* (Halloween countdown #9) 'The Grand Grimoire is often considered one of the most potent grimoires to exist. Many sources claim that this grimoire was written in 1520, and was later found in certain 'Solomon Tombs' in 1750. Furthermore, the grimoire is said to have been written either in the Hebrew Bible or Aramaic. The supposed relationship with the King of the Solomon Bible, and the ancient language it is rumoured to have been written, will of course boost Grand Grimoire's reputation as a powerful magic book. 'Grand Grimoire consists of four sections, and is supposedly stored in the Vatican's Secret Archive. According to the legend, the Grand Grimoire was written by the Honorius of Thebes, which is said to have belonged to the devil. The magic manuscript is said to contain a magic spell, as well as a detailed account of how the newly elected pope was slowly damaged, and then won by the power of the Devil. 'One of the most famous content on The Grand Grimoire, however, is the instruction that supposedly would allow someone to call Lucifer or Lucifuge Rofocale. One of the instruments needed for this ritual was the Explosive Rod, which will be used to sniff Lucifer into submission as soon as he was ejected. After this, an agreement with the Devil can be made. Thus, Grand Grimoire also contains a section entitled Genuine Sanctum Regnum, or the True Method of Making Alliances. Among other things, the person who carries out this ceremony requires a rock called Ematille, and two blessed candles, both of which will be used to form the Alliance Triangle, so that he/she can be protected from the so-called spirits. 'While the original Grand Grimoire (or its copy) was held in the Vatican's Secret Archives, its version was produced in the 18th century, when there was a boom in the production of cheap grimoires in France. This version of grand Grimoire was first published in the 19th century, and spread to the different colonies that were at the time. As a result, the Grand Grimoire is still widely used in Caribbean countries that were once part of the French colonial empire, in particular, Haiti, where it was referred to as 'Le Veritable Dragon Rouge'. 'Not surprisingly, Grand Grimoire is still widely used by voodoo practitioners in Haiti. Oh, the book is also rumoured to be bad to fire.' - ancient-origins.net ___ Further @ Wikipedia @ Goodreads Gospel Satan: Grand Grimoire is One of the Medieval Creepiest Manuscripts Out There! @Le paranormal blog d' @Grimoire Encyclopedia What qualifications might someone have to see The Grand Grimoire in the Vatican's Secret Archive? Start by forming a circle with the skin of the child you will nail with four nails, then with the Blood Stone you will make a triangle inside the circle, starting from the growing direction of the sun; make also with Bloodstone four letters written outside the circle. So also the name of Jesus this way: between two crosses so spirits cannot harm you from behind. Following that, Karcist (who is the operator) will let his colleagues into the Triangle and he will also enter without letting himself become afraid of any noise that can be heard, putting both a candle holder with two garland vervains to the right and to the left of the inner triangle. That done, light both the candles and put a new vase in front of you, that is, in front of Karcist, filled with the wooden ash Willow that you had burned at the beginning of the same day. Karcist will light it up and pour part of the Water Spirit and part of incense and Camfor, and conserved the remaining parts to maintain a constant fire that will be sufficient for the entire operation. Yes, Honda's work with Kurosawa is such an interesting and surprise, at least in shallow theory.  Tosh Berman, Hi, Tosh. My LA pad was at the base of the hill above that sat the Observatory, so that strange corner welcomed my arrival and arrival, like the facials of Ennis Brown's house. I did my polling thing too, and maybe his scum and enabler lost by a huge margin soon. Honda movies delight basically to one. It's nice to see you, sir.  Sypha, A Champagne + DC mindmeld! An awesome Soliloquy there for which I bow and thank you good. Have you ever seen 'Godzilla vs. Smog Monster'? It's not a Honda movie, but it's kind of a weird infidel and a great kind too.  _Black_Acrylic, Ah, but the films are finally like wacky, friendly families seem fun. Dry about the death of the writing group. I don't think there's any reason to get together stragglers who still want that sort of thing and do your own spin-off version?  Danielle, Hi, Danielle! Hang your way in there and stay tough as nails, and others xoxo, Dennis.  Brian O'Connell, Hi. Real! Well your weekend is nice and even melodramatically bleak because it has mother is fatal to him. Interesting about your past with writing. That's like me with visual art. I used to do painting and drawing and making bad Super8 movies when I was younger, but that's fine, which was never very rich and big to start with, just dry. Readers and writers are the same, I think. It's all about what writing does to you, whether you enter it or remove it. I'm pretty good. Parc Asterix is very enjoyable. They did Halloween well, especially given that it is still a new form to France. There is also one really weird, handsome, big haunted house using 3D glasses and tons of cheap florescent paint and black lights and so honestly quite unintentional. And some other ambitious and intelligent haunted houses do and the meaning is good even if they are not great enough. And, you know, roller coasters and all that. However, it is made for a much-needed, adrenaline-chairing day. The highlight of the weekend otherwise works-y, to be sure. Is today special in any respect at your end? Enjoy the amount.  Steve Erickson, Hi. Ah, weird, interesting: your yacht comes to life. I guess if ever there was a time people would fall for that stuff, this poisoned conspiracy theory is time. Kan.  Right. The Halloween festival continues on the blog courtesy of today's attention on an evil, evil book. Be careful. And see you tomorrow. Tomorrow.
