Overseas Haven Reports, Spain Our Overseas Haven Report on Santander, Spain has a destination of simplicity, cleanliness, friendly people, and a real look at Spanish living. With its magnificent views of the Bay of Santander, it is not surprising that Santander, a small but lively and interesting city on Spain's Atlantic coast, is rightly proud to be a member of the most beautiful bays of the world club. Located on the Costa Verde or Green Coast, so-called thanks to its lush greenery-Santander is built on a series of hills overlooking the Bay of Biscay. It is largely a modern city that was rebuilt in 1941 after a large fire. Almost the entire Old Town was destroyed, but what emerged was a beautiful town built along an accessible and beautiful promenade with several white sandy beaches. That modernity is really summed up by the moving sidewalks that climb between the residential areas. This used to be the haunt of Spanish royalty, and much of the architecture reflects the glamour and riches of the long relationship endowed with the Royal Palace and courtiers' homes along the seafront, a ritzy casino, and very well-maintained parks and beaches. This is not a warm place; In fact, it has a humid, mild, and Atlantic climate, with fairly constant average winter temperatures between 46°F to 53°F, while summers rarely go above 86°F. On the plus side it is rare for snow to fall, but it does rain-expect some every month and most (up to 7 inches) in November. If you like the outdoors, sports, and a four-season, temperate climate, you will enjoy Santander and the beautiful scenery that surrounds the city and its immediate environment. There's enough to keep culture vultures happy, but if you get tired of what's on offer, it's a short trip to Bilbao or Madrid for a weekend to stock up on the latest exhibitions and exhibitions. $9.95 Overseas Haven Reports, Spain Our Overseas Haven Report on Santander, Spain has a destination of simplicity, cleanliness, friendly people, and a real look at Spanish living. Thanks This article has been sent to Sorry people go through pricing without seeing lousy customer service price rises hastily as your time gets offended on. 1) I signed up for an internet and TV bundle. Was promised my second TV would be free via their app which I could download on my Roku device. Turned out that's not true. Was then told other TV required another box from them at 120 dollars! 2) Was charged $10 more for my bundle than agreed. Went around and around with customer service and got nowhere. Was told that's the way it is. I decided to cancel after spending hours on ice just to get reps in the wrong department and no assistance.3) I interrupted and joined Hulu. Best moves I could have made because they have customer service so I don't spend hundreds of dollars of my time wasting it on customer service. So the real price is not really what is on the bill. It is a function of how much time and deterioration occurs with your service.4) But wait did I say that I With AT & amp; T it's never over. My bill was and the installation fee is refunded. A week after I canceled with the retention department, I was told I wasn't canceling. Maybe it was a figment of my work. So I canceled a second time and this time I received an email cancellation and refund of my TV installation fee. I was told by a rep earlier the charge was for internet and NOT TV. Did I mention many of the reps just make up answers to get you off the phone?5) But wait did I say I canceled? Well never say never. More than three weeks after I returned my box and two weeks after they received it they sent me an email saying they didn't get the box and would charge my credit card $120.00. I'll call them back and talk to three departments, including the presidents' office. Although they have received the confirmation number they need to investigate so one month after the cancellation, the case is still not closed. 6) So when you read reviews of the services and pricing offered take it with a grain of salt. If you are not depleted pricing does not matter. Your time, energy and reason do. If you insist on signing up despite being warned be sure to document all transactions, conversations and SAVE receipts! You need them. It is, of course, an impossible question to answer, so let's break it down into a few categories. First up, Spain's best cities. 01 of 06 Damian Corrigan Spain's best museums, some day trips, shopping, great nightlife and so much more. It may not have the wow factor that Barcelona has, but you will never get bored in Madrid. For, Barcelona! Does Spain's most famous city need an introduction? Gaudi architecture, the Gothic Quarter, a burgeoning craft beer scene and so much more. Jewel of Andalusia. The sound of flamenco floats out from the balconies as you sit and eat tapas in the famous Barrio Santa Cruz. Two things: Alhambra and Spain's best tapas culture, where you get a tapas with every drink, for free! Spain's best beach town, San Sebastian turned pintxos (Basque tapas) into high art. Continue to 2 of 6 below. 