Overview Standards for the approval of day care facilities for adults are issued by the Department of Health and Environmental Control (DHEC) and administered by the Department of Health Licensing. The Community Long Term Care (CLTC) Medicaid Waiver Program allows adult health care (ADHC) as a covered service. ADHC providers must comply with a current DHEC day care license for adults. License and Certification Requirements Definitions Adult Day Care. Activities and therapies offered in an adult daycare centre through an individualised care plan that sets measurable goals or behavioural goals, with such services designed to activate, motivate and retrain disabled or other categories of adults in order to enable or regain their independence. Day care facility for adults. A facility for adults aged 18 and over that offers a group of individual and group activities and therapies. The programme aims to provide community-based day care services for adults who need a supportive framework, thus preventing unnecessary institutionalisation. The programme must provide for a minimum of 4 hours of operation and a maximum of 14 hours per day. Parameters for Who Can Be Served Adults who need a supportive setting, which prevents unnecessary institutionalization, can be served. The physical and mental condition of a participant must not limit him to a bed and a medical report shall determine whether appropriate services are available. Adult daycare facilities may not be used by participants whose needs exceed the resources referred to in the Regulations. Inspection and monitoring Each facility is inspected by authorised DHEC representatives prior to the first licence inspection and at least annually. All licensed and future licensed facilities are subject to inspection at all times. Medicaid/Medicare providers are surveyed with unannounced on-site visits, including those for reviewing medical records, reviewing facility records, observations, and interviews with area and staff. Required and optional services provisions regarding medications: The doctor's report must contain information about medications (name, type, dosage and whether the person is able to administer himself). All medicines administered by the staff to the participants shall be labelled and stored in a sealed cupboard or container which is otherwise inaccessible to the participants. provisions for groups with special needs Type of Each institution must have staff capable of providing programme services and monitoring to participants. A full-time administrator is selected by the competent authority or the owner and is authorised to manage and manage the institution. A person is appointed in writing to act in the absence of the administrator. Auf Auf an employee who is certified with the initial assistance training of the American Red Cross and cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) (or American Heart Association CPR) and is able to detect symptoms of distress must be present when the participants are in the facility. If the employee is a licensed nurse, no first aid training is required. Staff ingesen. The minimum ratio between staff and participant is one direct supervisor of eight participants. Volunteers and trainees can be deployed to expand staff. Training requirements Each institution shall have a written guidance programme and carry out it in order to familiarise each new staff member with the institution and its policies and procedures, which shall include at least fire safety measures and infection control. Training programmes must be planned and ensured for all employees in order to ensure and maintain their understanding of their duties and responsibilities. Relevant Medicaid Contracting Requirements for Adult Day Services Providers The Community Long Term Care (CLTC) Medicaid Waiver Program approves adult health care (ADHC) as a covered service. The goal of ADHC services is to restore, maintain, and promote the health status of Medicaid-exempt customers by providing outpatient health care and health-related support services at an ADHC center. The ADHD provider must hold a current DHEC day care license for adults and have a nursing service manager. Services. The ADHC provider must provide the following non-chargeable services included in the daily price. The provider may provide the services either directly or by subcontract, but not all: (1) daily care services provided by a registered nurse (RN) or under supervision with an RN; (2) care, support and training in personal care and ADL; (3) daily planned therapeutic activities; (4) one meal and one snack per day; and (5) Transportation for all customers who live within 15 miles of the center. The provider must make room within the adult daycare centre for the provision of physical, language and occupational therapy services. Staff. In addition to the minimum staffing requirements required for licensing, the following personnel standards apply to nurses and case managers: 1-35 home and community waiver ADHC customers must have an RN as follows: 1-10 customers, at least 2 hours; 11-20 customers, at least 3 hours; customers, at least 4 hours; 26-35 customers, at least 5 hours. For 36-60 home and community-based waiver ADHC customers, an RN and an additional RN or licensed practical nurse (LPN) must be available for at least 5 hours. A licensed nurse must be present when home and community-based waiver customers are present. For 61-90 home and community-based waiverADHC clients: one RN and two additional RNs or LPNs; or an RN, RN, additional RN or LPN and a case manager. Required nursing and case management staff must be present for at least 5 hours. A licensed nurse must be present when home and community-based waiver customers are present. For 