Article: SNSD Hyoyeon 'clarification' post goes crazySource:Wikitree via Instagram1. [+1,952] You can hear how upset she is from her post2. [+1,645] Whether she saw an actress or not, it's not like an accomplice... it's funny to me that felt the need to call it on the internet on a site like this. If he thought he was a witness or an accomplice, he should tell investigators. Why incite a keyboard war online?4. [+994] Even if she was at the club that night, it's not like there's only a few people there. She did her job and left, why call her at all? Just leave the SNSD at all.5. [+370] It's very disrespectful of him to ask her like that when he's the one asking for her testimony... He spoke in an informal speech and gave it publicly to the CIS. It is also younger than Hyoyeon.6. [+270] I don't think she's calling Hyoyeon about anything, just that she thinks she knows she saw someone in particular... 7. [+186] I understand that Kim Sang Kyo is in an unfair situation, but it's a bad feeling of him just throwing something out there to see what sticks.. 8. [+201] I am inclined to trust Hyoyeon because as you have all seen with the way SM treats the Irene scandal, SM is quick to apologize when there is enough evidence. However, SM quickly denied the allegations for Hyoyeon and sounds like Hyoyeon has nothing to lose in this situation... Apparently he called her because he's close to Seungri, but if that's the reason, then he should call all the YG too- if he has a list of names in the club, then why can't he just reveal it himself? Why is she asking someone else to do her job for him?9. [+251] Even if she knew, I doubt she'd be able to say that because so many important figures are involved in the scandal10. [+475] I'm just going to stay neutral-article: Hyoyeon retorts I've never seen an actress... Kim Sang Kyo reacts , but you're close with SeungriSource: Joongang Ilbo via Naver1. [+1,415, -86] Isn't it weirder to think Hyoyeon doesn't know? If she doesn't want to reveal it, she should stay quiet. sigh ~2. [+652, -12, I doubt Hyoyeon could ever come and say it. With Burning Sun buried, it's clear that Hyoyeon knows she's in danger of being expelled from the industry if she talks now. There are so many important personalities in her that it's in her best interest that she just says she doesn't Know anything3. [+189, -10] Why isn't SM good at suing people for the slightest problems?4. [+72, -1] Even a waitress would know everything that happens in a host bar... she was DJing that night through her connection as a friend, and yet all that was there was work? Go through her Katalk, I bet there's something there Naver1. [+2,488, -146, 3. Hyoyeon's clarification post really shows her lack of class... 2. [+1,332, -63] I have nothing to do with Kim Sang Kyo, but I am more inclined to trust him3. [+263, -12, I can't believe Hyoveon's words. She was there because of her connection to Seungri. Yuri's oppa and Seungri are in the same pack, too. I'm sure she knew what was going on the whole time. [+170, -18] We'll just do it at eye level. She's close to Seungri. She went to his club to work. Something happened that night. And yet Hyoyeon doesn't know what happened? Do you all really believe that she had no idea?5. [+159, -9] If Hyoyeon is lying. I hope she realizes that one day, when she suffers such injustice, no one will come to her aid either. Her attitude is basically it has nothing to do with me, so I don't care what happens!! - South Korean Entertainment and Sex Scandal Burning Sun scandalSeungri, 2016 and Jung Joon-young KakaoTalk chatroomsNative name 클럽닝썬-nameClub Burning SuneDatbruary 23, 2018 – 17. It was the biggest scandal to hit the k-pop industry. The sexual assault allegations have added to an epidemic of so-called moles, the Korean word for online distribution of unsmed sex videos taken by women, and the scandal has become fodder for political parties who have been fighting over how to handle it. [3] [4] On January 4, 2019, when MBC Newsdesk reported on the alleged assault of a male club goer at Burning Sun, a prominent nightclub in Gangnam, in November 2018 by an employee. [7] [8] The Seoul Metropolitan Police investigations into the club's alleged involvement in prostitution, drug trafficking and police corruption. [9] Seungri resigned from the entertainment industry on March 11, 2019, after being accused of sexual bribery. [11] [12] Scandal fast allegations of rape and spy cameras when singer and entertainer Jung Joon-young admitted to secretly filming himself having sex with women and sharing videos, without their knowledge or consent, in Jung Joon-young KakaoTal chatrooms, and he resigned from the entertainment industry on March 12. Looking at the Burning Sun scandal, SBS discovered fune videos from 2015 to 2016, as well as conversations he shared in chat groups on the social media app KakaoTalk with Seungri and acquaintances. [13] [14] The revelation of the chat room immediately affected several celebrities and others as the case unfolded. March 14 Yong Jun-hyung of Highlight and Choi Jong-hoon of F.T. Island. resigned from their posts after being involved in chat rooms on charges[15][16] and cnblue's Lee Jong-hyun agency admitted its involvement on March 15, leading to a street protest in Gangnam against the Burning Sun and other nightclubs and calling for an end to what demonstrators called culture that treats women as sexual objects. [18] [19] Although thousands of women rallied against illegal filming and sharing in 2018, the accusations against the idealized image of pop idols still surprised the public. [20] The serious nature of the scandal prompted a response from President Moon Jae-in, who ordered a thorough investigation. [3] [21] [22] Although most of the criminal investigation sparked by the scandal was closed by the end of 2019, the final trial for the defendants, including trials and appeals, continued until 2020, with Seungri's own case referred to a military trial scheduled for the fall. Background Burning Sun, Le Méridien Hotel, Gangnam. March 27, 