Enter a description for the task (project name) and configure how many builds should be retained and for how long. Configure how the source code can retrieve. If you are for example using Git, enter the URL in the Git repository. If the repository is not public, you may also need to configure the credentials. Specify when and how your build should be triggered. The following example fills the Git repository every 15 min. It triggers a build, if something has changed at the break. To trigger a build after a commit on the Git repository, select GitHub hook trigger for GITScm poll instead of Poll SCM. If you want an automatic build after a committee you must also configure the Jenkins URL on the Git Repository. For details on how to do this with GitHub see our GitHub tutorial. If you want to delete the workspace before a build to avoid any side effects, you can add a build step in the Build section. Press Save to finish the task definition. Build Now on the Jobs page to validate that tasks are as expected. After a while the task should go to green or Azure (depending on your configuration), if successful. Click the task and afterwards on Console Output to view the log file. Here you can analyze the build errors. Mistake.
