Receiving Reviews for anime were generally positive. Amy McNully of Anime News Network gave the first three episodes of the series an A rating written that: Cute High Earth Defense Club LOVE! should make any anime fan laugh, although long-time fans of magic girl shows will get better jokes by default. As a parody of a genre that can still entertain itself, this series goes the line of critiquing and worshipping the magical girl genre with finesse. It's funny, but it's not an adventure per minute. yes, he's got exaggerated situations, but he's a little less believable than the typical magic show of girls, so it works. We don't laugh at the show, we laugh with it. [21] When he looked at the ninth episode, at which he rated A+, McNully later wrote that: it demonstrates that the show has the best time when it's both a parody and a magical boy show itself. The fact that the boys are able to talk to the melon monster before they heal him with love. another fun twist on give-speech-about-justice-to-monster-then-heal-with-love formula. Overall, viewers spend more time with this monster than any of the previous ones, paving the way for aplenty laugh. [1] Ian Wolf writing for Anime UK News gave the first two episodes a rating of 9 out of 10 saying: Cute High Earth Defense Club LOVE! so far it has proven to be a hugely fun show, mainly because of the parody knowing it contains. The series mocks all the normal magical girls tropes, be it positions, lines that are spouted, transformations, or attacks. The only real difference is that you have male characters instead of female ones. He also stated comparisons with shows such as The Ourian High School Host Club, a romantic comedy manga that parodies and romantic manga; and free! in which he compares similar fan-bases, namely fujoshi, saying: Let's be honest, we all knew that as soon as the concept of five attractive boys similar to magical girls was revealed that every fujoshi and fudanshi was preparing to write pretty much fan fiction. [22] In a review of the first three episodes, Dan Barnett of the UK-Anime Network gave the series 7 out of 10 claiming that: Cute High Earth Defence Club Love is a series that has the potential to be a bit of a success if they play their cards must. The series is undeniably hilarious as the characters take everything around them seriously, and sexual insomany flies around so much that it is impossible to keep a straight face. The pains that the wombat must go through to try to avoid being embraced by Yumoto are fantastically funny too! What could hold him back, though is that three episodes in there is little evidence of a plot other than the standard bog bad guys make the monster of the week fare that is typical of gender. ... It's a complicated walking line where the series wants to keep as wide an audience as possible, although there are certainly fans around who will pick up another happy-up pretty-boy series to fill the void left by the loose.
