I'm going to go biscuits are a perfect combination of sweets and savory and ready in less than 60 seconds. For grabs and go for breakfast from the freezer they are a good choice. Reading the package in the store seems too good to be true; 45 seconds from the box to the microwave to the abdomen. For those curry eyes in the mornings, where only salty and sweet will be enough – the undeniable amount of these frozen sausage biscuits is undeniable. Several fast food chains offer similar products, but you can have those in your freezer without having to put on pants – you know what day I'm talking about. How do they stack up? Surprisingly good! The first taste is a surprisingly sweet candiability of doughnuts, which in turn quickly joins the salty savory. The sweet and spicy mix is quite pleasant, although for me, they are so little sweet. I've only cooked them in the microwave, and they're true to the packaging. I cook them for 75 seconds rather than the recommended 45 seconds, as my microwave is older. As you might expect, they are a little more smoothed and claggy cooked using this method. I'm sure you can get much better results using the oven cooking method (see below, you need to defrost biscuits first). The biggest negative for these biscuits is, as you would expect, nutrition (see below). Nothing with so much taste comes at no cost. Here this price is 330 calories per serving of two biscuits, with a total of almost half of the saturated fat for your day. Of course, as part of a balanced diet and time to treat time, they are very good. I think I'll always have a few on hand for this Sunday morning from hell. Tennessee pride of sausage and butter biscuits – what's in the box? In this particular package of the product, inside the carton come 12 biscuits, packed two on a plastic bag. Two are perfect for breakfast. Tennessee pride of sausage and buttermilk biscuits - what's in Odom's Tennessee box of sausage and buttermilk biscuits - what's the fair price? I paid $5.49 for this box of 12 biscuits. Given that I'll probably eat them slowly over time, 2 for breakfast when I need a concussion to start my day, it works out to 92 with breakfast. I'll take this every day, especially when compared to equivalent fast food prices. These are the best biscuits and sausage and buttermilk biscuits fresh from the microwave. and bathe in the morning light ☺ Tennessee pride of Odom and butter biscuits - boiled and gilded Tennessee pride of sausage and buttermilk biscuits - near Odom's cross-section Odom" Tennessee Pride sausage and buttermilk biscuits cooking instructions for Tennessee Pride of Sausage and Buttermilk Biscuits - cooking instructions Odom's Tennessee pride sausage and buttermilk biscuits meal Tennessee Pry sausage and buttermilk biscuits ingredients - feeding and ingredients of Odom Tennessee Prime sausages and buttermilk biscuits packaging Tennessee Pig sausages and buttermilk biscuits - pack front of Odom Tennessee Prime sausages and buttermilk biscuits - packing party Odom Tennesi Sausages Pride and Buttermilk Tennessee and Buttermilk Cookies - more packaging The microwave is in a microwave.