2019. Burning Sun Nightclub (Hangul: 클랍닝썬-23] was opened at Le Méridien Seoul Hotel in Yeoksam-dong, Gangnamgu, on February 23, 2018,[24] and closed during an investigation into the scandal on February 17, 2019. The luxury hotel has just replaced the Ritz Carlton hotel and opened in September 2017, a few months before burning sun opened. [26] The nightclub was often called Seungri's Club because of its association with The Big Bang's K-pop idol Seungri. [27] The Burning Sun promoted himself as the most elegant and best club in South Korea. [24] It included a basement level for hip hop, a VVIP entrance, 60 VIP tables near the DJ box and stage, spacious dance floors and accommodation for 1,000 guests. The drinks menu features Armand de Brignac champagne and Louis XIII cognac sets. [24] [28] [29] The sound system was founded by a specialized foreign company, Funktion-One, whose sound expert Tony Andrews was invited to the sound tuning club. Seungri served as one of the DJs, together other local and visiting guest artists like R3hab. [30] The club's CEOs were Lee Moon-ho and Lee Sung-hyun, a former board member of the company that operated Le Méridien Seoul. [31] Seungri was one of seven internal directors and resigned in January 2019. [33] Seungri was the co-founder of Yuri Holdings, a shareholder in Burning Sun Entertainment, which operated the club. [34] which held up to 20 percent of the shares, [35] and was founded in March 2016, with Yoo In-seok to manage its restaurants and entertainment businesses. Seungri resigned from his post in mid-February and Yoo resigned on 13. [37] Seungri described his relationship with the club in an interview with Chosun Ilbo, which was published on February 22. [38] In an interview, Seungri said that the break-up of Burning Sun shares was as follows: the owners of Le Méridien Seoul, 42 percent; Lee Sung-hyun (CEO of Le Méridien Seoul), 8 percent; Yuri Holdings, 20 percent. Madam Lin (Taiwanese investor), 20 percent; and Lee Moon-ho, 10 percent. [30] Other Monkey Museum clubs were the first gangnam club to merge Seungri's name, and it opened on April 27, 2014. It was a fashionable hip hop lounge-style bar, [39][40] co-owned by Seungri, Yoo and a group of K-pop singers. [41] During the investigation into the scandal, he became one of the first illegal charges against Seungri, an illegal operation as a bar while registered as a restaurant; [42] and later related to allegations of embezzlement of funds with Seungri and Yoo. Arena (or Club Arena) was a dance club that opened in 2014 in Nonhyeon-dong, Gangnam-gu. It was known as a TV and sports celebrity hang-out, had a reputation for very strict dress codes, and could accommodate 700 guests with separate EDM and hip hop dance floors. [43] It was another club with which Seungri was affiliated, and where he allegedly arranged for investors to receive sexual services. The owner, surnamed Kang and another of the club's operators, were arrested on charges of tax evasion during the investigation into the scandal. [45] Seungri's past as a businessman The club scandal has been amplified in the media, which was exacerbated by Seungri's widespread popularity and possible business ties to him. [46] He developed a second career in business, [47][48] and the nightclub was not his first business venture, preceded by several others: a Japanese ramen restaurant chain, cosmetics, a Belgian waffle café, and a record label that was co-founded with his agency YG Entertainment. [49] [47] He invested in biotechnology and nanotechnology and in masks to protect yellow dust. [50] and failed in real estate and e-businesses. [49] He closed his successful vocal and dance academy Joy Dance – Plug In Music Academy, which he first opened in 2011, in his hometown of Gwangju with branches across South Korea after some parents complained about an overly friendly relationship between a teacher and a student in one place. He joined the IT sector in November 2018, becoming creative director and model for HeadRock VR, the franchise brand of AR SocialNetwork and affiliate Mediafront; and assisted in the opening of the Headrock VR theme park in Singapore. Moon-won, popularly regarded as an ideal cultural export. [55][56] at the age of 28, was the youngest member of the Big Bang; [57] He made his debut at the age of 15. Just before the scandal broke, he released his first solo Korean studio album in July 2018 and, after 13 years as a member of the band, conducted his first solo tour, The Great Seungri. [60] [61] He filled the void for the band's break while all four remaining members were in military service, [57] awaiting his own inclusion in March. [62] Jessica Oak wrote on Billboard: Seungri forged and built an empire all of his own during his 13 years in the industry. The superstar has become known as a thriving entrepreneur with business activities in food, nightlife and music brands. [61] He was the subject of a popular TV show on SBS, about his life and business, filmed speaking four languages and throwing lavish parties in luxury resorts. [63] In August 2018, Baik Su-jin, a journalist at Chosun Ilbo, described his story, among other wealthy celebrities, as a rags-to-riches story, adding that Seungri was a late bloomer in the spotlight, only coming into his own after other members of the Big Bang were absent. Seungri said: I had a hard time outshining other members of the group, so I studied foreign languages. [63] He said he tried to succeed in business, partly because he felt overlooked and underestimated by fans, as the youngest of the famous group, and the business was a place where he wouldn't have to compete with other band members. Seungri said his popularity was a business asset and he was looking for partners to benefit. His latest studio album, The Great Seungri, was a play on his nickname from the novel The Great Gatsby. [55] [64] Following his involvement in the scandal, a popular culture critic in Seoul, Lee Moon-won, said multilingual Seungri, having multiple business interests was seen as an ideal cultural