2001 film by Dennie Gordon Joe DirtTheatrical release posterDirected by Dennie GordonProduced by Robert SimondsWritten by DavidDavid Spade Fred WolfStarring David Spade Dennis Miller Brittany Daniel Christopher Walken Music byWaddy WachtelCinematographyJohn R. LeonettiEdited byPeck PriorProductioncompany Columbia Pictures Happy Madison Productions Robert Simonds ProductionsDistributed bySony Pictures Release Relea Miller, Christopher Walken, Adam Beach, Brian Thompson, Brittany Daniel, Jaime Pressly, Erik Per Sullivan and Kid Rock. The film is written by Spade and Fred Wolf, and produced by Robert Simonds. [3] The plot revolves around a white trash young man, Joe Dirt, who at first seems to be a loser, a failure, an antihero. As he travels in search of his parents, his finer qualities are increasingly revealed. He ends up with a new family of close friends, people he has helped and who respect him. Critical reception was mostly negative, but the film was a modest financial success. The film has a cool fan base. A sequel, Joe Dirt 2: Beautiful Loser, premiered on Crackle on 16 September 2016. Plot Joe Dirt is the janitor at a Los Angeles radio station. A producer drags him into the studio to talk live on air with a famous record jockey, shock jock Zander Kelly. Joe tells his life story. As a baby, he had a mullet wig installed because the top of the skull had never formed. At the age of 8, he was left behind by his parents and sister in the Grand Canyon. He doesn't know his real last name. Having grown up in a number of foster homes and traveled on the road as a child while camping in the woods, Joe came to Silvertown, a small town in the Pacific Northwest, where he met the beautiful Brandy and her dog, Charlie, and became a target of jealousy from Robby, the city's bully. After Brandy's alcoholic father shoots Charlie dead, Joe decides to try to find his parents. He strikes up a friendship with a skin cannibal named Buffalo Bob. This gives him unwanted attention from the media, but helps his search. He travels to Louisiana and works as a janitor in high school with Clem Doore, a former NYC gangster on the Witness Protection Program, with whom he becomes good friends. Joe discovers the address of his old family home and travels to Baton Rouge. Both Zander and the radio audience listen to Joe's story, and basically find him an object of mockery, but Joe's kindness and optimistic outlook on life, as well as his good-natured self-deprecation, win them over. In the end, Joe lands the janitor job on in Los Angeles, where he how, after discovering his old home vacant and his parents long gone, he gives up the search and returns to Silvertown to be with Brandy. Robby informs him, however, that Brandy found Joe's parents, but instructed Robby not to tell Joe. Robby shows a note from Brandy to prove it. Zander hears this and calls Brandy found Joe's parents, but instructed Robby not to tell Joe. Robby shows a note from Brandy saying she wanted to tell Joe personally but never had the opportunity. Brandy tells Joe that his parents were killed the day they were in the Grand Canyon; She's begging Joe to go back to Silvertown. Joe gets upset by the news in Los Angeles. Joe is unaware that he has become a media sensation, but he quickly discovers his newfound fame. An appearance on TRL with Carson Daly results in a phone call from a woman claiming to be Joe's mother. Joe realizes that she is actually his mother and finds his parents' current house, where he and the media discover that his parents intentionally left him in the Grand Canyon, and that they only connected with him to take advantage of his newfound publicity so that they can increase sales of clown characters. Angry and sad, Joe storms out, cutting ties with his parents. Joe intends to commit suicide, but Brandy shows up and says she only told him his parents were dead to protect him from their greed. She invites Joe to come home with her and tell her he was home all the time. Before Joe can get down from the edge, he suffers a head injury in a freak accident when a police officer tries to prevent him from falling using a rope. Joe wakes up in Brandy's house, surrounded by his friends: Brandy, Kicking Wing (who now owns 30 successful fireworks stands), Clem (now renamed Gert B. Frobe) and Charlene (another friend who is engaged to Doore). Brandy got Joe a new rastafarian dreadlock wig after his head