Well, Board Kings does it all and more. The game allows you to build your own board game, expand it by adding more tiles, build and upgrade your house tiles to get more coins, step on one, and visit other player boards to get huge rewards, destroy their buildings, and steal money! What not to like? Now the game starts slowly, with you with a small board with just a dozen tiles. By throwing the dice, you will receive coins for entering each tile, with special buildings (bank, train station, outpost and gem bank), which gives you special bonuses. For example, stepping on a police station will send a police car and place it on a random tile, thus blocking any player (other than you of course) who is lucky enough to turn them on and land on with the radio. The bank gives huge coin bonuses for stepping on it, while the train station leads to the board of another player. Stepping on the gem bank will give you some gems as a bonus. There is also a tile of cards (as in Monopoly) that gives special prizes when you put on. Now, Board Kings is a relatively easy game to play, right? Roll the dice, travel the board, collect money and bunnies (bunnies are needed for most upgrades) and expand and upgrade your board with earned coins. But, Board Kings hides some of its mechanics, making players lose money, chose expensive upgrades, and spend unnecessary real money. We played the game for hours, found some tricks that can push you forward in the game, making the game easier and we collected them all in this guide. Stay with us and learn how to build a huge board empire! 1. Improve cheaper tiles First Most tiles participating in the board are without bonuses. When stepped on, they give a certain amount of coins. They are displayed as houses, and each of them can be modernized. Now, although some are asking for more coins to upgrade, they all give you the same amount of coins. For example, upgrading normal tiles to level 2 will provide five additional coins for board entry. So, upgrade the cheaper tiles first, and only after all the cheap ones are upgraded continue to upgrade the rest. Thus, you will earn more coins because there will be more upgraded tiles on board, and you will, in the long run, upgrade all normal tiles faster. Remember that these regular tiles can be upgraded indefinitely and higher levels will ask for gems. So, when you notice that regular tiles ask for gems in order to upgrade, finish leveling up other tiles (the ones that only ask for coins) before leveling up gem-hungry tiles. 2. It is better to wait for your skates to fully replenish before you start playing, when you start Kings Planners, you will receive a certain amount of freerolls. After spending them, there are two options. You can either pay gems (which you can win by playing or buy with real money) for new skates or you can wait for your skates to be completed. Now it is better to wait for the roller meter to fill completely (to get 30 rolls) than to have only a few rolls at your disposal. By waiting for the counter to fill to the max you will be able to play longer to earn more coins and upgrade more home tiles. Playing only a few rolls (you get for each hour) you won't earn - in most cases - enough coins on board that can be stolen by other players. The best strategy is to play all the rolls and then spend as many coins as you can so that the coin stash ends up as modest as only possible. This way, other players won't find your board so interesting because they won't be able to lots of coins from you. Because, in addition to stealing coins, other players can also destroy their buildings, having a tiny coin stash will make you less interesting for other players to visit your board. You will be left alone and will not have to spend coins to repair damaged buildings. 3. When choosing players to invade, choose those who have the most bunny are collected in the same way as coins - by stepping on houses. You can also earn them by upgrading your buildings and finishing quests. The more bunny a player has, the more chances a player has of stored a lot of coins in their stash. So when choosing which player to invade, always choose one with the most bunnies collected. 4. Don't spend money on a slot machine: It can only give you new game data in Board Kings, there are dozens of new game characters (called totems) to unlock. They won't give you any bonus, nor will they give you more coins for entering houses or banks. You can unlock new figures by going to the slot machine. The machine will give you free gifts from time to time, but in most cases, you will ask for 30 gems to give you a reward. Since rewards only contain new numbers, it is better not to spend hard-earned gems on them and use the slot machine only if there is an option for a free reward. 5. When arrested, it is better to pay a fine than to issue rolls to try to roll doubles When you visit other player boards, you can get arrested by stepping on the tiles occupied by the police car. You'll end up getting arrested and the only way to get your freedom is to roll doubles. The game gives you the opportunity to pay a certain amount of coins to get out of jail. Since turning twice is quite difficult, and for this, you need a lot of rolls we recommend you pay a fine coin instead of trying to roll doubles. Fines usually cost just a few hundred coins, which can be earned again with just a few rolls. It's certainly better than issuing valuable skates to get a double. 6. Don't watch ads, they're not worth the time Board Kinks will offer you to watch ads in order to get extra rolls. Watching ads for rewards is helpful in most other games that offer this option, as rewards can be very helpful. Unfortunately, this is not the case with Board Kings. You see, ads usually last half a minute, and the reward is only one extra throw! Watching a video ad for half a minute just to be able to roll the dice again is a bad offer. Just don't waste your time on advertising, the reward is too modest. The only time it can help is when you are a few hundred coins short to buy a home upgrade. Only then can watching ads make you good, because with one roll you can earn up to a thousand coins. So, if you need one hundred coins, but you have left without a roll, watch the ad. In all other situations, decline the offer. 7. Save gems to buy extra rolls of Gems are luxury in-game currencies. You can earn them by going to the gem bank or win when visiting other player boards. They can also be purchased for real money, and 80 gems give you ten extra rolls. Although this looks like a poor offer, sometimes it can be a life-saving offer. Save your gems and spend them to buy extra rolls only if you really need these skates. For example, you have run out of rolls, but you have almost the exact number of coins needed to upgrade. Or when you only need a few extra skates to send a few more radios before you leave the game. Remember that it can be very helpful, but use it only when you really need it. This way you will be able to spend all your coins before leaving the game, making your board less interesting for other players. Thank you for reading our Kings Board Guide. We hope it was a helpful read and we hope you've learned something to help you build the perfect game board. The advice we've given you in the guide will make early play easier and keep other players from attacking your board as often as other player boards. Remember that do not spend gems on extra rolls and do not leave a lot of coins in the stash before leaving the game, these two things are very important to remember. Thanks for reading and happy games! Games!
