Animation from Seasons 1 to 2 and by Cookie Jar Entertainment from Seasons 2 to 6. It premiered on Kids' WB on September 17, 2005, which went on to air the series through its second and third seasons. The rest of the series and internationally. [2] In Canada, the show premiered on Teletoon on September 8, 2006. [3] The series revolves around the adventures of the title character, Johnny Test, an 11-year-old suburban boy living with his parents, his super-genius 13-year-old twin sisters, Susan and Mary, who are both scientists and best friends with each other, and a talking dog named Dukey. They live in the village pork, which is in either the United States or Canada. Johnny is often used as a trial concept for his side Twin sisters' inventions and experiments, ranging from gadgets to superpoonds. Their experiments has to fight in the process. He sometimes has to fight in the process. He sometimes saves the world with his sisters' inventions. On June 11, 2013, Teletoon announced that the series had been renewed for a seventh season, to comprise 13 episodes and a three-part special. [4] However, in response to a tweet on June 25, 2015, regarding a seventh season, polling actor James Arnold Taylor said he was unaware of any plans for a seventh season. [5] On March 15, 2019, the official Johnny Test YouTube channel released a video confirming that the show will inspire a series of web shorts by WildBrain Spark, a subsidiary of WildBrain, which produces original content for online distribution. The announcement video was made private in October 2019. [6] Known as Johnny Test: The Lost Web Series, the first short debut on 2 May 2020 before being made private two days later. [7] In January 2020, WildBrain announced that their Vancouver studio for a new Johnny test project is hiring separately from the web shorts. [8] On May 6, 2020, WildBrain confirmed that the series was picked up by Netflix for two more seasons and an interactive show set for release in 2021, with Fellows returning as showrunner and executive producer. [9] Plot This article's plot summary may be too long or excessively detailed. Please help improve this template message) Johnny is part of the test family, which consists of his 13-year-old genius twin sisters, Susan and Mary, and his over-the-top parents: his mother Lila, who is a full-blown workaholic businesswoman; and his father Hugh, who is an obsessive-compulsive househuman whose two biggest obsessions clean up and cook meatloaf. The test twins often use Johnny as a guinea pig for their various experiments and inventions in their lab filled with highly advanced technology built in about the tests' domestic attic, with most of which they try to impress their pretty son next-door neighbor, Gil, for whom both cherish a deep love and obsession, although their efforts to come up with a way to attract his attention usually end in failure Johnny is a troublesome and mischievous boy who causes problems in the family and often within the city. His best friend is his anthropomphic talking pet dog, Dukey, who Susan and Mary have human-level intelligence and the ability to speak in an experiment. Because Johnny Susan, Mary and Dukey have by his side, he can live any child's dream, only to find that most dreams never turn out as hoped. He is very hyperactive and often messes with his 's inventions, causing trouble and mayhem, but just as often prove that he's smart as through cheat on his sisters or save the day of whatever danger happens to appear on. Johnny is also stubborn and a little spoiled because he gets what he wants through cheating, extortion, or manipulation. However, he has a sense of righteousness and always learns from his mistakes. On the other hand, like most children, he doesn't like school; if anything, he goes to great lengths to avoid doing work, often using his sisters' inventions to do so and often getting himself and/or others in trouble as a result. One of Johnny's main nemeses is Eugene Bling-Bling Boy Hamilton, a co-arch rival of the Test sisters and frienemia of Johnny's rival/friend; the two are believed to have crushes on each other, but each will immediately deny it, and they also constantly compete against each other. Missy, Sissy's pink labradoodle, is also Dukey's rival/crush. A third is Bumper, the school bully who constantly chooses on Johnny. Meanwhile, the General of the Army Base Area 51.1 and Mr. Trump are shown to be using the Army Base Area 51.1. Black and Mr. White, two federal agents of the Super Secret Government Agency (SSGA), showed close friends with the kids to