Ozark trail 13x9 screen house instructions

Ozark Trail makes dozens of tents and shelters for caravans, beachgoers and backyard sun loungers alike. While some combine the tent and shielded enclosure ideas to give you a few ways to use your shelter, the company's Screenhouse model is what it says it is -- and a small carport too. If you try to put together the 10-by-13-foot or 12-14-foot model, the same instructions will apply. In about 15 minutes, it should bathe in the shade. Stretch your pillars and connecting joints on the ground. Place your screen canvas nearby. Make three pillars out of three pillar sections marked with 2B and a final section of the pole marked with 2. Place the two common sections marked with T on either side of the pole, which will be your center, the highest pole. Place the end joints firmly on the other two longest poles, which will be the sides of your Screenhouse. Put a common L and a common R on each pole, then direct them to accept poles from the direction of the central pole. Make four connecting poles, each with a section marked 1 and 1B. Connect the center ends and side poles to your shelter. Make two poles, each with a section marked 5 and 5B. Place the end-to-end nails of each of these small poles in the corresponding holes in the middle of the central and lateral pillars. It will be a support in the middle of the shelter. Make four side posts with two sections marked 1B at the top and one section marked 4 for the base of the posts. The end of each section 4 should have the end with the hole facing down to be used with the screen. Walk around the shelter and press firmly and completely the joint of each section. Throw the screen cloth on the roof of the skeleton and connect each corner to the bottom of each pole with the hook connected. Connect the Screenhouse interior to the poles with the straps connected. 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 ©2020 Walmart Magazine, Inc.
