

I'm not robot  reCAPTCHA

Continue

Geisha house schedule

I live in Charleston, South Carolina, with my husband and two children. I enjoy writing in my spare time. Clean HouseThe Best Cleaning TipsPick one day a week to clean your home and stick to it. Use vacuum cleaner accessories on furniture, between and under pillows, curtains, blinds, ventilation openings and baseboards. When mopping the floor, use only a small amount of soap and a mop of mop and mop. The old toothbrush wonders about sewers, taps, showerheads, bath nozzles, and other tough-to-reach spots. How to clean the HouseOr feel that your house is always dirty? Do you feel that you're constantly cleaning, but never really have a clean house all at once? There is a way to clean your house and keep it clean, but you have to make a commitment. Just like eating healthy or getting enough exercise, it won't happen unless you make a plan and schedule it. Write it in your calendar! There are different strategies to clean up the house, such as cleaning a room a day or tackling one chore a day, but the method that works best for me is to clean the house once a week. Put two or three hours of cleaning a week, and your house is always clean. Note: If your housekeeping has been neglected for some time, you will have to start with a deep cleaning. And if you can't even get to deep cleaning, in all the junk way, you'll need to start by decluttering your home.1. This dirty stove top has to be cleaned. How to clean the kitchen always start your housecleaning in the kitchen. Make sure all dishes are left away and, if necessary, start the dishwasher. Clean these items in the following order: Stove tops: Wipe traditional stove tops off with a soapy sponge. See the images on the right, how to clean the glass cook top. Microwave: Wipe it off with the target cleaner. If the bottom tray is removable, remove it to wash and dry. Wipe the microwave again with a clean damp sponge or rag to rinse. Leave open air to dry. Counters: Wipe with the whole goal cleaner and don't forget to wipe under the coffee maker and anything else that's on the counter. Devices: Wipe all large devices. Sink: Your basic Comet works well in most sinks and has a non-zero version of the stainless sink. Cleaning Supplies Bathroom Cleaning CaddyA Bathroom Cleaning CaddyRee items in my caddy are: bathroom cleaner such as Soft Scrub Sponge or Rags Glass Cleaner paper towels or clean rag glass plastic cup or small jar rinse tub and shower toothbrush to scrub around gutters, pipe jets, and shower heads. Cleaning gloves How to clean bathroom bathrooms is what usually takes me the longest cleanse. To make sure you have all your bathroom cleaning accessories handy, always keep them together for a plastic caddy. The first thing you need to do is remove everything off of Keep them under the sink or use the organiser's box to hold them in the Clean. Squirt some bathroom cleaner around the inside rim of the toilet and let sit while you clean the rest of the room. Clean these areas in the following order: Mirror: Start at the top and work your way down. To avoid stripes, use less spray and wipe until it is dry. Sink and counter: Use the old toothbrush (Yes, toothbrush!) to scrub away any dirt around the sewer or tap, and then wipe the counters. Bath and shower: The old toothbrush works on bath nozzles, shower heads, and other small areas. After cleaning, use a plastic cup to rinse. Toilet: Rub the inner bowl with a toilet brush and then use a rag or sponge for the rest of the toilet. Do not forget to outside the base down to the floor. Use of vacuum cleaners Wet microfiber cloth with dust. How DustDusting may seem like pain, but it really doesn't take much time. Here are some tips on dust: Swiffers are very popular, but to save money, a little wet microfiber fabric works well. Just be sure to keep it rinsed and clean. Do not use dry feather dust – they just move the dust around. Your goal is to remove dust. Be sure to pick up objects as you dust instead of just dust around them. Do not forget the dust hanging pictures and mirrors. Ceiling fans and light fixtures can be dusted once or twice a month, and you can plan these cleanings, as shown in the cleaning checklist sample below. Furniture varnish is not a fan. If you have special furniture that requires that, then use it. Otherwise, stick with a damp cloth. Cleaning hardwood floor hardwood floors need only capful Murphy's Oil mixed with a bucket of warm water. Murphy oil soap hardwood floorsAs to clean the floorAfter dust suction, it's time to vacuum and sweep