be and often get them out of trouble or recruit them for a assignment, or just help, distract, and/or annov the tests on multiple occasions. Based on Episode is roughly animated in Adobe Flash, but keeping the same plot, used the same color schemes as the above episode, and was recorded with an American voice cast (retaining James Arnold Taylor as the voice of Johnny Test) instead. The original production designs) was created, provided and contributed by Matt Danner and Marc Perry. [13] and then later worked by producer Chris Savino and art director Paul Stec. Fellows, the creator of the series who interested the network in the series' premise, based the titular character on himself when he was a young boy; He named Johnny's twin sisters, Susan and Mary, on his own two sisters, also Susan and Mary, I14] In the original pilot and Promotional material from the show, Dukey was referred to as Poochie. James Arnold Taylor said that he didn't original choice for the role of Johnny Test; he previously voiced the main character in the initial test pilot. After the show was picked up by Kids' WB! as a series, he would initially be replaced by another voting actor, with a Canadian voice cast instead, but the studio had trouble finding Johnny's initial voice convincing for the first six episodes, so they gave Taylor the rest of the rest of the series. [14] Aaron Simpson, who developed the series and produced the pilot, was the creator and executive producer's first choice to serve as producer of the show before dismissing it. Production, but since the show was a U.S./Canada co-production, some of the animation produced in-house by Warner Bros. Animation studios Studio B Productions and Top Draw Animation, as well as South Korean animation production company Digital eMation, which is also the original lead title animation opening. Storyboards and art crew of the series' first production season were recycled,[explanation needed] including renowned Cartoon Network Studios and Nickelodeon Animation and DIC Entertainment, and even the comic book industry, including Chris Savino, Marc Perry, Paul Stec, Matt Danner, Joe Horne, Mike Kazaleh, Brian Larsen, Jun Falkenstein, Scott Shaw!, Nora Johnson, Milton Knight, Ray Leong, [15] Chris Battle, Casey Mitchum, [16] Pat Ventura, John Derevlany, J.C. Cheng, Aliki Theofilopoulos, George Cox III, Frederick J. Gardner III, Allan Penny, Justin Schultz, Christopher D. Lozinski, Dane Taylor and Rita Cooper. [17] The original version of the show's theme song and all its underscores were both written, composed and conducted by Kevin Manthei, with creator Scott Fellows writing and provided by Voicebox Productions, with voice direction by Terry Klassen. The merger of UPN and The WB in The CW Television Network led to many budget cuts being posted for the show, leading to the show being put on hiatus. Cookie Jar Entertainment, another Canada-based entertainment, another Canada-based entertainment, another Canada-based entertainment, another Canada-based entertainment of the series' production. [19] As a result of this change, the writers, storyboards and art crew worked, let go, leading to an entirely new crew running the show. In addition, the budget of the show that animated in Adobe Flash door Digital Productions, [20] The show's opening theme was later changed for the second season, again for the third season[21] and once again for the entire rest of the series, with the opening made of recycled episode pair johnny X: The Final Ending aired. It was originally intended as the series finale; However, the series was renewed for a fourth season. [22] Although Warner Bros. left the series' production, the credits still listed Warner Bros. as the brand owner of Johnny Test so far to the last season. The fourth season was animated at Atomic Cartoons with animation help from Seventoon Inc. and Philippine Animators Group Inc., both of which are located in the Philippines. It eventually premiered in high-definition on Teletoon on September 10, 2009,[23] and on 9 November 2009 on cartoon network in the US. [22] Later, on 24 August 2010, it was announced that Johnny Test had been renewed for a fifth season. Like the fourth season before that, it would be a complete set of 26 episodes with a 27th episode added to the end; the renewal brought the series total to 92 episodes. The fifth season premiered on 13 June 2011 on Cartoon Network in America, along with a new theme series with the same song used from seasons 2–4. Starting with the fifth season, Trevor Devall would become the new voice of Dukey, because