91 or more home and community-based waiver ADHC clients: one RN and three additional RNs or LPNs or one RN, RN, additional RNs or LPNs and a case manager. Required nursing and case management staff must be present for at least 5 hours. A licensed nurse must be present when home and community-based waiver customers are present. It was developed through a partnership of the BUILD Initiative, the Early Learning Challenge Collaborative and Child Trends. As part of our one-year project, Business News Daily plans to report on the environment of small businesses in all states in America. In this issue, we asked some of South Carolina's 400,000 small business owners about the challenges and opportunities of operating in their state. Here's what they had to say. After some lows, South Carolina emerged from the Great Recession and continued to record decent growth rates year after year. This economic growth has led to a slight increase in personal per capita income as people return to work, but the labor market is not so tight that it produces intense competition for new talent. Moreover, South Carolinian entrepreneurs enjoy a relatively low tax burden compared to the rest of the nation. And while there are many bright lights in South Carolina's business environment, it has obstacles. The exploding real estate costs, especially on the coast, can make it harder for business owners to upgrade to a larger space. And despite the increase in per capita income (PCPI) — a measure of how much money the average consumer earns each year — it remains well below national average. Still, South Carolinians are excited to do business in their state and are excited to reap the benefits of the state's healthy economic growth. OpportunitiesStable economic growthThe big big was a killer for many of the state's economies, including that of South Carolina. In the last year of the recession, South Carolina's real gross domestic product shrank by 3.7 percent, according to data from the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis. But as the recession dissipated, South Carolina's economy soared. Although growth was modest in a few years, growth rates of 2.5 percent and nearly 2 percent, respectively, were recorded in 2014 and 2015. (The national average was 2.5 percent.) Karen Moran, owner of Sweet Lulu's Bakery on Wheels, said she was optimistic about future growth in the state. Admittedly, I have an extensive background for a big city advertising agency and a very unique business model, but [founding a company in South Carolina] was one of the easiest things I've ever done. According to a survey by First Citizens Bank, the entrepreneur in North Carolina, South Carolina, California and Florida, South Carolinian entrepreneurs were most likely to expand their business within the next year. Seventy-seven percent of small business owners in South Carolina said they were optimistic about the direction of the state's economy over the next two to three years, and the same percentage said South Carolina was a great place to start a small business, the survey found. Healthy labor market According to the U.S. Labor Department of Labor Statistics, with 2.3 million employees in South Carolina, with nearly 2.2 million employees. This means that the unemployment rate is 4.9 percent, which is even the national unemployment rate. Without significant employment in an economy, the dollar is drying up for households and businesses. But if the employment rate is high, it can also lead to fierce competition for top talent, leading to rising labor costs as applicants' values rise. Small businesses in South Carolina are growing rapidly; Employment growth is 2.5 percent for the state, and our unemployment is low, Scott Sharp, regional vice president at TD Bank in Charleston, told Business News Daily. Finding qualified food and drink staff [is a challenge]. Moran said. Charleston is a foodie city, and thanks to national recognition, it is very difficult to find staff. These people have their choice of where to work. Low taxes are notoriously averse to high taxes, and South Carolina gives them some room to breathe. According to the Tax Foundation, South Carolina had a tax burden of just 8.4 percent in 2012, the eighth-lowest tax burden in the country this year. Today, South Carolina collects an income tax rate of six which is 7 percent, a flat-rate corporation tax of 5 percent and a VAT rate of 6 percent. Taxes are minimal for full-time residents compared to the northern states, Sharp said. The South Carolina government is extremely open and will proactively work with good businesses that are willing to invest here and create jobs. Challenges(sometimes) high cost of living Although there is certainly a spread across the state and domestic costs tend to be much lower, the often prohibitive cost of living and labor on the coast can hurt young businesses. In cities like Charleston and Myrtle Beach, prices tend to be much higher than inland, in cities like Columbia and Greenville, Sharp said. Home prices are rising and finding affordable housing for young graduates is rising, he added. However, according to Sperling's Best Places, the cost of living is about 93 percent higher than the national average. The problem is that South Carolina's PCPI is also lower. Low per capita personal incomeI a slightly lower cost of living is coupled with a PCPI that accounts for only 80 percent of the national average, inequality becomes much more pronounced. Small businesses are often highly dependent on the economic well-being of consumers; when consumers are doing badly, businesses tend to be doing badly. Although the PCPI is slowly ticking upwards, it remains depressed, reducing consumer confidence and propensity to spend money.