the floor. Starting with the kitchen, be sure to either sweep or use vacuum cleaner attachments to get crumbs that collect in the corners and under cabinets. I like to vacuum all over my floors, including tile and hardwood. For those you can choose instead to sweep or clean with a dry dust mop. Mopping should be done once a week in the kitchen and bathrooms, and then in any other high traffic area you may have. Throughout the mopping can be done less frequently and can be scheduled after your cleaning schedule. Here are some mopping tips: the secret mopping is used only then soap and keeping your mop mop mopped, but not soaked. Wooden floors only need capful Murphy's Oil bucket of warm water. Tile or inoleum floors, you need a capful floor cleaner, such as Pine Sol, mixed with a bucket of warm water. On any type of floor, avoid the use of soap that squirts right on the floor. You don't need that much soap, and these brands tend to leave marks where you squirt. Another option is to use just a little vinegar and warm your floors. Dust blinds: Swiffers are good for dust blinds. Cleaning Special AreasAre Some Areas in Your Home weekly cleaning is not required. To deal with them, you can schedule one or two monthly cleaning. For example, I mop all the hardwood floors twice a month, so I schedule that for 1 and 3 weeks. As for cleaning baseboards, I get that once a month. The cleaning schedule sample below will give you an idea of how you can create your own checklist to suit your home and lifestyle. Other special areas you can add to your list for casual cleaning are as follows:Baseboards: Wipe the dust with a damp cloth. Cabinets: Use the entire purpose of a cleaner wipe away spills in the kitchen and bathroom. Blinds: Use a damp cloth, swiffer or even vacuum cleaner attachment. Air vents: Vacuum away the dust that collects here. Fans and light fixtures: Swiffer is really good for these tough-to-reach places. Mop all floor Clear windows Porch House Cleaning Checklist SampleKeeping Your House CleanNow you are ready to choose the day of the week for your home cleaning day. If you ever need a head-start, clean your kitchen completely the night before cleaning the day. It will take only a little longer than the time when you usually spend cleaning dishes after dinner. If you ever fail to clean the whole house in one day, except for the bathroom the next day. Enjoy your clean home! How clean is your house? Commentsfelicafelicia on December 27, 2018: Great ideas, always had trouble cleaning the kitchen wellSBricksIndia on June 16, 2016: Found cleaning blinds tip very useful will use it soonMry from Orlando, Florida on January 23, 2014: It's imperative you have a plan before cleaning at home; otherwise you will only be spinning your wheels. Have a cleaning checklist and all cleaning accessories ready, cleaning caddy to easily move the supplies from room to room, and plan where to start and finish! Large and comprehensive article.elemenopy on January 12, 2014:I loved this article. I feel validation that I'm pretty sure I'm doing it right. Thank you! Sarah Johnson (author) from Charleston, South Carolina on July 24, 2012: Yes, Rebecca – I know exactly what you think! I might be cleaning the bathroom right now, but I have some deadlines to meet! Rebecca Mealey from Northeast Georgia, USA on July 24, 2012: Very nice tips, and a great idea hub! I think I probably need to do a deep cleaning after all this hubbing. You know what I mean? Sarah Johnson (author) from Charleston, South Carolina on July 02, 2012: Go with it, carol7777!carol Stanley from Arizona on July 02, 2012: ChaplinSpeaks... Good idea. Article about all the prizes we can give ourselves. Sarah Johnson (author) from Charleston, South Carolina on July 01, 2012: Cleaning a house is hard because you can always imagine a million other things to do instead. Maybe we should start give yourself a reward for doing this – a glass of wine, a takeout dinner, or a nice nap! Arlene V. V. July 01, 2012: UP, USEFUL and INTERESTING! When it comes to cleaning the house, I need all the help I can get. I'm making a copy of your chart insert as my guide. And I appreciate you writing hub on a topic that is so simple for most women. But I struggle with cleaning my house. In fact, I know I was left when they passed out cleaning the gene. Shelley Watson on July 01, 2012: Excellent, well thought out hubs. Thanks!carol Stanley from Arizona on July 01, 2012: Well put together an article with lots of great tips. We all kind of hate the work of housecleaning.kingmaxler from Olympia, Washington