In January 2010, free Audio Excerpts from the first six chapters of Fang became available on James Patterson's official website. [1] Plot the novel begins with flock traveling to Chad in Africa. They are there to help residents by giving them medical supplies and food, as part of the Coalition to Stop Madness project, but they are being attacked by local rebels who oppose getting help from outsiders. After defeating the rebels, the Flock does volunteer work, such as distributed rice. On the second night, Angel reveals that Fang will be the first to die, leading to a upset with flock before Dr Hans, a former Itex worker, interrupts. He invites Max and Angel to breakfast, where he introduces them to his new experiment, Dylan, a bird kid like them, but someone who can't fly well. In the morning, it turns out that Dr. Hans is planning on forcing the human race to evolve using the Flock as evolutionary templates. He tries to resort to Max's help by showing him the improvements he is currently making, the most extreme being cutting off and regrowing his own finger. He, however, refuses to help and quickly returns to flock, where he instructs them to wait. Back in America, the E house on the rock of a canyon where the Flock was staying at the beginning of Maximum Ride: The Angel Experiment-the members of the Flock are safe. Total returned with them after max stayed with his mother, and Max and Angel still haven't spoken. Max, after weighing, blackmails the Flock into a self-didakta home school because he has to learn things to understand the enemy. This leads to a trip to an unnamed museum where Iggy voice wishes she wasn't blind. Returning home, the Flock fight, and Max suddenly decides it's his birthday tomorrow. He asks if anyone wants to turn a year older and so the party is planned for all of them the next day. While exchanging gifts, Jeb arrives with Dylan in a black four-wheel drive Jeep as it turns out that Dylan can't fly well. Max then teaches him how to fly starting by pushing him off the roof. After that, the rest of Flock is still angry with Max. Angry Jeb, Max flies away and Fang goes after him. During this time, the others the Erasers who reportedly went out of their Maximum Ride: Saving the World and other extreme sports. It also emerged that Dylan was trained to fight and heal his own wounds himself. When Max and Fang return, the Flock will vote Max out because he and Fang weren't there to help them fight the Erasers. Instead, Max and Fang were being out in a tree, causing the flock to feel they were too caught up in their relationship to lead and help the group. They're both going to Las Vegas. Meanwhile, the house's water supply is contaminated with a genetic accelerator that induces mutations. Angel replaces Max as Flock's leader and takes on the new group at a celebrity party in Hollywood. They are attacked when Max and Fang find them and suffer from the side effects of the genetic accelerator. Jeb is shot while protecting the Flock, but he survives. After recovering, Angel leaves him to join Dr. Hans as Max re-enters the lead role. Later, a vague letter from Fang warns Max not to follow him. Fang finds Angel and Dr. Hans, but he was shot with a tranquilizer bullet and passed out. When Fang touches you, he'll be badly beaten and tied to a bed. Dr. Hans plans to experiment with Fang with his genetic accelerator drug and inject Fang with it. However, the drug eventually causes him to die. Angel tells (through his mind) Max to come rescue, but when the Flock arrives, it's too late. Max is desperate to bring Fang here, but to no avail. He ended up stabbing an adrenaline needle in his chest, and after a few moments, Fang came alive. Then Dylan tries to kill Dr. Hans with a needle he finds, but when he finds out he's against the Flock, the way he kills in cold blood, he stabs himself with it in a suicide attempt, but he's alive. In the epilogue, Total marries Akila. Fang leaves the front desk early, and when Flock gets home after the reception, Max goes looking for Fang, but instead finds a letter addressed to him. Max reads the letter to the rest of the flock. In the letter, Fang tells Max that he loves her more than anything, but that she's leaving the Flock because of their love. He tells Max that everyone was right, that they only care about themselves, and that he puts the others in danger, and he calls max nice, which surprises everyone. The rest of the flock still needs him to be a leader, and he can't do that if he's here. You're also going to tell him that you know where you're going, and please don't look for him. At the end of the letter, Fang promises Max. He says that if in 20 years, if they're both still alive and the world is still in one piece, he'll meet her at the top of the cliff, where they learned to fly like hawks in Maximum Ride: The Angel Experiment. After the epilogue, Max reviews Fang's files on an old laptop, as Nudge uses the new one. The first thing Max sees Fang's MaxProCon .doc max's pros and cons, like: He's a good leader, but he's a training sergeant. In the next file, Fang describes what happened in Africa. Then I have his gift list for everyone's birthday, and he's writing down Max's gift. In the next file, you're talking about him and Max being in Las Vegas. The file contains a letter to Dylan saying that he hates Dylan more than anyone because he likes Max and Dylan wants to be with him. After that, a long series of questions appears, written by a fan called Jessie. Jessie (whose nora has not been confirmed) asks unusual questions like Does she smoke apples? Would you tell me if you were gay? Angel ever read your mind when you had dirty thoughts about Max and you went to OMG and you were like D:? Fang's answers are spread by Uhhhh... its hahahahaha that I can never be as Fangalicious as you want me to be. He ends by being on Max's side forever, but he can't be here now because his anger at Dylan cloudes my decisions and that he doesn't know what the right thing to do.
