Since 2016, Service Employees International Union Local 1000 (SEIU Local 1000) has represented 95,000 members who have worked for the state of California. The local 1000 was the largest public sector union in California. [1] It was the local branch of the Service Employees International Union, Article 501(c)(5), which represented members who worked in professions such as health care, real estate services and public services. [2] SEIU Local 1000 supported California Prop 55 (2016), which extended an increase in personal income tax on incomes in excess of $250,000 approved in 2012 for 12 years to fund education and health care. [3] The SEIU Local 1000 mission was expressed in the organization's goal statement, which reads: Local 1000 aims to have the power needed to give our members and all Californians the opportunity to have a good life, live in sustainable communities, and enjoy the fruits of social, economic and environmental justice. [4] The SEIU background was founded in 1921 in Chicago, Illinois. Its first members were guards, elevator operators and window washers. [5] According to the SEIU Local 1000 Facebook page, since October 2016, local government employees, including clerical staff, information technology workers, teachers, auditors, printers and nurses, have represented 95 000 public employees. [6] SEIU Local 1000 was divided into staff departments, district labour councils and human rights committees, which spoke on behalf of its members. [7] Labour representation On its website, SEIU Local 1000 represented its members through collective bargaining and the creation of a community coalition. Collective bargaining seiu represented members in negotiations with employers in negotiations on wages, allowances, work schedules and other employment conditions. The SEIU could negotiate on behalf of all the departments represented or on behalf of specific negotiating units. From 2016 California public service employees were divided into 21 negotiating units based on common interests, such as general or similar skills, positions, wages or employment conditions. The local 1000 worked with nine different negotiating units. The state workers whose union called last week wait until next summer to raise the pre-agreement their leaders have approved, but they will receive a $2,500 bonus if they accept the deal. These are just some of the contract details that SEIU Local 1000 distributed to its members Monday morning. The value of the contract seems to be similar to that that That Gov. Jerry Brown originally proposed to the union, although it delays and reduces the impact of the new severance health care contribution, which will come out of workers' salaries in the coming years. According to the SEIU, on 1 July 2017 and 1 July 2018, workers would receive a 4% jump in wages on 1 July 2019. Workers will receive signing bonuses after the Legislature approved the deal and Gov. Jerry Brown signed the legislation. Employees would start paying contributions to their health benefits on 1 July 2018, with a salary of 1.2%. This contribution would increase to 2.3 per cent next year. Brown's initial proposal called for an increase of just under 12 percent over four years to offset pensioner health contributions totaling 3.5 percent by 2019. View article article
