Charlie banana diapers washing instructions

New seasons are always a great time to organize your life, clean out closets, and make your lifestyle a little more eco-friendly. I have 3 young children and I sometimes feel like I'm always tidying up after them. I work on organizing the playroom and streamlining my children's rooms. I'm also trying to get back into the regular cloth lounging and I recently updated my stash! It's pretty easy to use and care for cloth diapers, especially if you're in a regular washing routine. This post was sponsored by Charlie Banana. All opinions are mine. Deciding to use cloth diapers for your baby is good for the environment, healthy for baby, budget-friendly, and who doesn't love a fluffy baby bum?! A cute cloth diaper paired with a T-shirt or baby leggings = instant outfit! So why don't all parents choose dust? Washing those cute little poop catchers is scary! Or... at least it seems that way to those who haven't done it before. Washcloth diapers is actually quite simple. Just as many families washing routine for clothing is different, there are many different ways to wash cloth diapers. If you stick to the next simple routine for cleaning your cloth, you won't go wrong. To use new diapers prep your new diapers by washing them once in hot water with a small amount of zero residue detergent and drying them. This will make the diapers absorbent and ready for use. What to do with a contaminated diaperRemove solids before you wash your diapers by shaking the poop out of the diaper and into the toilet. It usually comes off easily, but there is also the possibility of using a diaper nozzle. The sprinkler attaches to the plumbing on your toilet and is used to spray the mess in the toilet. (Even newborn babies who are only breastfed have water-soluble poo, so you don't have to remove it before you wash the diapers.) Storing your diapersOiled and wet diapers can be easily stored 3 different ways: A wet bucket - a bucket full of water in which the diapers soak until laundry day. A dry bucket – a laundry basket with a cloth bucket lining that you wash along with the diapers on washday. A large wet bag – a waterproof bag that zips up and is washed together with the nappies on washday. My cloth diaper washing routineWipe - I usually wipe all the solids from the used cloth diapers before getting them into our Ubbi cloth diaper bucket that keeps our nursery free of any diapers odors! Charlie Banana also sells a diaper nozzle that you attach to your toilet, but in my 4 years of cloth lounging, I stuck to using the wipe method. Rinse - I usually pull the inserts from each cloth diaper lid and load all of the cloth diapers in the washing machine. I've tried washing bag diapers without removing the inserts, but I find my cloth diapers cleaner and smell fresher as I remove the cloth diaper inserts from the blankets for Wash. I add a syringe of blue Dawn dishwashing liquid to my load of dirty cloth diapers and enter it on a hot rinse cycle. Dawn effectively removes all solids and extreme odors from the cloth diapers for the washing cycle. Wash – Once the cloth diapers are rinsed, I add a scoop of detergent to the load of dirty cloth diapers and start a regular hot washing cycle. Rinse – Optionally, I sometimes have a second rinse cycle, especially if I forgot the wet cloth diapers in the washing machine at night. A second rinse cycle just gives my cloth diapers another swish with clean water for drying. Dry – I load the clean cloth diapers into the dryer and perform a regular dry cycle. In hot weather you hang your cloth diapers outside to dry and also some good old fashioned bleaching and paging the sun. An electric tumble dryer is essential to keep cloth diaper inserts dry in winter, but drying them in the dryer also gives them good fluff! Pin this to PinterestRemoving stench & residue buildupWith an extra rinse cycle after the diapers are clean to remove detergent from diapers. Wash once with liquid Dawn dishwashing liquid (blue formula): 1 teaspoon for the front loading machines, or 1 tablespoon for top loading machines. Rinse well (2 to 4 rinse cycles). If the previous solutions do not work, try 2 tablespoons of bleach in the hot/hot washing cycle. Rinse very well (4 to 5 rinse cycles). Be sure to follow the washing instructions on your diapers. It is best not to use bleach on PUL material, as it can ensure that it is not waterproof. Related Post: Deep Cleaning Cloth Diapers » Taking care of your cloth diapers is as simple as it can be! Once you get into a routine, you'll discover why so many moms love cloth lounging. Plus you save money and help reduce your families trash output! With two kids in diapers, we go through a ton of diapers! I recently cleaned up my cloth diaper stash, throwing away well worn inserts and adding some new cloth diapers from Charlie Banana. I love these pocket diapers because they are very adjustable to fit a wide range of baby sizes and have a soft microfleece as the only material that comes into contact with the baby's skin. I was pretty stoked when Charlie Banana offered to give me this beautiful set for my baby! Cloth Diaper HighlightsCharlie Banana cloth diapers are a 2-in-1 reusable diaper system made from a PUL (polyurethane laminate) outer waterproof layer and a soft microfleece stay-dry inner layer. Each Charlie Banana cloth diaper comes with two thick microfiber inserts. I use one for daytime and two for night absorption. Charlie Banana cloth diapers also have a smart front panel that gives you the option of tucking into a disposable pad for those special occasions or use additional reusable inserts. Place one or both reusable inserts in the diaper opening bag to provide gentle absorption. Charlie Banana Banana Are highly adjustable to allow parents to adjust the size of the diaper to the shape of their baby, with strategic size snaps for adjusting the waist and riser snaps for sizing around the legs. In the diaper, an innovative adjustable elastic in the leg holes you adjust the diaper to fit a baby perfectly from 8 to 35 pounds. In addition to the flexible functionality of these diapers. I also love the sweet patterns that come in a gender neutral set, useful for both girls and boys. Neutral patterns are useful because I can use these veils for both my 