How to remove a past due date stamp from QuickBooks invoices First of all, we need to make sure everything is set correctly with the term period in QuickBooks. QuickBooks sometimes even though you've set a 90-day period, but it's actually not set correctly for 90 days. We need to take some steps to verify that. You may also need to rebuild quickBooks data. But first, let's verify the term in QuickBooks. To do this, first, open QuickBooks, and then go to the upper-left corner of the screen and choose Lists menu. Here, select Customer and vendor profile lists. Then, select Term Lists. Then locate your Net 90 term and once you find it, right-click it and select Edit Term. Then, remember to select the option (for net term 90, and make sure to both select normal and make sure that the due network should say 90)Click OK to save your changes. To check whether the previous target stamp is still visible or not, open an invoice, and then look for the previous target stamp. If you still see the due due stamp previously on the invoice, to remove it, we recommend that you rebuild the data in QuickBooks. NOTE: You should implement this procedure only on the computer hosting the company file. QuickBooks, and then from the upper-left corner of the screen, click the File menu, and then select Utilities. Here, select Rebuild data. Then, click OK when QuickBooks prompts you to close all running windows. Then, click OK when QuickBooks instructs you to create a backup before it can begin rebuilding the data. Then, a new window opens. Here, select Options.Next, click Browse, and then select the location on the computer where you want to save the file. Then, select No authentication, and then click OK to continue the process. Then check the box indicating Use this location, and then select Next.Click Next again, and then save the file. Once the backup is complete, the rebuild will begin automatically.
