Wish Upon a Weinstein that parodied the song in a version titled I Need a Jew. A federal judge ruled against the Bourne Co., stating that the parody song did not infringe the company's copyright. [10] Reference ^ a b c Roberts, David (2006). Edwards is an American musician, singer, actor, and voice actor. Eleven years later, he was the voice of Jiminy Cricket in Disney's Pinocchio. When Edwards died in 1971, he was nearly bankrupt and alone after three divorces. Walt Disney Productions paid for his funeral expenses as a way to remember them. This song is about how dreams come true. The song appears in the movie Pinocchio when Pinocchio himself is able to transform from a wooden doll into a real boy. Disney now uses this song to represent the feelings you may have when experiencing a Disney park or watching a Disney movie intro. It was the first Disney song to win an Oscar for Best Song. In 2000, Edwards was named Disney Legend. Brielle is a junior at Rowan University. She studied Basic Education with a double major in The Art of Writing. He hopes to one day have his own basic class. In her spare time she enjoys running, going to the gym and spending time with friends and family.
