

I'm not robot  reCAPTCHA

Continue

The deed of paksenarrion map

The legend of Paksenarrion oath Fealty. Del Rey, March 2010 ISBN: 978-0-345-50874-4 (0-345-50874-2) eBook: 978-0-345-51899-6 (0-345-51899-3) Kings of the North. Del Rey, March 2011. ISBN: 978-0-345-50875-1 eBook: 978-0-345-52479-9 Echoes of Betrayal. Del Rey, February 2012. ISBN: 978-0-345-50876-8 eBook: 978-0-345-52481-2 Power Limits. Del Rey, June 2013. ISBN: 978-0-345-53306-7 eBook: 978-0-345-53307-4 Crown Recovery. Del Rey, May 2014 ISBN: 978-0-345-53309-8 eBook ISBN: 978-0-345-53310-4 Acts of Honor. Ebook. 2014 eBook ISBN: 978-1-625-67112-7 POD Store Paperback ISBN: 978-1-625-67114-1 Omnibus Edition: A Legacy of Honor. Orbit UK, 2010. (combines Surrender None and Liae's Oath). ISBN 9781841498539 Sheepfarmer Daughter. Baen Books, June 1988. ISBN 0-671-65416-0 Split Allegiance. Baen Books, October 1988. ISBN 0-671-69786-2 Oath of Gold. Baen Books, Január 1989. ISBN 0-671-69798-6 Surrender None. Baen Books, June 1990. ISBN 0-671-69878-8 Liar oath. Baen Books, May 1992. ISBN 0-671-72117-8 Omnibus edition: Deed Paksenarrion. Baen Books, February 1992. (combines Sheepfarmer's daughter, divided allegiance, and oath of gold). ISBN 0-671-72104-6 UK edition, Little, Brown UK, February 2010. ISBN: 9781841498546 This book is also available through the Baen Websubscription program: How to Use Websubscription for Download with Kindle: Omnibus Edition: Legacy gird. Baen Books, 1996 (combines Surrender None and Liar Oath). ISBN 0-671-87747-X Omnibus Edition: A Legacy of Honor. Orbit UK, November 2010. (combines Surrender None and Liae's Oath). ISBN 9781841498539 References to Elizabeth Moon's books: Amazon.com Barnes & Noble Powell's Books Indiebound Paksworld website Paksworld blog In Oath of Fealty, book one of Paladin's Legacy, two neighboring realms get each a new king -- and both face kings of personal danger and social unrest. An estranged daughter must take over her family's realm and send her evil adult relatives to prison-- or face treason charges. And the former mercenary captain inherits the whole society. Assassinations, plots, brigades, wars and rumors of war ... never ends? March 2010 Kings of the North Restless lies head ... Young King Mikeli of Tsai, who has survived several attempts on his life, now faces potential danger from abroad as well as ongoing threats within his own kingdom. Although he awarded Dorrin Verrakai the title of Duke, everything in his past warns him not to trust Verrakai magelord ... and yet he is the only gentleman with military experience. The mysterious crown she brought him as a gift may instead be a curse. King Kieri of Lyonya, older and more experienced in war, is under pressure to find a woman and produce an heir, while his subjects ignore what he sees as greater The relationship between elves and people, in this dual-ruled kingdom, has deteriorated and his own elven grandmother will not help him heal, the economy is failing, and across a large river states pargun, a constant threat. King Torfinn of Pargun is plagued by both treacherous relatives who want to usurp his throne, and a rebellious daughter who wants to exorcise the duties of a princess. And now Lyonya-- whom he didn't see as a threat before -- has a duke like his new king, who fought and defeated Pargu's troops in Tsai. With enemies on two sides, in the west and south, as well as conspiracies and treason inside, what can he do to protect his people? March 2011 Echoes of Betrayal When Paksenarrion told the Thieves' Guild enforcer that maybe Gird had a plan for him and the Thieves Guild, Arvid Semminson thought it was a joke. He took over the Guildhouse leadership in Vérella and--in the previous book-- at least he pretended to be turning over a new letter to -- he said himself -- to protect the thieves who survived the winnowing. But he had old enemies there and elsewhere who found a way to sabotage him. Only Gird's help can survive-- and those who ask for help will not only get it, but have to pay the price. Exactly what Gird's plan for Arvid might be, he doesn't know -- but he'll start to figure out what the price is. King Kieri knows that Lyonya is no longer in danger of fire, an unrelenting fire dragonspawn, and his elven grandmother, Lady of the Ladysforest, gave her permission for him to marry. If he can beat the Pargu attackers-- certainly only human units-- Lyonya will be safe. But on Midwinter Night, he is lured out of the Royal Ossuary and confronted with an ancient betrayal that may keep him from fulfilling his destiny. Dorrin Duke Verrakai, meanwhile, in her role as Constable Tsai, faces her toughest challenge yet when a member of the Royal Estate exhibits one talent Tsaian Law will not tolerate while under her guardianship. The royal family itself is hiding a source of treason that no one has ever known before. February 2012 Limits of power The unthinkable occurred in the kingdom of Lyonya. Queen Elves--known as the Lady-- is dead, murdered by former elves twisted by dark powers. Now lady half-elven's grandson must heal the mistrust between the elf and the man as their enemies strike again. Yet as they try to