It is part of the University of Alaska system and was established on 1 January 1999. The University is accredited by the Northwest European University and Universities Board. [2] Campuses Juneau The main campus of the southeast of the University of Alaska is located in Juneau. Most of the campus is located between Auke Bay and Lake Auke. The campus consists of classrooms, studios, teaching and research laboratories, the Anderson Science Building (North Pacific Marine Lab), the William A. Egan Library, Housing, the Student Recreation Center (Charles Gamble Jr.-Donald Sperlin Shared Space), a bookstore, and office and administrative facilities. UAS also has a technical training center in the centre of Juneau, consisting of technical, construction and mechanical laboratories, a mining simulator and classroom and office space. The Juneau campus offers vocational, certificate, associate, matriculation examinations and postgraduate degrees. Sitka Sitka Campus was founded as Sitka Community College in 1962. The campus grants professional support in administrative office support, online support technology, network development, network management, healthcare information technology, residential and light construction, law enforcement and welding; Certificates for computer information and office systems, computing technician, healthcare privacy and security, small business management, fishing technology, pre-medical care and radiological technician qualifications, and health data management coding expert; associate degrees in health data management, education and nursing (in cooperation with the University of Alaska Anchorage), apprenticeship technology and health sciences. Ketchika's Ketchikan campus is the oldest campus in southeast Alaska and was originally established as Ketchikan Community College in 1954. Now a branch campus of the University of The Southeast of Alaska (UAS), the Ketchikan campus offers small class sizes, face-to-face classroom experiences, a wide range of online courses, as well as mixed face-to-face and online classroom experiences, as well as staff and advisors. The Ketchikan campus is a leading state university system in online degree offerings, including the only interdisciplinary bachelor of liberal art and bachelor of arts, social science. Students can achieve degrees in education, business, public administration, health care, including nursing, career education, social sciences and the free arts through local and online programs. The Ketchikan Regional Maritime and Career Center, the only regional supplier of marine industry training courses and programs approved by the U.S. Coast Guard, also operates on the Ketchikan campus. UAS Ketchikan is the only campus in the state of Alaska that provides a partner in applied science in maritime transport. In addition to marine training, the campus provides a U.S. Coast Guard-approved Marine Oil Program (a qualified member of the Engine Department), welding course work, and a Certified Nurse Aide program approved by the state of Alaska. UAS Ketchikan works closely with Vigor Alaska Shipyard in Ketchikan and provides training opportunities for both the shipyard's established employees and residents who want to work at Vigor Alaska. The campus is also working closely with the Alaska Marine Highway System, the Southeast Alaska Pilots' Association and other shipping and shipping companies and organizations to meet the training needs of employers in southeast Alaska. Academics Schools UAS has three academic schools: the School of Arts and Sciences the School of Career Education the School Research Partnerships UAS supports a wide range of collaborative research activities, including partnerships[3] Alaska Coastal Forest Center with Alaska Experimental Research Program (EPSCoR) Alaska Climate Science Center Pacific Northwest Cooperative Ecosystem Studies Unit Alaska Cooperative Ecosystem Studies Unit UAS Spatial Ecosystem Analysis Lab (SEALAB) University of Alaska Fairbanks School of Fisheries and Ocean Science Libraries Juneau William A. Ziegler building on the upper floor of the campus on Seventh Avenue. The library has about 36,000 sections, 120 period books printed and a collection of federal government documents. The library is a member of the First Consortium of City Libraries . Recreation Center The Student Recreation Center (Charles Gamble Jr.-Donald Sperl Joint Resort) is a joint facility with the Alaska Army National Guard (AANG). This facility includes basketball and volleyball courts, suspended running/walking tracks, a 100-foot climbing wall, a weight training room, and a dance and cardio studio. The student recreation center was opened in September 2005 and replaced the older student activity centre. [5] Athletics is home to a number of intramural sports and activities. The Polytechnic had a collegiat athletic program that closed along with Sheldon Jackson College and Alaska Pacific University in 1990. While the school's focus is on its education, former UAS Operations Director Tish Griffin said students need activities like basketball. When three smaller Alaska universities (UAS, APU and Sheldon Jackson) ended their athletic programs in 1990, it had a huge impact on the UAS campus. In the following year, the decrease in enrolments was down in all three years. It had an effect, Griffin said. I saw the most impact on student life. Missing the spirit of the school, a joint sporting event that united the campus. Students must have a way to recreate it. Activities give them a more perfect life, and they are a lot of rounding. And it also helps them buy on campus. [6] Publications of the UAE Student Journal on The Whalesong. [7] The literary magazine is Tidal Echoes. The Federal Depository Library Program (FDLP)Currently, if you need access to our federal document collection (or other collections), they can be put on hold and retrievable from the edge or delivered to other Juneau libraries. We are considering scanning materials for digital delivery on a case-by-case basis (see group loan policy below). COVID-19 Interlibrary Loan PolicyUAS Community: Ill is still up and running! Although we do not lend or ask to borrow physical objects (e.g. books, DVDs, bound magazines), we are happy to respond to requests for lending and lending of electronic objects (newspaper articles, e-books, etc.). If you have borrowed a physical item from our library, we ask you to keep it until the COVID-19 dpm policies are over. We forgive overdue fines and extend due dates to two weeks after COVID-19 restrictions. Customers will be notified of new due dates for physically borrowed items, but we ask that they be returned immediately if the original due date has already passed. Most library library libraries in Alaska are closing because of current situations. Like these libraries, we suspend item check-ins and check-outs. We check incoming ILL materials that have already been requested, but turn off ill to get new items except digitally. Ill allows you to get a specific relevant chapter of the book (digitally scanned) that you might otherwise have put on hold! Using the Egan Library Online You can use the Egan Library online 24 hours a day, 7 days a week if you have an Internet connection. We are available to you by phone and chat reference on the library website if you wish to speak to the reference staff at a regular scheduled time. Wash your hands with soap and water, do not touch the face and stay if you're not feeling well! Nauseat Nauseat
