Built to replace the popular Eagle GT, the new Goodyear Eagle Sport all season has quickly become one of Goodyear's best-selling high-performance tires all season on the market today. Designed for drivers of a variety of sports compartments, cars and sports trucks, Eagle Sports AS offers more responsive handling to go with reliable stretching in years away weather conditions. High-tech all-season combination tread and asymmetric tread pattern provide enhanced dry and wet road performance. Dry stretching and corner grip are enhanced through larger shoulder blocks out and ribs of the center of the gap. This further increases the steering response and feel, which is quite noticeable on this tire. Driving on wet surfaces is helped by four grooves away around treads that channel away water and reduce the risk of hydroplaning. This is a strength for this tire and one that is often mentioned in other driver reviews. Goodyear has also added full-depth sips on the model, which works to provide biting edges in rain, snow and ice. Inside the tire you will find two steel belts that are reinforced with polyamide for added strength and increased durability at higher speeds. Goodyear has also used its unique racing wrap construction technology that is used in its racing tires on the NASCAR circuit that enhances handling stability and steering response. There is also a built-in fringe protector that helps prevent damage to expensive wheels. Sizes are available from 15 to 20 inches, and V and W speed ratings. A somewhat surprising 50,000-mile tread guarantee is also included on this model. ProsDry and Wet Stretch is a highly responsive gripExcellent cornering warrantyConsWinter StretchLower Road Noise bitOverall ThoughtsGoodyear has a very good model in new Eagle sports all season. We feel that it's a tyre doing much higher than the legendary Eagle GT, yet below its line of F1-priced Eagle models. Stretching on either dry or wet sidewalks is great, but it's getting corners and steering responses that stick out more. We really like getting and feeling this tire provides and it's just a step behind that of the asymmetric F1 all season.Ride comfort better than most tires in this class. However, you can expect to hear a little more road noise than you will find on other high tyres such as the Continental DWS06 or Michelin Sports Pilot as 3 Plus. Tread Life is better than average and comes backed up with an excellent 50,000-mile warranty. Overall, if you're looking for an all-season tire doing the top, Eagle Sport is not a bad choice, especially if you don't put a premium on the noise and stretch of winter. In addition, Goodyear will lower it than you might expect the price. Buy now from TirescannerClick here to find out what current prices are the vehicles do Goodyear Eagle Sport as appropriate?