02 of 06 Damian Corrigan Cities are great, but if you're not after a city break, you'll prefer to choose your destination based on how the region is. Seville, Granada, and Cordoba are all in Andalusia. Add that sherry from Jerez, the beautiful town of Cadiz, and pueblos blancos (white villages) like Ronda and you never have to leave the region! Stretching into the nearby regions of Castilla-La Mancha and Castilla y Leon, you have Segovia, Toledo, Consuegra and Avila all one day trip from Madrid. Explore some of Spain's best small towns and be back in time for tapas. San Sebastian and Bilbao are the major cities here. But add to that some great surfing, excellent wines (both in the Basque Country and a day trip away in La Rioja) and you have something absolutely amazing. Simply by being home to Barcelona, Catalonia guarantees a place on this list. But add in Figueres, with its Dalí Museum, Montserrat mountain and pyrenees and you have a region well worth exploring. Green, green Spain! Home to Santiago de Compostela (to which thousands of pilgrims each year walk 800 miles on the Camino de Santiago. Continue to 3 of 6 below. 03 of 06 Damian Corrigan How do you complete your trip to Spain? If it's your first trip to the country, you can't say you've been to Spain until you've done these things: Tapas is not a type of food but a way to eat it: Small portions, normally accompanied by a drink. After that - there are no rules! In some cities tapas are given away for free with each drink, in others the food looks more like molecular gastronomy than a bar snack. Where? Seville, Granada, or San Sebastian. Flamenco is not a dance. It is a complete art form that involves singing, guitar, hand clapping. and, sometimes, dancing. Some might say flamenco has the power and sense of opera, melancholy of blues, and the rawness of punk. You don't know what flamenco is until you see it. Where? Preferably Seville or Granada, but Madrid or Barcelona have some great shows as well. Catalan modernism is a Spain's Art Nouveau, a fine de siecle art movement best observed in the fascinating architecture of Barcelona. Where? Barcelona The Museo del Prado, the Reina and Thyssen-Bornemisza are three of the best art museums in Spain, no, in the world, and they are all within steps of each other. Where? Madrid Tomatina, Pamplona Bull's Run, Las Fallas... Spain has a variety of famous festivals, as well as hundreds of smaller fiestas (virtually every village has one a year). Where? Across the country Continue to 4 out of 6 below. 04 of 06 Simon Greenwood/Getty Images The best time to visit a city is when there's a festival on: There's nothing worse than coming to town the day after they're clearing up the mess after a fiesta. Here are our best choices: Las Fallas has it all. In addition to the usual street food, music and daytime drinking, there are fireworks, a religious element and events that happen at all hours of the day (including an early morning firecracker alarm clock. Food fights, anyone? Some people think it's a good idea to run in front of a cut of angry bulls. Others think it's a good idea to see people running in front of angry bulls. Easter in Spain is such a big deal, it lasts a whole week. The atmosphere at Semana Santa can differ enormously depending on the city you are in: from the quiet sobriety of Toledo to the passion of Seville. After Semana Santa is over, the sevillanos let their hair down with their big fiesta of the year. Also known as Feria de Abril, although it does not always take place in April. Continue to 5 of 6 below. 05 of 06 Damian Corrigan Paella, of course - but what else? And what exactly is tapas? Spain's most famous dish is often misunderstood. For starters, the most traditional version has no seafood in it. Crazy, huh? Not a type of food exactly, but a way to eat it. Tapas are all about small portions, preferably eaten standing, with a drink, as part of an evening of bar hopping. Tapas restaurants around the world that serve you ten small dishes on a single plate do not serve tapas. Spanish wine, especially the red, is some of the best in the world, and much cheaper than in neighboring France. Different enough from your regular Spanish wine to justify its own place on this list. Sherry is another misunderstood part of Spanish culture – it's not always the sweet stuff your grandmother drank. Try the full range of sherry in Jerez. The texture puts a lot of people away, but it's usually because they haven't had it cooked right. Get it in Santiago de Compostela for the best experience. Continue to 6 of 6 below. 06 of 06 Miguel Ángel García Additional places to explore in Spain include: Spain has a lot of coastlines - and much of it is adorned with beautiful beaches. And if you find swimwear too restrictive – there are plenty of nudist beaches too! No one could fail to be blown away by some of the structures in Spain. From cathedrals approaching the age of 1,000 to supermodern avant-garde structures, obliged to be something to impress you. You.
