Colt (1927) C. H. Alison William F. Mitchell (1971) Pitching/Chipping Area Yes Food & Beverage Bar, Restaurant Course in very good condition. The windy day made the route much more difficult than usual. While this spot tends to be a bit of golf, the front nine (red) gives you an easy wide-open first 7 holes before the challenge begins. Fairways and greenery in a nice shape, roll towards, not fast, not slow. Many walkers, but currently (covid 19) keep individual cars loud ($18), which keeps the slow golfer playing fast. They can go back to 2 times per car at a slower speed. The course facilities were not open due to Covid 19, so we cant talk about this really pleasure, we can't wait to play again. The Greens are particularly big rolled for this time of year: Price and Blue lesson is a big lesson for the big stage This is one of my local courses and I play quite often. I don't like playing blue/white combination and preferring to play too Red/Blue. Part of the problem is that I always find that the white lesson is very swampy and wet. It is also not well maintained, as are red and blue courses for some reason. There are a lot of wet muddy spots around holes 2 and 4 and and It's a confusing layout where it intersects with the blue lesson. The blue course is very challenging and has great views of the Great South Bay. Also the game speed has been slow this season around the 5 hour lap. I love big lessons and editing. The greens are too slow for me to love. Fairways large shape and tee boxes. It was just blow sand traps. Very bad. I have to spend money there. The pace of the game was slow. He played here for the first time today and was nervous about his reviews front friends. It seems the course was in very poor condition before Hurricane Sandy, but has since recovered. I played blue to white. Blue is a large 9 hole stretch. Both par 3s are stunning, but the uphill par 3 is nice at 200 metres straight into the water. White is pretty boring and insignificant, but not as people say. The lumber point is a special CC and most of the blue and red holes are used as part of this club. I want to go back and play blue and red together. The course was a little underwater, but you can't blame them for that. It rained 20 days straight in NY. My only problem is that the bunkers suck. The sand was bad and had stones, not pebbles, but the size of my fist all over the bunker. That's a little detail they need to address. I wish Suffolk would put a little more money into this place to make it great. Heading towards the 2018 US Open in Shinnecock, this course is less than 20 minutes away, very close to isp MacArthur Long Island airport. 3 nines provide sufficient variety and flow. Red-Blue played the opening and finished in just 4 hours. A classic old country club seems to have turned public lessons as the clubhouse is a classic old wooden structure. The staff took us out and answered friendly and helpful questions. There was little or no wind the day we played. Blue 9, just above the water, beautiful views. The conditions were very good for perfect. Given the value and circumstances, I'd play it again. Course 2 is a story of the '9s. The red lesson is a very mediocre municipal course. It's not bad, it's just boring and normal. Blue lesson, however, is absolutely beautiful. I think five of the nine holes were in the bay with great views. The course was not overly difficult, but it was worth the money we spent. The restaurant had great food and had a nice setup. I would definitely recommend this for weekend warrior type golfers.