export, be a hard worker for your fans. Lee pointed out the irony of Seungri that he was found to be thoroughly comparable to the great Gatsby's protagonist, not only for his good looks, business admonience and lavish parties, but because they both sought illegal and corrupt activities to gain fame and fortune. [65] Seungri's friends and participants in the Seungri scandal were close to famous friends Jung Joon-young, 30, and Choi Jong-hoon, 29, who joined him when his agency YG Entertainment launched its latest restaurant, YG Republique, in August 2017 in Kuala Lumpur. Jung, a singer-songwriter and television celebrity, and a key figure in the illegal sex video part of the scandal,[68] was a friend of Seungri's for several years. [69] In August 2018, Seungri joined him on the Salty Tour, where Jung was the lead actor, commenting on disciplinary action by the Korea Communications Standards Commission for their gender insensitivity or potential sexual harassment. During the broadcast episode on a trip to Xiamen, China, Seungri asked a female guest to choose favorites among the five male cast members and pour them a drink; which the audience complained about. [70] Development Le Meridien Hotel, Gangnam, location of Burning Sun Club. On January 28, Kim Sang-kyo's attack on Burning Sun reported the first public awareness of the Burning Sun scandal was on January 28, 2019, when MBC Newsdesk reported on the alleged attack by a 29-year-old clubgoer, Kim Sang-kyo, at sun burning nightclub. Kim said he tried to help a woman who had been sexually harassed, but staff assaulted him. [57] When Yeoksam police arrived, he was arrested as an assailant and charged with seven offences, including criminal prosecution, indecent assault, defamation and obstruction of official duties. He said the police attacked him after he was arrested. [71] The incident occurred on November 24, 2018, but came to the media's attention in January 2019 after Kim posted a petition on the Cheong Wa Dae website detailing his assault by Burning Sun employees and mistreatment by police; and goes on to state that female customers were drugged by employees and the club had a corrupt relationship with the district police. [25] Another current petition on the website called for an investigation into the club scene in general and the drugs that occur there. [71] Cheong Wa Dae is a petition based on former President Obama's Website My the People, launched in August 2017, on the 100th ed. Kim's petition received a benchmark of 200,000 signatures, prompting an official response. [57] [71] [72] Initial allegations at Burning Sun In the early stages, the scandal developed around complaint against burning sun nightclub, including all possible crimes that may have happened there and the identity of the parties responsible. The original report on the incident with Kim on 28.[74] The KBS report soon added that the alleged former employee was talking about illegal drug use in the VIP rooms of the club. [74] Another MBC report, 14. He claimed to have received a video clip from staff showing a drunk woman being raped. As of January 1, 2019, Seoul's Metropolitan Police Agency (SMPA) had taken up an investigation that included allegations of local police corruption by the Nam gang and collusion with club owners, and instructed the team to look into allegations of sexual violence, drug use, Kim's arrest and any connection to the local police station. [74] The SMPA stated that their swift response and subsequent investigation was due to media attention received by a member of the Big Bang K-pop Group Seungri with the club. They also said they had expanded their probe of drug-related allegations to all Gangnam clubs, given club marketing by independent merchandisers or MDs for many different clubs. [46] Seungri's involvement and his relationship with the nightclub immediately became a hot media topic. [10] On February 26, the first KakaoTalk's recordings, which became crucial in the investigation, on the fact that their origin was an anonymous source, which is 22. The recordings date back to 2015 and appeared to blame Seungri on charges that he ordered Burning Sun employees to arrange prostitutes for foreign investors who coming to Seoul, in another gangnam nightclub. The source cited possible police collusion as the reason he didn't hand them over directly to the police. Police held a press conference on March 4, saying they had not seen the original, unedied KakaoTalk reports and doubted their veracity, just before the SBS report detailing how they obtained them. On February 27, Seungri was interrogated by the SMPA, a long conversation that lasted through the night and included a drug test. Seungri has denied allegations of attempts to buy sex for potential foreign investors (or sex for business favors) and any knowledge of KakaoTalk reports that were published in the media, conversations he allegedly had with the burning sun co-founder and another of his employees about such arrangements; and denied drug use. Media reported that various nightclubs were used for lobbying,[77] including one called Arena, where Seungri allegedly arranged sexual services for investors. [56] In one alleged chat between Seungri and his business partners in December 2015, Seungri says: Give B (an anonymous investor) everything he wants. Get the main [rooms] 3 and 4 at the [club] Arena. We have guests from Taiwan. After confirming an agreement with a man with the surname Kim, Seungri asked: What about the girls? [Give them] easy girls. Yoo replied: I'm preparing prostitutes, so if you get two prostitutes, then take them to the hotel rooms. Two's good? Seungri was charged with sexual bribery on March 10. The following day, he resigned over the fun on his Instagram account, saying he had caused social unrest and said he would cooperate with the investigation. possible involvement of the scandal over the records to the Supreme Prosecutor's Office of the Republic of Korea and asked them to investigate the scandal instead of the police. [84] Within a week, the