Green Eggie: -----: Jillian No One Seems to Want Light Green Eggs. well time I go to the side of abandoned eggs, there are always so many greens! So, if you want green, there's always a lot of them! Egg description 5: -----: Hamiel Seasonal dragons take on the characteristics of the season in which they are born. Thus, eggs laying eggs in the spring correspond to spring pink flowers and green buds, and eggs laid in summer grow to describe the bright green of forest trees and the yellow of the sun. Eggs laid in autumn show the bright colors of leaves falling from trees, and those laid out in winter take on the appearance of icy snow. Autumn Dragon - The markings on this egg are suitable for the weather outdoors. Summer Dragon - The markings on this egg are suitable for the weather outdoors. Winter Dragon - The markings on this egg are suitable for the weather outdoors. Spring Dragon - The markings on this egg are suitable for the weather outdoors. Undead Dragon - N/A (Kill the chick and revive it, 50% success rate) Vine Dragon - This egg sits on a patch of grass and small flowers, although there is no sun in the cave. Egg description ----- by Hamiel (33.33% (33.33% getting frilled, Ochredraken or Skywing eggs from caves) Frilled Dragon - This egg has strange markings. Filled dragons are smaller than most other breeds, but under threat they stretch their wings and ruffles to look larger. They usually do not want to fight, preferring to hide in confrontation. Filled dragons live in small groups and often come together to scare off potential threats. Men also use their fines to attract mates, and those with the best ruffles are more likely to reproduce. Ochredrake Dragon - There are strange markings on this egg. Ochrakroks are a curious species with a wide range of mutations and interesting behaviors. Not as intelligent as normal dragons, they reproduce only with other drake species. While they may not be bright, ocredrakes are pompous and fun, with incredible, chirping sounds to sing with and easily tame in front of a gentle hand. There are strange markings on this egg. Skywing dragons spend most of their lives flying through the air. They hunt from the air, dive prey from above and land only to rest. They are one of the fastest flyers capable of very high speeds. The strap at the end of the tail acts as a rudder, allowing them to easily change direction during flight. How to get rare and rare dragons: ----- by Unregistered Apr 23, 2012 I've realized during dragon probe time that if you're on the website for a very long time, maybe at least an hour, then rare dragons will start appearing. Sometimes I just watch youtube videos or check my email when there's another tab open in the dragon cave and I check the abandoned and cave areas every now and then, after an hour or two, check back. Another scam to get rare and rare eggs is a visit in the morning of the dragonfly, from about 2 a.m. to 4 a.m., since apparently no one is on at the time, so rare and rare may see at that time. Finally, this is a small but real fact: No one's in the cave anymore. Most of the dragon users are in the abandoned area, so take my advice and go to the cave as there is rarely anyone there. You can find very rare dragons in the cave, such as cheese, or perhaps legendary. From the cave I got my legendary trio, magma! in: Edit the share Can't find the dragon you're looking for? Before you ask if it's recently posted on the Currently Release page, see if it's recently published. When hunting new eggs in different habitats of Dragon Cave, users are presented with a set of mystery eggs. These eggs have a black egg with a red question mark and can only be identified by their written description. In this guide is to help users identify the eggs they may find in the game. Some descriptions are divided among several eggs. These descriptions have been encouraged by the lists below.