prepare for the attack, an even greater threat looms in the eight kingdoms. Across the North, magic is re-emerging after centuries of absence, appearing without warning in the family of the family-rich and poor. In some areas, religious strictures against magery remain in place, and fanatical followers are stamping out magery by killing whoever displays the most subtle sign of it - even children. And as the unrest spreads, one very determined traitor works to unseal any effort it doesn't matter how many lives it costs. With the future hanging in the balance, it's just the dedication of a few resolute heroes who can turn the tide... if they can survive. June 2013 Crown restoration In this final volume of Paladin heritage, overlapping crisis plagued the empire after the empire. The revival of geeks among those who do not have a family history reveals the weaknesses of the Gird community in Fintha and Tsaia and leads to the Civil War in Fintha. No one understands why magery is now emerging-- what caused it, who's responsible, how it can be stopped-- or how society can change to live with it. The invasion of Iynisin, those ancient Elven traitors, led the master of western elves to demand that someone-- someone man-- wake up the enchanted magelords in Colombia and remove them so that the dragon could remake the stone and imprison Iynisin once more. He insists that the person who charmed them is now alive.but how could a man live for centuries? In the South, the Duke of Immer is planning another year of the terror campaign, confident of his power to rule over everyone with the help of a powerful secret ally. Iynisin is on trial in Tsaii, with the intention of stealing the royal regalia Dorrin Verrakai found and gave the king disastrous results for the royal's own family. And in Lyon, the remnants of ladysforest elves include a traitor determined to destroy King Kieri and his family. Across all the country's north and south, the unusual drought begins with what may be the same destruction that fell on Old Aare, turning once green and fertile soil into desert rocks and sand. Who will survive these crises and what sacrifices will they make? Paksenarrion Paksenarrion Dorthansdotter, the stubborn daughter of a sheep farmer on the northern edge of the kingdom, dreams of being a hero of legend, fame and magical swords and great deeds. When her father tells her she has to marry a neighbor's son, she fled the house to join the mercenary society her cousin told her about. But military life and war are nothing like her dreams... yet he sticks to his duties and his dreams. In the end, she pays a price that requires heroism and becomes a paladin who will save the kingdom ... but the journey is longer and darker than you ever imagined. She must face and overcome her strengths as well as her weaknesses... and redeemed her triumph more than herself. Originally written as one long story, it was divided into three for practical reasons when it was first published. Sheepfarmer's daughter takes her off the farm over three combat seasons as a mercenary in the company of Duke Phelana. The divided allegiance describes her departure from Phetian and her training to become a Gird paladin.... path that ends in disaster. The Oath of Gold completes her story of recovery and redemption. Sheepfarmer's daughter was the 1989 Compton Crook Award winner. Legacy of Gird - Baen A legacy of honor - Orbit UK Gird, patron saint of warriors in The Deed of Paksenarrion, was once the man around whom legends grew. Poverty, hunger, fear and anger shaped this future leader, whose weakness for drinking almost ended his cause-- and his life. But his love for his people and his innate hunger for justice make him worthy of legend. Two books, Surrender None and Liae's Oath, chronicles the life of the founder of the Gird community - the dominant religion in Tsaia and Fintha on Paksenarrion Day, and the beginnings of this friendship. Surrender None Hero-Saint Gird, patron of the Gird Community, was known only through scattered texts and traditions paksenarrion day. In those stories, Gird was an honest, brave, kind, hardworking peasant who stood up to cruel magelords and freed his people from oppression. He wrote the Gird Code, eliminating injustice, and gave up his life for his people by fighting off the magical monster, dying even when he died. The real Gird was really a peasant who led his people to freedom from oppression - but he was also a hefty and complicated man whose great virtues were paired with big groin. A liar's oath during the war, Gird took in a refugee who soon became known as Gird's luap (luap is a word for an assistant or army officer who wasn't in the chain of command.) Luap, as he was eventually called, was in fact the son of a former king. Although he was cast off when his father sired a legitimate heir, Luap believed that he inherited the ability to govern... if not the kingdom of his father, then one of his own, somewhere. But his basic dishonesty, his inability to face the truth about himself, doomed him and his followers, and set the Gird community on a path very different from that Gird would have chosen. Selected.