case was referred to the Seoul District Attorney's Office, which said it would assign a team to manage the SMPA investigation. [85] Also, in light of new allegations of possible police misconduct, on March 14, Commissioner Min Gap-ryong of the Korean National Police Agency (KNPA) notified the Ministry of Public Security and Security at the National Assembly that a total of 126 agents would be assigned to investigate the Burning Sun nightclub attack, the club arena attack, drug use, ties with the police, and allegations of facilitating prostitution, filming and dissemination of illegal videos, among other things. On March 18, President Moon ordered an investigation into the scandal, which has involved two cases of sexual misconduct in the past; the first included former Deputy Justice Minister Kim Hak-ui, who was acquitted of the scandal in 2013 but had new allegations of raping women and appeared with them in sex videos, and the second was the suicide of aspiring actress Jang Ja-yeon in 2009, whose alleged suicide note contained a list of men she was forced to have sex with. , its entertainment agency. The resolution of these cases has been criticised for impartiality due to the involvement of prominent figures. [3] [21] [22] He said: The current leadership of the prosecutor's office and the police should bet on the fate of their organizations responsible for uncovering the truth and become a law enforcement authority that can expose its own nefarious acts in order to regain trust, and I stress that if we cannot fix this. we cannot call this society just once. [21] Ha Hyun-ock, deputy editor-in-chief of financial news JoongAng Ilbo, likened the booming events to the mafia, with allegations of drug trafficking, prostitution, violence, tax evasion and collusion with the police. He referred to Bang's ratings raised on the SBS news program, from his being at the beginning of the Korean Mafia, with the popularity of K-pop creating celebrity new money and status who hobnob with business and government Seungri and Jung's inter-arresting scandals were linked in a public television appearance.m when they were both 14. Police also guestioned Seungri's business partner and Yuri Holdings CEO Yoo In-seo. [88] Seungri got off first, around 6:15 a.m.m on March 15, about 16 hours later, and told reporters as he left that he would ask for the postponement of mandatory military service later in the month. Jung left, about an hour later, after his 21-hour interrogation. [89] April 1 - At the end of the year, Seungri's business partner admits to hiring prostitutes, and the first warrant fails On April 1, the SMPA announces that they have booked Seungri and Yoo on charges of embezzlement from the Monkey Museum club, which they opened in 2016. [41] Later, the indictment stated that funds from Yuri Holdings were used to pay attorneys' fees in criminal proceedings involving a club employee. April 29 was followed by the headline of Seung-ri's Business Partner Admits Pimping. which followed a new interrogation of Seungri and Yoo by the SMPA, in which Seungri continued to deny any involvement in prostitution, and Yoo finally admitted to having supplied prostitutes to six or more Japanese investors at gangnam nightclub in December 2015. SMPA had paper traces of money transactions, YG Entertainment credit card payments to Seungri and bank transfer Yoo, and chat room conversations the two had with Jung about the arrangement; [91] and had 17 prostitutes and pimps booked in connection with the incidents. [92] Seungri was first summoned for questioning over the alleged embezzlement of burning sun club funds, for the first time 2. [93] [94] MBC TV covering the Burning Sun protest rally, metro exit Le Méridien Hotel, Gangnam, May 25, 2019. 7 May SMPA applied for an arrest warrant, including pre-trial detention for Seungri and Yoo, and they appeared at hearings 14. [95] [96] [96] [97] Seungri admitted that he had received services of illicit sex but he denied all the other charges at a hearing of the Central District Court in Seoul and was led to a detention cell in ropes to wait for a decision that came later in the evening when both warrants were dismissed, with the court citing the scope for a dispute over alleged embezzlement and saying the possibility of destroying evidence was small. [97] [98] [99] SMPA referred Seungri's case to prosecutors on 25 March 2004. billion dollars ($951,000) in embezzlement, destruction of evidence, violation of sex trafficking laws, sex crimes, and food hygiene. The charges included procuring prostitutes for themselves and others from Taiwan, Hong Kong and Japan from December 2015 to January 2016. His business partner Yoo was also referred to prosecutors for procuring prostitutes. [100] MBC TV's May 27 show Straight introduced new allegations and other celebrity name scandal. She alleged that YG Entertainment founder Yang Hyun-suk arranged sexual services for foreign investors in July 2014, which he and the company denied. [101] [102] The SMPA launched an investigation based on details of the show's alleged dinner meeting in Gangnam and a trip to the NB nightclub, linked to Yang, which included Yang, age 50, Malaysian refugee Jho Low, age 38, Thai national named Bob (Chavanos Rattakul), YG singer, Madam Jung, Hwang Ha-na; and up to 10 prostitutes who allegedly provided sexual services in a nightclub. Singer Psy, age 42, who was with YG Entertainment at the time, issued a statement that introduced his friend Jho Low to Yang, and admitted that he and Yang had been invited to dinner and drinks with Low and another man. [102] [103] [104] [105] The indictment also referred to a December 2018 rape complaint against Burning Sun against Rattakul, one of the foreign investors who was also linked to Seungri, and who was summoned by police. [105] In June, Yang was questioned by police about a prostitution charge but was not accepted as a suspect and Psy was questioned as a witness about the July 2014 incident, which is about to expire. [107] On July 17. SMPA announced that it had