surgery. Brandy has picked up Joe's Hemi, and she has a new dog like Charlie's father. Robby drives up and tells Joe that no one wants him in Silvertown, no matter how famous he is. Clem threatens Robby, and Charlene insults Robby's car. They all realize they're like joe's family. They ride off, leaving a frustrated Robby in the dust, his windshield destroyed by the stones thrown up by Joe's car. As they drive away, Zander plays a song for Joe on the radio, and fireworks go off in the sky (with special thanks to the Kicking Wing). [2] Critical response Metacritic, the film has a rating of 20/100 based on reviews from 26 critics, indicating generally unfavorable reviews. [5] On Rotten Tomatoes, the film has a 10% rating based on 77 reviews with an average rating of 3.02/10. The site's consensus reads: If you fall within the target audience of Joe Dirt, you may find it funny. Otherwise, the jokes will seem like a tired retread. [6] The audience surveyed by CinemaScore gave the film a class B. [7] Ebert and Roeper both gave the film a thumbs down. Richard Roeper criticized the film for being too predictable and strained, saying the radio station's story was absurd. Roger Ebert agreed, but praised Spade for taking on a different role than he is usually associated with, adding that Spade's performance was compelling, despite the film's other shortcomings. [8] Ebert included Joe Dirt as one of his most hated films of all time category alleged comedies, saying that What movies, including Joe Dirt, often do not understand is that the action action Being buried in shit is not in itself funny. [9] The second verse of Weird Al Yankovic's Close but No Cigar from the album Straight Outta Lynwood contains the lyrics I thought after all these years of looking around, I had found my soulmate in the end/But one day I found out that she actually owned a copy of Joe Dirt on DVD. In early 2010, Spade worked with a pilot with TBS for an animated series based on the film. The seguel: Joe Dirt 2: Beautiful Loser In 2014, Spade revealed in a Reddit guestion that he was writing a seguel to Joe Dirt for Crackle. [11] Entertainment Weekly has noted that the film is the first made for digital sequel. [12] Filming of the sequel began on 17 May 1945. The film was released in July 2015 and received generally negative reviews. [15] References ^ Joe Dirt (2001). IMDb.com. Drew Barrymore, Rob Schneider, Sean Astin, Blake Clark and Dan Aykroyd, It follows the story of Henry, a womanizing marine veterinarian who falls for an art teacher named Lucy. When he discovers that she has a presemental amnesia and forgets him a day later, he decides to win her again every new day. Most of the film was filmed at the site in Oahu, Hawaii on the Windward side and the North Shore. Sandler and Barrymore won an MTV award for Best Team on Screen. The fictional amnesia suffered by Barrymore's character, Goldfield's Syndrome, is similar to short-term amnesia and anterograde amnesia. 50 First Dates inspired a number of international remakes, including the 2014 Malayalam film Ormayundo Ee Mukham, the Telugu film Sathyabhama from 2007, and the Japanese film First Fifty Kisses [yes] from 2018. His closest friends are Ula, a marijuana-smoking Islander; his assistant Alexa, whose sexuality and gender are unclear; Willy, his pet African penguin and Jocko, a walrus. Henry's boat breaks down, so he goes to Hukilau Café to wait for the Coast Guard. He sees Lucy Whitmore making architectural art with her waffles. Henry assumes that she is a local, which prevents him from introducing himself, but the next day he comes back and serves breakfast with her. Lucy asks to see him again in the morning. The next day, Lucy and her father Marlin went up to the North Shore to pick a pineapple for their birthday. On the way back, a car accident left Lucy with anterograde amnesia. To save her heartache by reliving the accident, Marlin and Doug, Lucy's feelings, At her house, Marlin and Doug Henry pray to leave Lucy alone. Henry begins to conclude ways to bump into Lucy over the following days. Marlin and Doug find out because Lucy for breakfast, she notices a police officer writing a ticket to her expired records. Lucy tries to claim that they have not yet expired, taking a newspaper to prove herself, but sees that the date on all the newspapers is not October as she thought, and Marlin and Doug are forced to admit their ruse when she