See Programming other devices on this remote control may include features that the receiver does not use. This guide makes it easy to set up and use the remote control, which this guide contains detailed information to help you get the most out of your remote control, including other devices such as TVs, camcorders, and DVD players. If you press the power button pointing to the device, if it turns off, then its already programmed and do not need additional programming. If the device is not responding, check the batteries in the remote control, it may be low battery power. Use the remote control mode buttons to set the remote control to the correct mode of the device. Make sure that the remote control program to operate a different device than described in the instructions. To change the mode, press the button on the device you want to control. The mode button lights up for three seconds to show that you have set the controller to this mode. Depending on how the remote control is set up, the remote control may use UHF, IR signals, or both to control the receiver. However, only IR signals are used to control other devices. IR signals traveling short distances generally 20 feet or 7 meters can go up to 40 feet, and can't go through walls or other solid objects. You insert the remote control directly onto the device you want to control without objects to block the signal path. This guide will show you how to program the remote control the Scan Device Codes procedure. When programming the remote control to control a combined device, such as TV/DVD or TV/VCR, program the remote control in one mode, and then repeat the procedure in the other mode. For example, to program the remote control to control the TV/DVD player using the code 765, follow the instructions to program the remote control to control the TV using codes, and then repeat the instructions for the DVD using the same code. You move the remote control into TV mode so that you can use the TV or DVD functions to use the dvd player (or VCR) functions. Features.