of Louis Chirillo leaving the series. Similarly, Ashleigh Ball retired as the voice of Mary, Sissy and Missy at the end of the 4th season, because of her work on My Little Pony: Friendship Is Magic as the voice of Applejack and Rainbow Dash; As a result, she was replaced by Brittney Wilson, Mary's original voice. On March 12, 2012, it was announced that the show had been renewed for a sixth season. [24] Like the fourth and fifth season before it, it would again be a complete set of 26 episodes; the renewal brought the series total to 117 episodes. [25] Ashleigh Ball has also returned for the roles in this season. The sixth season premiered April 23, 2013, on Cartoon Network in America. With this season, the show reached its 100th episode (and 200th segment), making it one of Teletoon's longest-running original series (Total Drama has produced 118 episodes and two specials, while Total Spears! The show was picked up by Netflix on May 6, 2020 for 2 new seasons, along with an interactive special. The series will sport an updated look and will be produced in 4K. (March 2013) Joly Herman of Common Sense Media wrote and posted a review of Johnny Test on Go.com at the time of the show's original debut on Kids' WB. In the review, Herman indicated that the series is an age-appropriate choice for children and was surprisingly resourceful and not as violent as other cartoons in this genre, adding, The only thing worth mentioning: All the experiments Johnny undergoes are unattended by adults, which allows all types of zany stands to unfold. Herman gave the show three stars out of five. [48] Awards and nominations In 2006, the first season of the series was nominated for Outstanding Sound Edit - Live Action and Animation (for the episode pair, Deep Sea Johnny and Johnny and Johnny and the Amazing Turbo Action Backpack) at Motion Picture Sound Editors. In 2007, the second season of the show won a Gemini Award for Best Direction in a Children's or Youth Program or Series (for the episode pairing, Saturday Night's Alright for Johnny's Mint Chip)[49] and in 2008 the third season was nominated for another Gemini award, this time for best original music score for an animated programme or series (for the episode, Johnny vs. Bling-Bling 3 and Stinkin' Johnny); Finally, in 2010, the show, in its fourth season, was re-nominated program or series (for the episode pairing, Johnny Cakes and Johnny Tube)[50] and was awarded a Grand Prize for Best Program - All Categories at the Alliance for Children and Television's 2009 Gala Awards, Cookie Jar's first ACT award. [51] In other media, To tailored premiums with the purchase of their Cool Kids Combo dinners; The campaign went from June 28, 2010 to 24 ran 2010, with Carl's Jr. also subsequently hosting a Johnny Test football-themed promotion in Mexico, which 7 June – 25 July 2010 to coincide with the country's World Cup activities. [52] Philippines-based fried chicken chain Jollibee also advertised a similar toy campaign in their Kids' Meals in the form of their Amazing Adventure Chasers mini-toyline. In 2014, DHX Media signed a master toy license with Import Dragon. [55] Video games See also: Johnny Test (video game) On January 21, 2010, another partnership between Cookie Jar Entertainment and mobile application developer Jirbo emerged that led to two Johnny Test video games produced by the developer and made available exclusively for downloading iTunes, free of charge and for the iPhone, iPod Touch and iPad. The first game, Johnny Test: Clone Zapper, finds Johnny Test and Dukey involved in combating an army of Johnny clones that they accidentally created from a clone machine, with the help of two special laser zapper guns as their only weapons to defeat the clones and the test twins go on a rescue chase, with Johnny and Dukey both launching a bot drop plane to use the robotic clones of Johnnies (first seen in 101 Johnnies) for the titular Bot Drops to send them out to safety in a moving rescue vehicle driven by Susan and Mary. In the plot of that latter mentioned game, and as in every level of the game before that, Johnny has to aim and time to drop the robots so they will land safely on the vehicle, then Johnny Test has saved the day again. Both games are typical shoot-slinging and side-scrolling games that are in all use of the iPhone, iPod Touch and iPad's unique multi-touch capabilities and browsing, and, as a whole, players of both games can compete on the globally high scores list of every level of the game and competing players. Later in Spring of 2011, the series was eventually