confronts them. Henry comes up with an idea to make a video explaining Lucy her misfortune and their relationship, and plays it every morning for her. She looked at the tape and is injured, but eventually she comes to her senses and she is able to spend the day continuing where the tape says she left off. She spends more time with Henry and goes to see some of her old friends. One night Henry sleeps with Lucy, and the next morning she wakes up screaming, due to having no memory of him and knocking him out. Later that day, Lucy decides to completely erase Henry from his life after learning of Henry's decision not to take a sailing trip to Bristol Bay to study walrus, something he had planned for the past 10 years. Henry reluctantly helps her destroy the diary entries in their relationship. A few weeks later, Henry prepares to go sailing. Before he leaves, Marlin tells him that Lucy now lives in the institute and teaches an art class. As a parting gift, he gives Henry a Beach Boys CD. As he listens to the CD, Henry becomes emotional and curses Marlin for giving him the CD and making him feel so emotional. He soon realizes that Lucy would sing It wouldn't be nice in days that she met him and assumes that she doesn't remember him, but that she dreams of him every night. They reconcile. Some time later, Lucy wakes up and plays the band labeled Good Morning Lucy. It reminds her again of the accident, but ends with her and Henry's wedding. From the tape, Henry says to put a jacket on and come and have breakfast when she's ready. Lucy then sees that she is on Henry's boat, which eventually made it to Alaska. She goes up on deck and meets Marlin, Henry and their young daughter Nicole. Cast Adam Sandler as Henry Roth, a marine veterinarian with a habit of wooing women and a fear of engagement Drew Barrymore as Lucy Whitmore, Henry's love interest with short-term amnesia Rob Schneider as Ula, Henry's marijuana-smoking, wealthy native Hawaiian assistant and best friend; He is unhappily married to an overweight native woman and has five young, athletically talented children Sean Astin as Doug Whitmore, Lucy's widowed father, a professional fisherman Lusia Strus as Alexa, Henry's ambiguous sex assistant Dan Avkrovd as Dr. Joseph Keats, a doctor in brain diseases Amy Hill as Sue, Hukilau café manager and friend of Lucy and her late mother Pomaika'i Brown as Nick, Hukilau café manager and friend of Lucy and her late mother Pomaika'i Brown as Nick, Hukilau café chef Allen Covert as Ten-Second Tom, a hospital patient with severe memory impairment Missi Pyle as Noreen, a tax lawyer Henry meets at a bar, but then tries to fix up with Alexa Maya Rudolph as Stacy, pregnant friend of Lucy at the beach party Lynn Collins as Linda Kevin James as Factory worker Production 50 Dates First marked the second time Adam Sandler and Drew Barrymore (both pictured in 2014) have appeared together since The Wedding Singer. On October 29, 2002, Variety reported that Columbia Pictures had purchased a spec script from screenwriter George Wing, titled Fifty First Kisses, starring Adam Sandler and Drew Barrymore. [2] Barrymore was sold on the script and wrote Sandler a letter suggesting it as their next film together since The Wedding Singer. [3] Sandler joined the cast in December 2002, and was announced as a co-producer at his film studio Happy Madison Productions along with Steve Golin's Anonymous Content. [4] Sandler the production at Anger Management. Segal agreed to direct, leaving him with just a two-day break from work before filming. [3] The director revealed that the studio had changed the original title to 50 First Dates because marketing found that the concept of kisses was to turn off the guys. [5] While the script is primarily credited to George Wing, lowell Ganz, Babaloo Mandel, Tim Herlihy, and Allen Covert did uncredited rewrites on it too. [6] Adam Sandler had also reworked the script, transforming the genre considerably from drama to comedy. [7] Further changes Sandler made to the script include moving the setting from Seattle to Hawaii and rewriting a decent amount of interior scenes taking place in a café. Director Peter Segal felt that these scenes were very claustrophobic as well as the derivative of My Dinner with Others, and encouraged Sandler to rewrite these and move the location to Kualoa Ranch. [5] Sandler said shooting in Hawaii just seemed like the very best possible