Postal codes and postal codes are numeric codes that are used to facilitate mail delivery, and area codes are used to specify the geographic area when dialing a phone number. Instead of webing a large, inconvenient phone book, you can find and verify zip codes and area codes online quite easily. If you have an address or partial address, you can find the zip code usps zip code through the search service, which is a tool on the U.S. Postal Service website. You can also search by city or state, or you can find all cities that are part of a specific zip code. The International Post Codes website, operated by Columbia University, has an extensive index of domestic and international zip codes, as well as mailing abbreviations, policies and best practices. You can also use different search engines to find zip code. For example, if you want to use Google to search for a zip code by address, type the address to see a map of the location that includes the zip code. You can even type some South Laurel MD zip code to see them all for that area (and find links that display a complete list of postcodes in the area). You can also enter a zip code to see the geographic location to which it belongs, as well as a map and other related web results, such as cities that use the zip code. If you didn't add a zip code at the end of your search, Google might display unrelated information. For example, search 90210 reveals information about a TV show, while a 90210 zip code displays postal code information. You can also find the zip code with DuckDuckGo. Enter your zip code and DuckDuckGo will return the map, zip code location, weather, property, and other relevant online results. Bing's postcode search brings back the city/area it connects to, maps and local attractions such as grocery stores, hotels and cinemas. If you enter a partial address, Bing will complete it for you and reveal the zip code. Just like with a zip code, you can use a search engine to find the area code by searching for the city. To do the opposite and find out which part of the country the area code is associated with, just enter the area code in the search engine. To find a zip code using Google, type the name and state of the city you're looking for, and then type the words region code. You usually find what you need. If you want international listings, look for a phrase like the Kenyan call code, and you'll get an informative response with the numbers you need to call that country. Type the city and state in a new Bing search and you'll probably see results like Google that show the area code at the top of the results. The same applies to international call codes. Another find the area code online is Wolfram Wolfram Who bills himself commational intelligence. This data-driven search engine doesn't show results like the other results mentioned on this page, but with a little digging, you'll find some unique data about cities and states that you might not find in another search engine. Using Yahoo to find an area code is much like using Google; Just enter the city and state name, followed by the area code, and you will get an immediate result. Finding international codes isn't as easy with Yahoo as it is with Google, but of course, you can still use Yahoo to find other websites that can give you this information. Many sites specialize in finding area codes that may not be revealed by a simple search engine query. You can use these free resources to find almost any area code and/or country call code in the world: Area codes: Includes area codes mostly from the U.S., although other countries are also scattered here. BT Phonebook: Use this site to find area codes in UK country codes: This site asks which country you're calling from and where you want to assign the correct country code, region code, or both. LincMad: A zip code map that provides a visual image of regional codes in the U.S. and like Canada.AllAreaCodes.com: Like LincMard, you'll get a complete area code map of the U.S. and Canada, but also links to region-specific area code lists, area code details (e.g. wireless or landline, carrier when deployed), search tools, and printable area code lists. Thank you for telling us! Tell us why! The George Diebold/Getty Images 578 region code is one of the unspecced codes in the North American numbering plan that covers the United States, Canada, certain Caribbean countries, and U.S. territories. Using a phone number with the 578 area code is an attempt to cover up the source of the call. NANP's regional codes were first used in the early 1950s, with 86 of them in use from 152 possible area codes. As the number of telephone users increased over the decades, additional area codes were exceeded to complement the needs of the continent's denser regions. For example, new York area code 917 overlaps with area codes 212 and 718 to significantly increase the number of phone users there. Area code 543 is currently not in use in North America. The closest existing area codes are 541 to Eugene, Oregon, and 551 to Newark, New Jersey. Regional codes are managed and processed by the North American Numbering Plan Association NANPA. What people usually call regional codes is officially known as NPA codes. Any three-digit series (000-999) is theoretically a region code, but currently only 316 of these codes are in use. In addition, some codes are stored as some kind of special character. The 800 zone code is used as a free call with the recipient instead of the caller. Ugruhan Betri/Getty Images Area code 668 is not a valid subcode in the United States. However, it is a valid area code in Oujda, northeast of Morocco. A call received from area code 668 can be traced back to telephone marketers, invoice collectors and checkers. The 668 number is used to mask a valid phone number, making it impossible to locate a call or track down the company making the call. Calls and text messages received from this area code can be reported and added to the list of fake numbers. Scam artists are also known to use incorrect phone numbers. Area codes 520 and 928 are usually (but not exclusively) intended for all cities not in Phoenix, arizona metropolitan area. Arizona's largest city within area code 928 is Tucson. Arizona's largest city within area code 928 is Flagstaff. See map of Arizona Area Codes. Note: These area codes apply only to wireworms. Mobile phone area codes are not geographically restricted. A person living in a home in one city can receive a wireless service with a different zip code. Are calls to different area codes in Arizona considered long distance calls? Yes and no! If you're in a 520 area code, dialing another area code in Arizona is not a local call. Select number 1, then the area code and number. It's considered a long distance call. If you're in 480, 602, or 623 area codes, call three area codes are considered a local call. All area codes are in the Phoenix area. For example, dialing a phone number with a 623 area code from a phone number with a 602 area code is a local call. The number, including the area code, is dialed without first calling 1. Dialing from any of these three area codes to either 520 or 928 is a long distance call, and you must first call 1, and then the area code and number. Exception: Dialing a 928 area code where the phone number starts with 252 or 501, for example 928-252-XXXX or 928-501-XXXX, is a local call from area codes 480, 602 or 623. These area codes apply only to wireworms. Mobile phone area codes are not geographically restricted. A person living in a home in one city can receive a wireless service with a different zip code.