booked Yang on charges of providing sexual services to foreign investors in 2014, along with three other suspects on prostitution charges; [110] On September 20, however, they dropped the charges against Yang, saying they had not proven them. [112] [113] The previous charge of Seungri's possible gambling overseas was reinstated 9. SMPA said they were examining Yang's financial records for possible illegal foreign exchange transactions that may be used for his alleged gambling, which is illegal for South Koreans at home and abroad. [114] On August 14, Both Yang and Seungri were charged with common gambling, and by August 20 and August 29, both were interrogated, and Seungri pleaded guilty to gambling but denied charges of illegally securing funds, in violation of the Foreign Exchange Act. [118] [119] Seungri was interrogated again on April 24, 2001. October 1. [120] On October 31, the SMPA said it would bring Yang and Seungri, along with three others, to prosecution for alleged common gambling from the second half of 2014 to the present day. [122] In the first police collusion charge, former Gangnam police officer with the surname Kang, age 44, was sentenced to one year in prison on April 14. [123] During the trial, co-CEO Lee Sung-hyun testified that he paid 20 million won (US$17,000) to Kang to cover an underage clubgoer incident at Burning Sun and did not discuss an arrangement with Seungri. [124] [125] In drug-related cases, 22., including ecstasy and ketamine in Gangnam clubs from 2018 to February 2019. The court was told that Lee Moon-ho's position as operator of the Burning Sun Club put him on a different level than an ordinary drug offender and his first conviction was light and unfair. [124] [128] [129] A senior police chief in chat rooms, was arrested on October 10, on charges of accepting bribes and abuse of power, among other things, after a search of his KNPA office in September. [130] [131] [132] [133] Yoon was prosecuted in June for allegedly informing Seungri and Yoo In-seok about police interventions, but the late investigation and focus on Yoon was called into question by The Korea Times' Lee Suh-yoon report, which may have been related to his 2017 work at the Blue House under Justice Minister Cho Kuk, who was under investigation in a separate case. [100] [134] [135] A businessman named Jeong, a possible connection between Yoon and Yoo, was arrested earlier on charges of embezzlement. On October 29, He was charged with bribery, obstruction of business and withholding evidence related to allegations of attempting to cover up illegalities at Burning Sun and other businesses operated by Seungrim and Yoo. Yoon was also alleged to have received unlisted supplies from businessman Jeong in connection with the case; while Jeong is suspected of being tied to illegal financial transactions in a separate case against former Justice Minister Cho. [136] An employee of Burning Sun, MD named Cho, age 28, one of the first investigated in the club scandal, was sentenced to four years and six months in prison in early December for smuggling and administering drugs. [124] [138] [139] Further investigation smpa announced on 15. assaulting three women and obstructing a business. [140] In early July, the government responded to an April 11 Cheong Wa Dae petition that had detailed new allegations at the Burning Sun Club, which was followed by a report on MBC TV Straight. [141] [142] [143] Witnesses interviewed on the program alleged underage sex trafficking and violent sexual abuse of women, claiming VIP rooms at the club and outside the site were set up for customers, including those from upper class Korean families, and a special clean-up crew called the incinerator were used to remove blood and incriminating evidence. [144] [145] A petition that received the required signatures asked for an investigation into the alleged group rape of six men in one of the VIP rooms, a woman who received GHB, called mulpong in South Korea. At the end of June, BBC News reporter Laura Bicker shared similar allegations about Gangnam's nightlife, women were drugged to order by powerful men and raped, and underage girls were sexually abused for profit. On July 9, KNPA Commissioner Mina responded that allegations of sexual abuse and drug use in VIP rooms had not been confirmed, according to the petition. He added 'I humbly accept the public's criticism that the results of the investigation are inadequate in relation to the Burning Sun case. [141] On July 17, the SMPA met preemptively at seodaemun-gu police offices to discuss the Second Burning Sun Club Opening, after a KBS report detailed possible new sexual harassment issues at a new gangnam club opened by former Burning Sun club employees, just four months after it closed. [147] [148] Also as part of an anti-corruption initiative based on the troubled Gangnam Police Station, the SMPA announced an unprecedented open recruitment process for this police station in mid-July, after 164 officers were transferred to other departments. [149] [150] A newly formed three-month joint team was also set up to investigate club illegal activity in Gangnam, from August to October, to prevent a new Burning Sun incident. [151] On September 10, SMPA's cybersecurity division referred defamation and pornography charges to 12 participants in a media personnel investigation that began on September 3, 2014. The Cheong Wa Dae petition was filed, claiming that a chat group of about 200 reporters, producers and media staffers shared illegal video clips of incidents that occurred at Burning Sun, as well as information about brothels and prostitutes. [153] On September 29, Lee Jae-jung, a member of the National Assembly's Public Administration and Security Committee, published SMPA data showing that 12 of the 40 police officers involved in the initial assault charge against Kim Sang-kyo were punished with any action. for key data such as Yoon. Lee criticized the results as very disappointing and far from public expectations. [155] January 8, 2020 - Seungri's second arrest