officially licensed by Cookie Jar for a new third, and fully console-handled video game, this time, however, to come out on Nintendo DS; a sneak preview and trailer of the game is already included on the full first and second seasons DVD set (as mentioned above), and was released on March 29, 2011. [56] Comic books and graphic novels Viper Comics announced in April 2011 that they would be publishing a Johnny Test: The Once and Future Johnny. The show focused on two lifelong friends, Sanford and Del, and their adventures at the fictional Barder College. [1] With the exception of their roommate Joe, almost everyone at Barder is stupid and relentless. Nevertheless, the idiotic, irresponsible, and ill-considered Sanford and Del are portrayed as the series was created by family Guy veteran writers Mark Hentemann, loosely based on Mark's college days at Miami University. This is the only animated series produced by Warner Bros. Animation for MTV. Creator Mark Hentemann would later go on to create Bordertown for Fox, which also ran for just one season. The show's theme song is The Flaming Lips' song Fight Test from the album Yoshimi Battles the Pink Robots. Main characters Sanford Reilly - voiced by Brian Dunkleman. Sanford is a fat, highly insensitive hard mouth that shows little consideration for others. He has a very crude sense of humour, believed to be in the value of scatophilia and silly pranks. As Del's best friend, he often often takes leads in their senseless adventures. In Brotherhood, it is revealed that he is diabetic and should take insulin for it. Del Swanson - voiced by Brian Posehn. Del is Sanford's lifelong friend, similarly stupid, Del shows a few glimpses of intelligence to his own surprise. He is extremely short and tends to have slightly better luck with women than Sanford ever does. Actor Brian Posehn gives Del a clear low, drunken voice, similar to the one used for Jim Kuback on the short-lived adult animated series Mission Hill. Joe Tate - voiced by Mark Hentemann. The most intelligent and miserable student at Barder, Joe was forced to attend Barder College because he was not accepted to Harvard (due to the fact that Harvard filled their quota of white male students). He has dreams of being a doctor, but is constantly at odds with idiotic students and the school's poor facilities, including an extremely independent medical center. As Del and Sanford's roommate, he endures their rudeness and stupidity daily. Todd Wolfschmidtmansternowitz – voiced by Brian Posehn. The R.A. of Del and Sanford's floor, Todd is a grotestinous loser with a high, croaking voice and various medical conditions, including albinism. Todd has been pathetic all his life, often mentioning his harsh alcoholic father and inability to cope with ordinary problems. He is constantly ignored by the students on his floor despite his good intentions, and has a tendency to blindly follow rules and regulations. Ed Bickel - voiced by Mark Hentemann. A hilly living on Todd's floor. Ed often hangs out with Del and Sanford and displays plenty of stereotypical redneak habits, including a distantly silly laugh. Though he is just as stupid as everyone else, he sometimes provides useful information and always has a cheeky demeanor. Dean Earheart deals with the school's many failures on a daily basis. He is neurotic, dishonest and terrible at his job. He has a blonde female assistant named Linda, who serves as his voice-of-reason. Felicity – voiced by Lori Alan. Felicity has become an over the top obsession over Del since high school, and only enrolled in Barder in hopes of always being with him. Her dorm room is filled with photos of Del all over the place. At some point, Del had to serve a restraining order against her only for her to injure it, thinking it was all a misunderstanding. She is constantly ripping off her own hair to make clothes for Del, in the hope that one day she will marry Del and carry children with him. She constantly bickers with Sanford. Cindy Reilly- voiced by Kathleen Wilhoite. Is Sanford's ditzy, unattractive, alcoholic older sister, who is a junior at Barder. In first episode she saw the summer soberingly, only for one of her friends to give her a beer to who gets her drunk again. A common running gag in the show is her hit by a car, as well as flashing her breasts. She was also banned from eating in the cafeteria for her antics. Dr. Heminger – Barder College's doctor. He's not very helpful when it comes to helping the students on campus, and he doesn't seem to know anything about his profession. He also abuses medication.