2-year-old girl and 1 year old boy. For the first use, you should wash the diaper inserts several times to ensure maximum absorption. Cleaning cloth diapers is also pretty easy; I was carrying them in a separate load along with our normal laundry routine. I also love how babies look in cloth diapers. Many baby clothing companies have started offering clothes that mainly fit over cloth diapers. Babies with a cloth diaper bum are so cute, especially when they start walking and toddling along! How cute is this Charlie Banana white and grey chevron cloth diaper on my chubby baby boy? The benefits of cloth loungingIt's easy to integrate cloth diapers into your lifestyle once you're in a routine. Washcloth diapers is no harder than washing the regular wax. Plan just one day a week to wash your weekly stash of dirty cloth diapers. Washcloth diapers is not time intensive. You just need to start the rinse, start the washing cycle, and move the cloth diapers to the dryer. Then you throw all the clean cloth diapers in a bin, or spend a few minutes reassessed and fold them into a pile. Reusing the same cloth diapers (instead of trashing disposables) your family to save money and reduce your household waste. Families with a few kids put out a ton of dirty diaper trash! Boxes of cloth diapers cost about $40 and last our family about 2 weeks. That means that the use of disposable diapers adds up to $960 per year! Of course, you should factor in the cost of water and time for washing cloth diapers, but for about $300 you are easily set up with a cloth diaper system with enough covers and reusable inserts to take up to a week before you have to wash. (and I've been using my cloth diaper stash for 4 years, and just now it's seen some.) Fashion statements are always made with cloth diapers! No one ever said, I love your baby's diaper unless it was cloth! Using veils is an easy way to go green in 2017! You can learn more about Charlie Banana on their website and get started with one of these reusable diaper system sets with 3 one diapers and 6 inserts, also or available on Amazon. There is so much information online about washing cloth diapers that it has become a science. Great information is shared and great confusion spreads. After a decade of producing cloth diapers and a hundred thousand of happy customers washing successfully they loved Charlie Banana, we've noticed a few things that can help you and want to share them before you dive in. How fast were you your diapers, the type of washing machine you have, the age of the washing machine, the type of soap you use, the monthly disinfection of the charger, the type of water you have will make a big difference. We've only heard success from parents who flush their diapers the fastest and make them wait in a water bucket to be in the next load of laundry. You avoid stains, ammonia build up altogether. The same goes for all other garments it seems. This page will have a lot of information that we think can be useful. Read the FAQ page as we update it frequently. Call us if you have any questions. Read our Blog : Let's Talk Dirty Knock solids in the toilet and shake Coil all residue. Remove the washable insert and store both diaper and put in a dry diaper bucket or a bucket of water until ready for washing. Rinse and wash your diapers daily as you get better and will avoid lots of ammonia and stain problems. If your diapers are rinsed and residue free throw them in with other garments. Wash in cold or hot water up to a maximum of 40C. Use an eco-friendly detergent, only half the recommended amount is needed if you have a standard non-organic soap to use as they are highly concentrated. Do not use a fabric softener or bleach. Dry in the dryer on low or hang to dry. When using Charlie Banana Soap, use the recommended full dose. We recommend washing the nappies before use. We also recommend washing the inserts 4-6 times before use to leave the fabric pores open and obtain maximum absorption, especially the hemp inserts. Care secrets 1 small laundry 1 long dish brush Vinegar Baking Soda Charlie Banana Eco-friendly soap Here's how it works: A newborn baby needs to be changed every 1-2 hours; That's why you need a lot of diapers in your rotation. Some parents prefer to have fewer diapers and wash daily, others like the convenience of having more diapers and spreading the washes. washing earlier than later is better. Tips for changing at home: Take 2-3 organic wipes and give them under running hot water or dip them in a bowl of water held at your changing station. Drive. The diaper and wipe the baby clean (or, if you prefer, take the baby to the sink and gently clean the baby under running water). Pat baby dry with a dry wipe. Put on a fresh diaper, fold up the dirty diaper and store it in the diaper bucket. Cleaning specifics Most of the solids come off the membrane easily. Below are a few options to remove stubborn residue: Use some toilet paper to wipe it clean Your diaper will be free of any residue very easily. You enjoy your diapers in a wet bucket and rinse them out lightly before washing or you just throw them in your dry bucket or washing machine. We recommend adding a little ordinary white vinegar to the wax and a few tablespoons of baking soda to help eliminate any odors on a weekly basis. DO NOT USE BLEACH as this will damage the laminating of the diaper. DO NOT USE A FABRIC SOFTENER as this clogs the pores of the fleece and ignites dust. The membrane does not allow fluid to pass through and the insert becomes less absorbent. If this has happened to you, soak the diaper and stick with some dishwashing liquid and wash them in your washing machine a few times to remove the residue. They'll work fine again. 1-2 washes should do the trick. Charlie Banana@t usually stain diapers. However, some slight staining may occur if a child is on a certain type of medication or depending on the child's diet. Where possible, hang your diapers outside to dry naturally. Not only will you save energy, but your diapers will also benefit from natural sun bleaching. If you bought a Charlie Banana® diaper with a printed design on the back, we recommend washing the diaper inside out. It's like a printed T-shirt. Your diapers are washed every day it is best to make sure the print design to last a long time.