warrant is not issued, On January 8, 2020, seven months after the police filed the lawsuit, the prosecution filed a second arrest warrant for seven charges -- procuring prostitution for himself and others (29 times for foreign investors from September 2015 to January 2016), embezzlement (about $17,000 from Yuri Holdings), the usual gambling in Las Vegas (for three years and six months from 2013), illegal currency transactions, violations of the Food Hygiene Act (at the Monkey Museum Club) and sharing three insogible naked photos of women via mobile messenger. [156] [157] [158] No further arrest warrants were sought for his business partner Yoo or other interested parties. [158] The court rejected the request at a hearing on 13 December 300. prosecutors charged nine people, without custody, with charges of crimes related to the Burning Sun case, including: Seungri for brokering prostitution, gambling and violation of the Foreign Exchange Act. [124] [161] [162] [163] Two others, Jung Joon-young and Choi Jong-hoon, who were already imprisoned after a rape trial in 2019, were charged with prostitution and bribing a police officer while driving under the influence. On February 7, the trial of former police officer Kang and a conviction for police collusion in recruiting an underage customer to the Burning Sun club were overturned by the Court of Appeal on the grounds of a lack of evidence to prove that Kang received the money. On April 3, four of the nine people accused of prostitution received summary sentences, with Jung Joon-young fined one million won and the previous MD Kim from Burning Sun fined two million won. The 25th so-called police chief, Yoon Gyu-geun, previously arrested in the fall of 2019 on charges of bribery and favor-brokering for the Burning Sun club, was acquitted, among other things, of all charges by a court in Seoul's Central District for lack of prosecution evidence, although the court said: It is not that the accused is 100 percent innocent or that the charges are not true. [166] [167] At a court hearing on June 3, 22, Yoo again pleaded guilty to most of the charges, but intentionality, in particular in embezzlement charges. His allegations include allegations of sexual intercourse, which he operated 24 times between 2015 and 2016 to open the Burning Sun club. At a court hearing on September 9, Yang pleaded guilty to about 400 million won (about $US335,000). with a further hearing scheduled for November 28 [161] on November 27, the court sentenced Yang Hyun-suk to a fine of 15 million won ($13,600) for approximately 20 las Vegas gambling charges between July 2015 and January 2019; Along with three associates, 37-year-old Kim and 41-year-old Lee were also fined 15 million won, and 48-year-old Keum was fined 10 million won. He was given a suspended prison sentence of one year and eight months in prison on December 24. [172] Seungri's military trial After the conclusion of the criminal investigation and charges in the Civil Court, 4. Their statement said they feared that a protracted trial in civilian courts could limit military duty and the case against him would be referred to a military court. [173] He joined the army on March 9, and on March 15, 176, at his first hearing at the General Military Court of the Ground Operations Command in Yongin, 16. [170] Investigative Reporting by SBS VIP Bus, Bukchon Hanok Village, Seoul. The SBS investigative reporter who examined kakaotalk chat messages sent by an informant to the SBS funE television station was Kang Kyung-yoon. [37] Her previous work included reporting on corruption cases involving former President Park Geun-hye. [178] When she began interrogating some of the victims of the videos, she discovered that they were unaware of their existence. She said: 'Some of them begged: Please save me. How am I supposed to live then?' [9] She said they were ashamed and angry, but were afraid to wear the scarlet letter as a victim of a sex crime, so she feared they would be identified. Kang said the sex video investigation was seen by some people as a means of distracting attention from larger scandal with his numerous accusations, but saw it as a serious social problem that needed to be reported. [179] At the end of March 2019, Seungri told the director of the SBS investigative program, Unanswered Questions, in a text message that the whistleblower's lawyer and journalist were responsible for all criminal charges against him, did not properly check the facts and destroyed his career for personal gain. [38] In June, the production team received unanswered questions [180] (also called I Want to Know) the seoul city's top prize for gender equality, partly for their reporting on the scandal. [181] Summary of the investigation of the korean National Police Agency KNPA, press bus, Jongno-gu, Seoul. In the course of the investigation, the SMPA focused on the Burning Sun club, the homes of CEO Moon and Han's commercial director, as well as at Burning Sun Entertainment, YG Entertainment, Yuri Holdings, Junwon Industries and Club Arena (and at the Seoul Regional Office of the National Tax Service of South Korea in connection with allegations of tax evasion). [79] [90] [182] [183] [184] The investigation found that the investment in Burning Sun amounted to 2.45 billion won (US$2.15 million), with a Taiwanese investor contributing 1 billion won. [185] The Yonhap news agency reported that one of the club's investors, perhaps Junwon Industries (also called Cheonwon Industry and a major shareholder in Burning Sun Entertainment, which operated Burning Sun), the operator of Le Méridien Seoul, could form an $8.8 million merger with the brokerage firm attracting more investment to the club. [186] Junwon CEO Choi Tae-young, along with Seungri and Yoo, was accused of embezzling funds. [90] An employee of Burning Sun Ahn, who worked as a Korean guide to a Taiwanese investor, was booked on charges of embezzlement, and the possibility of any triad investments or organized crime contacts was investigated with Interpol and other