It makes guh (hard g - /g / sound) as in a garden or dog or main (soft g - /j / sound) as in a graph that sounds like G is formed, which is part of the 'gh' digraph that can create a hard sound with your fingers, soft sounds like changes, or combined sounds (most common) as in songs. The difference in this pronunciation is minor, but important (to see why, try pronunciation as you would finger it). G is sometimes silent, as in gnat or gnaw. Sometimes there is a soft sound /j/ (as in a gem or giraffe) when G follows with an 'e' or 'i'. Activities are organized from easiest to most difficult. Depending on your child's comfort level, only the part can be reached through the activity! Letter Recognition Activity Sheet: Poetry -- Circle capital letter G, lowercase letter g.
