Stein's garden center west bend wi

Laurie Carlstrom Sykes 04-09-2019 0 visitors found this review handy I love The Garden of Steins and the staff is always kind and welcoming ! Carol Lefeber 14-03-2018 0 visitors found this review helpful I've always loved the Stein West turn site stores are easy to find and there seems to be a new vibe around the store. Each one is very friendly and willing to help. I mainly shop during daylight hours and found the staff at the time seemed to be more negligible. Washington Street is changing its logo and name to Stein Park and Home.The rebranding of 16 stores across Wisconsin began two years ago. Everything was in line to take a fresh look including the landscape of how to put the goods out inside the store. See new banners to flow in the coming weeks. Have you ever wondered how Stein first started? In 2010 Amy Rapido Silvers wrote with The Guardian magazine obituary of Jack Stein. part of that story below. Published in: 4/26/2010 Jack Stein learned a lot of work for his parents florist business, after serving during World War II and a few years of college. He knew that He didn't want to do that kind of work, said his wife, Joan Stein. But he also learned other things. Instead of taking care of one client at a time, Stein wanted to take care of a lot of customers. The result was Stein Gardens and Gifts, the second largest independently owned garden center business in the country. It was full of goods. He wanted to sell merchandise when Stein founded his business in the 1950s, also realizing that the horticultural market was changing. The stores were coming out of work. Everyone was buying houses. That's when he went up to the horticulture supply business. Stein now has annual sales of nearly $90 million in 16 stores. The company employs about 1,000 people in Wisconsin and about 200 others during the busy spring season. With cancer last year, Stein decided that he wanted to see his company continue as a family business, even if it needed to be run by a family member. Stein did not hesitate or say words when he found the right candidate for the job. Click here to read the rest of the story about the life and work of Jack Stein.