agencies. [185] Taiwanese investor Lin was also accused of embezzlement in collusion with Seungri and Yoo. [187] Seungri was investigated for allegedly supplying prostitutes to police officer Yoon, and embezzling funds from monkey museum and burning sun clubs. [41] [188] [189] [190] [191] Seungri's business partner and ceo of Yuri Holdings, Yoo In-seok, age 34, was investigated for links to gang police officer Yonan, embezzlement of monkey museum and burning sun funds, and for supplying prostitutes, along with Seungri. [41] [192] [193] Ceo Lee Sung-hyun and Lee Moon-ho, both aged 29, were investigated for allegedly hiring minors as security and for bribing former gangnam police officer Kang with 20 million won ($17,700) to cover up a problem with underage drinking at the club, which Lee Sung-hyun pleaded guilty to at a hearing for Kang. [125] [185] [183] [194] YG head Yang and singer Psy were questioned about other allegations of sex-for-favors involving Yang and foreign guests Jho Low and Chavanos Rattakul. [107] [108] Burning Sun-related arrests included CEO Lee Moon-ho, who was detained and charged with drug use and distribution of drugs to Burning Sun customers. [195] Others included a member of the Board of Directors of Burning Sun Jang, alleged clubgoer kim sang-kyo, a member of a chat group named Kim who distributed illegal videos, and a member of the Club Arena Yoon security guard, accused of attacking a guest in 2017. [196] [197] A Chinese promoter, nicknamed Anna, age 26, was investigaed for drug use and distribution, but no arrests were made. [198] [195] Arena owner Kang Mo, age 46, and puppet head of the club, surname Lin, were arrested on charges of tax evasion, [45][199] allegedly did not pay taxes of 16.2 billion won (US$14.31 million) between 2014-2017. April 11 SMPA reported that 59 people were detained in connection with drug use and distribution charges in the Burning Sun scandal and 11 were arrested. Kang, 44, a former gangnam police officer, was arrested on a mediation charge between Burning Sun and other police officers. [183][201] and was charged with assisting an underage drinking incident at Burning Sun for which he confessed to paying for it. [125] [201] [202] The police layoffs and investigations included Chief Superintendent Yoon, who knew Yoo, and assisted with an incident of underage drinking and a violation of territorial law at the Monkey Museum, [203] and was charged with violating the Wrong Harassment and Graft Act for receiving concert tickets from Seungri. [190] On March 25, 2019, police announced more than 500 drug-related arrests after declaring an all-out war on drug crime in the wake of the Burning Sun scandal on February 25. Of the 523 arrests for drug use and distribution, 216 were apprehended. 421 cases, or 82 percent, involved psychotomimetic drugs such as GHB,[204] a common date of rape, and one was allegedly used in Burning Sun. [75] 30. Some 920 of them were detained; 886 for drug-related offences, 23 for sexual assault or rape under the influence of drugs and 11 for using illegal videos while using drugs. Most were in their 20s and 30s, and about 40 percent of the crimes involved taking drug ecstasy. [205] Women's Issues and Public Protests Protest Rally, Sinnonhyeon Station Exit (Le Méridien Hotel), Gangnam, 25. The scandal sparked public protests in early March and later after police tried to arrest Seungri and Yoo. A May 17 press conference organized by women's rights groups, in front of the SMPA, criticized the results of the three-month Burning Sun investigation, conducted by about 152 officers, as daunting, claiming the club's cozy ties with police, and the illegal shooting of women and distribution remain unsolved. Lee Taek-kwang, a professor at Kyung Hee University, said: 'The recent Burning Sun nightclub scandal has exposed a culture that exploits women, sparking public anger. [209] A few months later, the 6th [210] Scandal added to the ongoing discussions on women's issues in South Korea - gender inequality, the fledgling Me Too movement in South Korea, feminism, moles, prostitution and attitudes toward women. [9] [211] South Korea's #MeToo movement began in January 2018 and was followed by the student #SchoolMeToo, which became the most tweeted social issue in South Korea in 2018, followed by feminism, then molka, an acronym for spy cameras that are hidden in places like public bathrooms and for explicit videos later posted on sites. In July 2018, thousands marched against spy cameras in Seoul, and the government responded by hiring workers to monitor public bathrooms, but activists criticized the general rejection of crimes, citing deep-seated gender ineguality and misogyny in the country sender pay gap, while it ranks high in women's education. [213] Jung's distribution of sex videos was one of the main gender issues discussed in South Korea in the first half of 2019, with research showing a growing trend in gender issues, mostly in a negative context. [214] The interviews included the k-pop industry, which critics accused of sexualizing women; Yang Yun-mi, spokesman for the Korean Women's Lawyers Association said: Industry in Korea ... is a boys' club. [215] Women's rights activist Bae Bok-ju said of the espionage allegations in the scandal: This case just shows that male K-pop stars are no exception when it comes to being part of a very worrying reality that women exploit. [216] But, Seoul freelance journalist Haeryun Kang opined in The Washington Post, The Latest Celebrity Scandal has sparked anger among so many Korean women not because it is unique, but because the story goes far beyond K-pop. Patterns of male behavior feel disturbingly familiar. The gender power dynamics - that often objectify women into sexual tools - feel exhaustingly repetitive, and said the scandal was more than misogyny and spy cameras, but the bigger story of The Sun's alleged involvement in prostitution, drug trafficking and police corruption. [9] Effects on entertainment industry OutsideInsideGangnam nightclub, Ultra Korea (UMF) 2012, after-party