Mark Bezos is SVP, Development, Communications & Events at Robin Hood, the leading anti-poverty charity in New York City. Bezos joined Robin Hood after the sale of his advertising agency, happy to have found a way to use his persuasion skills for good. Bezos is an assistant captain at a volunteer fire company in Westchester County, New York, where he lives with his wife and four children. He is constantly amazed and motivated by the daily acts of heroism - big and small - that surround him. What others say Firefighting volunteers saves pairs of shoes. Small actions or small, everything matters. Get in the game. Save the shoes -) #TED - @rickrommel Watch Discover Join Back in New York, I'm head of development for a non-profit called Robin Hood. When I'm not fighting poverty, I fight fires as an assistant captain of a volunteer fire company. Now in our city, where the volunteers complement a highly qualified career staff, you have to get to the fire scene pretty early to get in on any action. I remember my first fire. I was the other volunteer on site so there was a pretty good chance I would come in. But still it was a real footrace against the other volunteers to get to the captain who is in charge of figuring out what our duties would be. When I found the captain, he had a very engaging conversation with the homeowner, who certainly had one of the worst days of his life. Here it was in the middle of the night, she stood outside in the pouring rain, under an umbrella, in her pyjamas, barefoot, while her house was in flames. The other volunteer who had arrived just before me - let's call him Lex Luther - (Laughter) came to the captain first and was asked to go in and rescue the homeowner's dog. Dog! I was stunned by jealousy. Here was some lawyer or money manager who, for the rest of his life, gets to tell people that he went into a burning building to save a living creature just because he beat me by five seconds. I was next. The captain waved me over. He said, Bezos, you have to go into the house. I need you to go upstairs, past the fire, and I need you to get this woman a pair of shoes. (Laughter) I swear. Didn't look exactly what I was hoping for, but off I walked - up the stairs, down the aisle, past the right firefighters, who were pretty much done putting out the fire at this point, into the bedroom to get a pair of shoes. Now I know what you're thinking, but I'm no hero. (Laughter) I carried my payload back downstairs where I met my nemesis and the precious dog at the front door. We our treasures outside to the homeowner, where, not his got a lot more attention than mine. A few weeks later, the department received a letter from the homeowner thanking us for the valiant efforts that appear in saving her home. The act of kindness she noted above all others: someone had even got her a pair of shoes. In both my call to Robin Hood and my avocation as a volunteer firefighter, I witness the actions of generosity and kindness on a monumental scale, but I also witness the actions of grace and courage on an individual basis. And you know what I've learned? They all matter. So when I look around this room at people who have either achieved or are on their way to achieving remarkable levels of success, I will offer this reminder: Don't wait. Don't wait until you make your first million make a difference in someone's life. If you have anything to give, give it now. Serve food at a soup kitchen. Clean up a neighborhood park. Be a mentor. Not every day will give us a chance to save someone's life, but every day gives us an opportunity to influence one. Then get into the game. Save your shoes. Bruno Giussani: Mark, Mark, come back.