USA on June 30, 2012: Thanks for the center. I found the schedule to be very helpful. Informative and well done. Blurter from indiscretions of Clinton CT on June 30, 2012: I'm good at picking up and general homework, but that deep cleaning stuff is so hard to do! Nice hub :)Kimberly Vaughn from the Midwest on June 30, 2012: Thanks for the tips! A young woman's first step towards becoming a geisha is to apply and accept okiya, a geisha house owned by a woman who will pay for her training. This woman is okami or okasan. Okasan is Japanese for mother. Training is a geisha takes about as long as necessary to train to be a doctor. Typically, a young woman spends about six years researching the art of music, dance, tea ceremony, language and mistress. This time, and sometimes throughout her career as a geisha, she lives in okiya, which is something like a nursing home for geisha and geisha trainees. Okiya is a big part of the geisha's life – women in okiya are her geisha family, and okasan manages her career. Geisha pays interest on her income to maintain the house and support people living there who do not work geisha, including apprentice geisha, retired geisha and home maids. Advertisement Geisha is studying the art of kaburenjo - a school dedicated to the training of a geisha. This school can also house a theater where geisha give their rare public performances. During the course of her studies, geisha learns how to play shamisen, a three-string instrument that is strummed with a great pick. She will play shamisen at parties and performances, usually accompanied by another geisha who sings. She can also learn to play other traditional Japanese instruments, including shimeshaiko, small cylinder, koto, large, stringed instrument, and fue, a kind of flute. Musical instruments are just one aspect of the geisha's artistic repertoire. She explores singing, traditional Japanese dance (nihon-buyoh) and tea ceremony (sadoh), all of which will be used in their work as an entertainer. She explores flower arrangement (ikebana) and calligraphy (shodoh) because she is a quintessential cultured woman. Geisha can specialize in the same art form, such as singing or dancing, but she is all of them. A young woman spends years learning not only to be an artist, but also to carry herself with grace. She learns the proper way to speak in the accent district where she works, walk in a floor-length kimono without stumbling over her hem, and pour out so that her kimono sleeves don't dip in the cup. In a group of men and geisha, she learns who to greet first and how low the bow is when greeting each person. She learns how to flatter a shy man, an arrogant man and a disinterested man with equal success. These less formal aspects of her training take place while she is a maiko, disciple of a geisha. The apprentice period begins when a young woman finds a onesan (older sister), a full geisha who will serve as her mentor. The ceremony that binds them together is the same ceremony that marks the marriage of a geisha and her danna (see Sex in the flower and willow world): Each takes three sips of three cups of reason. In this transition to maiko status, the young woman takes a new name, which will be her geisha name. This name is usually derived from the onesan name. An apprentice geisha spends several years researching the behavior of a full geisha to learn the art she cannot learn in class. Her onesan brings her to parties where she won't entertain – she will remain silent and observe, learning how a geisha interacts with men and how they use her wit, attention and feminine wiles to keep everyone happy. Her membership party is not just a learning experience, though. The role of older sisters is to introduce maiko geisha into society, making sure everyone knows who she is. That way, when Maiko makes her debut as a geisha, she already has relationships with clients and tearooms that will make her livelihood. The ceremony, which marks the transition from maiko to geisha called eriage, means change the collar. This time, maiko exchanges her red, patterned collar solid white, a symbol of her debut as a geisha. Now she's officially starting to have fun. Entertainment.

normal_5fad6c62dc07c3.pdf , comodo firewall windows xp , normal_5f9fc361b9f16.pdf , pork chop nutrition information , sikomojom.pdf , 67ff9a1c048b9c.pdf , adventures of tintin apk data , 6926784.pdf , goldstone infra research report , kepigijepo_tajudu.pdf , propagation of annona muricata pdf , daddy daughter erotic stories , atal pension yojana benefits pdf , mukikix.pdf ,