Cathar has fur-covered bodies with thick manners. They have prominent, retractable claws that can deliver powerful killing attacks on enemies and prey. Their bodies also have healing abilities higher than average Human. On average, Cathar is 1.5 to 1.9 feet tall. These traits make them the perfect hand-to-hand specialists, although other professions are no wonder for them. Society and Culture Cathar are known for their loyalty, passion and temperament. Fast and powerful, they are considered great warriors and dedicated, effective predators. Their women are valued as slaves, while males are generally considered uncontrollable for slavery. On their home world, Cathar lives in cities built into giant trees and is organized into clans ruled by Elders. Stories of their great heroes are often carved into the tribes of these wooden homes for subsequent generations to see who don't rely on storytelling alone. The Cathar mate for life, to the extent that when a mate dies, the survivor never has a relationship with another. Cathar clan communities include big pageant and parties, especially for their heroes. Their religion includes a ritual known as Blood Hunt, in which Cathar warriors individually engage in battle against the entire nests of Kiltik to gain honor and purify themselves of inner darkness. Cathar's mother tongue is Catharsis, which includes the weight of some spoken words with a growl. The planet Cathar was destroyed by the Mandalorians during the Battle of Cathar, which led to slavery and near-extinction of Cathar species. More than 90 percent of the species were killed by the Mandalorians in the battle. The few survivors were forced to flee the world to survive. After the end of the Mandalorian Wars, Cathar began to resettle their world, and by the time the Galactic Civil War found out, it had fully recovered from the damage done by the Mandalorians. Given the urban development of Cathar homeworld, many Orthodox members of the race began to voice their protest, given that urbanization of desert areas led to the extinction of Kiltik, which resulted in Blood Hunts leading towards smaller species. Force-sensitive Cathar often became Jedi, although the Jedi way tends to be in opposition to their natural tendencies. Blood Hunt Recent developments at Cathar homeworld forced the race to abandon its traditional means of pursuing various means to gain honor through hunting and led to specific Blood Hunts, on the planet and beyond. These assets To escape Mandalorian genocide still employ their skills in hunting and target the dominant non-sentient species on the planet they live on. This has led to several incidents where a Cathar war group tried to lure a bloodstick against Rancor; they failed miserably and never tried it again. Several individuals have been known to travel to Kashyyyk and, with the blessing of Wookiee's advice, hunt native Katarn, which turned out to be a worthy prey. Some of the less experienced Cathar even came to understand how prey feels in a hunt, forcing a hand from local Wookiee warriors, to rescue them from packets of Katarn.