place to do it for a variety of reasons. You don't see a lot of movies [put] there, so it was a great experience to film in another place. And it's such a spectacularly beautiful place for a romantic comedy. [8] Most of the film was filmed at the site in Kaneohe, Ka'aăawa, Wahiawa, Makapu, Waimānalo and Honolulu, as well as in Kānéohe Bay in 2003. Due to the high cost of filming outside the studio zone, some interior scenes (for example, inside the Whitmore was shot on set in Los Angeles carefully decorated to look like they were in Hawaii. The site's consensus says: Gross-out humor overwhelms the simple chemistry between Adam Sandler and Drew Barrymore, which brings some energy and yucks to this story about a girl with short-term amnesia and the guy who tries to make her love him. [11] At Metacritic, the film has a score of 48% based on 38 reviews, indicating mixed or average reviews, indicating mixed or average reviews, [12] The audience surveyed by CinemaScore gave the film a Class A, on a scale ranging from A to F.[13] Critics who liked the film (like The New York Times reviewer A. O. Scott) praised the uplifting story while lamenting the seemingly excessive and unreasonable amount of raw humor and drug references, [14] Roger Ebert gave it three out of four stars, saving that The film is a kind of experiment for Sandler. He reveals the warm side of his personality, leaving behind the hostility, the mind and the ugly humour. The film does not have the complexity and depth of Groundhog Day ... but as entertainment it is ingratiating and lovable. Rex Reed was more negative in his review for The New York Observer, calling the film stupid, rough and despicable while singing out offensive humor about brain damage. The two actors, who had previously worked together in the film The Wedding Singer, are said to consider 50 First Dates as one of their favourite collaborations of amnesia in film, clinical neuropsychologist Sallie Baxendale writes that 50 First Dates maintains a venerable film tradition of portraying a memory syndrome that has no relation to any known neurological or psychiatric condition. [18] In 2010, researchers described a woman who developed the type of memory impairment after she was involved in a car accident. She described that her memory was normal for events on the same day, and that the memories for the previous day were lost. However, a neuropsychological test showed some improvement in recall for tasks that she had unknowingly performed the day before. Although the woman claimed not to have seen 50 First Dates before the accident in 2005 (but has seen it several times since), she stated that Drew Barrymore was her favourite actress, leading to conclude that her condition may have been affected by some knowledge of the film's plot, and its impact on her understanding of amnesia, [19] Likewise, in the Truman Show delusion, patients believe they live inside a reality TV show, as in the 1998 film The Truman Show. In July 2015, two people were discovered to have some form of anterograd amnesia similar to the one depicted in the film. One is a man in the UK, originally from Germany. He wakes up every day thinking it's March 14, 2005, because it's the day he underwent anesthesia for a dentistry that led to this condition as a rare, unexplained complication (but his anterograde amnesia, like others with the condition, makes him forget the facts not daily, but within 90 minutes). The other is a woman who reportedly thinks every day is 15. She used to be a pub manager and was visiting Kettering General Hospital for a kickboxing injury when she slipped and hit her head on a metal pole. [21] Clive Wearing, a British man whose long-term memory centers were destroyed from a viral infection of the brain caused by the herpes virus, has some form of this memory loss. Real World Application The Hebrew Home of Riverdale, Bronx has started an experimental program in which residents with early dementia watch a video every morning in which they see comforting messages and reminders from family members that they still know. After April 2015, the program may include more residents. Robert Abrams of NewYork-Presbyterian Hospital considered this idea both innovative and thoughtful. Charlotte Dell, director of social services for the home, said the program was inspired by 50 First Dates. [23] References ^ a b «50 First Dates». Numbers. Retrieved 1 October 2014.