at Club Ellui, Seoul. Between February 25 and March 15, 2019, five major South Korean entertainment companies lost 17.52 percent, with their market value falling from 3.35 trillion won (about $2.96 billion) to 2.76 trillion won. Shares fell for the big three K-pop management companies: YG Entertainment (Seungri Company), 24.8 percent, SM Entertainment, 20 percent, 37 Entertainment, 5.5 percent; and another 20 percent drops for Cube Entertainment and FNC Entertainment and FNC Entertainment, 5.5 percent; and another 20 percent drops for Cube Entertainment and FNC Entertainment. that they would have solid profit growth in 2019, with a significant operating profit for the three big brands; while others added that K-pop's financial dependence on YouTube is unlikely to be affected. However, as of September 30, YG Entertainment's shares had fallen by almost half since September 7. Actress Park Hanbyul, who married Yoo of Yuri Holdings in 2017, initially said she knew nothing more than to be Seungri's business partner, [221] but said she would not leave the lead role in the TV drama Love in Mourning, [222] despite calls from some viewers to do so. [73] YG Entertainment stopped selling merchandise with Seungri, and major networks and cable companies deleted episodes of programs in which both Seungri and Jung appeared. [223] In another scandal, the artist YG Entertainment, on June 12, 2019, idol B.I., whose real name is Kim Han-bin, age 23, composer and leader of the K-pop band iKon, left his band after media outlet Dispatch revealed 2016 KakaoTal reports that he was trying to buy LSD from a suspected drug dealer, to which he confessed. YG Entertainment, still under scrutiny for allegations involving their sense of responsibility in managing their associated artists; [224] [225] and Yang resigned from the agency on June 14, amid allegations of police collusion to cover up the case. [226] Seoul's EDM festivals have said they will not hold after-parties at Gangnam clubs in 2019 due to a police investigation into Burning Sun. Festivals were often promoted in cooperation with entertainment clubs and Ultra Korea, Seoul World DJ Festival and Spectrum Dance Music Festival, which were held in 2018 among others in Burning Sun. The organizer for the largest, Ultra Korea, said that due to the scandal of allegations of sexual crimes involving GHB or mulpong, and the use of cannabis at festivals, there were plans to mobilize detection of dogs, bags checks and X-rays to monitor drug trafficking this year. [227] Gangnam nightclubs, usually a pilgrimage site for K-pop fans, immediately saw chinese tourists narrow, [228] followed by a general decline in customers in nightclubs and lounges. [229] Bars that were registered as general restaurants at the Department of Food and Drug Administration, where dancing is not allowed, the tactics used by clubs in the Burning Sun scandal to avoid paying higher taxes, underwent strict monitoring, causing a subdued atmosphere with the words Please don't dance and the police came forward to enforce the rule. At the end of October, the French Ministry of Europe and Foreign Affairs published an information report (not a travel alert) for travelers to South Korea, which recommends caution due to reported cases of GHB and assault drugs at clubs in Hongdae. Itaewon and Gangnam, following earlier French media reports about the Burning Sun scandal. After internet users sparked rumors of possible involvement by several actresses in the scandal. Go Joon-hee, who was run by YG Entertainment in 2015, first objected on social media, then filed a defamation suit against 12 of them, citing damages to her career, [223][231] and Han Hyo-joo filed a criminal complaint against thirty-three others. [232] Other actresses and their agencies denied this and warned of legal action, [231] and at least seven (including college students, unemployed, construction workers, and one American citizen) were arrested and prosecuted. [233] Some scenes from the 2019 South Korean film Quantum Physics about the celebrity drug scandal in a nightclub before it closed. Although it wasn't based on a real scandal, director Lee Sung-tae said he revisited one of the film's scenes because they cut as it went. [234] A November 2019 retrospective article, written by Matthew Campbell and Sohee Kim for Bloomberg Businessweek, pointed out that the k-pop industry generally ignored scandal, with no organized demands for better from male stars or serious discussions about overwork as idols are trained. They guoted a former SM Entertainment executive, Jeong Chang-hwan, on its implicit impact, It's a huge lesson in what not to do, he says. The best teacher for young idols is to see fellow idols get into a scandal and disappear from the industry. [235] The public backlash over allegations of police misconduct and corruption in the scandal has added public support to the government's proposal to create an independent investigative agency, first announced by President Moon in July 2017 and still undergoing political debate. The opponents, who were designed to expose wrongdoing by high-ranking government officials and their relatives, with the power to take over prosecution, have questioned their own potential for corruption. [236] Reactions from the Big Bang group for tarnishing the group's image and using the group's celebrity to promote its business, [238] even waiting outside his agency's office for an explanation. [239] But other fans continued to support him. [240] The public appeared to boycott a noodle chain called Aori Ramen between January and April 2019, according to several store owners who filed a compensation lawsuit in July that accused Seungri, who ran and promoted the franchise, of declining sales. [241] Among Google's most popular home search terms for 2019 were Jung Joon-young, ranked at number three for home news and issues. [242] The editors of the Yonhap news agency selected the scandal as one of the top 10 South Korean news articles of 2019. [243] Reference ^ Kil, Sonia (March 28, 2019).
