Bell Rd.Surprise, AZ 85378623.583.0133 Two souvenir shops, both called Sport Shop , carry a small selection of Rangers and Royals gear. The shops are located behind the home plate and the central field. Because it is a little larger, the location of the starting plate is considered the main store of the stadium. Training areas Training complexes for both teams are close and behind the main stadium. The six fields of the Royal Family are parallel to the left line of the field; The six rangers fields are behind the home plate. Although they are in different locations, the training gates for both teams open at 9:30 a.m.m a. The Royal family's training facilities are in the parking lot of the main stadium for spectators. The gateway to the training fields in Kansas City is at the other end of the parking lot, where the road next to it is called Buck O'Neil Way. Fans who want to see Rangers practices and pre-game preparations should park in the squad near the intersection of Bullard Avenue and Tierra Buena Lane. The Rangers Gate isn't too far from the stadium's first base entrance gate, and the fan-designated parking lot is across from the Texas training center. Types of seats All seats have seat backs, armrests and cup holders. A berm extends the entire length of the outer field. Stadium seats: All sections, totaling 7,000 fixed seats Bleachers: none Berd: Can hold up to 3,600 people Notes about seatsLe The Royals dugout is on the third side of the base. To make sure you're on the Kansas City side of the stadium, buy your tickets in any odd numbered section. Dugout Rangers is on the first base side. To make sure you're on the Texas side of the stadium, buy your tickets in any even numbered section. Disabled places are available on the platforms at the top of these sections: 101-102, 107-112, 117-120, 201-202. Disabled places are always in the V row at the lower level and in the G row at the upper level. In the outer field, a single row of unmarked seats behind each bullpen is reserved as ADA seats. The protective screen behind the dough extends from sections 101-106, but is very discreet, unlike some parks. The most seats have at least a glimpse of the remote mountain ranges that ring the stadium. Fans of the right field berm and upper level have the best views of the natural horizon in Arizona, which feature The Strevlerla and White Tank Mountains. The standing room is plentiful in the 360-degree lobby, which includes numerous free standing tables and meals for fans who do not want to eat in their places. Fans are free to roam the stadium and stay where they choose because of the friendliest and most lenient, although the top level is off-limits to ticket holders until after the fifth half. Sections and rows Rows for stadium sections vary as follows: E to R in sections 101-102; B to V in sections 103-106; D to T in sections 107-108; from D to R in sections 109-110; d to T in sections 111-112; From A to V in sections 113-116; From A to T in sections 117-118; From A to R in sections 119-120; From A to V in sections 121-122; K to V in sections 123-124; From A to G in sections 201-206. Rows I and O are ignored in all sections. Sections 101-106 are sold as Lower Premium. Sections 107-112 are sold as Lower Dugout. Sections 113-120 are sold as Infield Places. Sections 121-124 are sold as Plaza Seats. Sections 201-206 are sold as Upper Dugout. The space on the outfield berm is sold as Lawn. Children aged 2 years & up; under are admitted free of charge, but are obliged to sit on the ticket holder's lap if they are in the stands. Places to avoid It is a minor detail, but all places in sections 115-118 and many in sections 119-120 are inclined towards the center field, not the home plate. The tribune is corrected in the middle of sections 119 and 120 so that some places there and beyond are directed in the right direction. The Shadow Seats The Upper Dugout Seats (sections 201-206) are covered by a roof and are covered by sections 107-112, where rows N and top are covered by overfall. Fans sitting in the lower Dugout seats (sections 101-112) are protected from the sun due to the upper level, which blocks the rays completely at different times, depending on the section. Until the typical afternoon start time (1:05), most places in sections 101, 102, 104, 106, 108, 110 & up; 112 are in the shade and remain so throughout the game. Seats on the opposite side of the stadium (sections 103, 105, 107, 109 & up; 111) enjoy full shade until 2:30 a.m. VIP suites with outdoor balconies are on both sides of the press box on the upper level. Home Run Party Deck is in the right field, raised in berm near Bullpen Rangers. A voucher for everything you can eat for buffet and drinks is available at the entrance price to the party deck. The food served there is also not standard, as it is provided by local restaurants. Game Day All gates open an hour and a half before game time, Monday to Thursday. For matches on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, the gates open two hours before the scheduled start time. Policy food, drinks and bags A plastic bottle of water per fan is allowed inside, although the bottle must be sealed (unopened). Fruit juices and baby formulas are also allowed. The food can be brought to the stadium as long as it is presented in a transparent, sealed plastic bag and can fit under a standard stadium seat. Bags may be brought in provided that they do not exceed allowed size of 16 x 16 x 8 . Getting autographs Fans will have difficulty getting autographs before the game because teams generally don't train inside the Surprise Stadium. Rangers and Royals instead hit one of their areas of practice while visiting teams often take BP to their home park before boarding their bus to Surprise. About an hour before the start of the game, fans of visiting teams should position themselves directly behind the home card and next to the tunnel that is cut into sections 101 and 102. This tunnel is used by visiting players to get to and from their club and they must use it to get to the playing field. Since the Rangers and Royals clubs are in the corners of the outfield their players don't have to come into close contact with the fans unless they want to. The good news is that when approaching game time a handful of players will sign up near their respective dugouts. The best place to stay is in sections 113-118, with Rangers players signing down the right field line and Royals players signing down the left field line. Also, players from Rangers and Royals will sometimes sign after being removed from the game as they go along the warning track back to their respective clubs. The best place to be at that time is sections 122 and 124 (Rangers) and sections 121 and 123 (Royals). Post-game autographs can often be abundant in the same places, but any section will do as long as it is between the dugout and outfield corner clubhouse entrance. Unique ballpark fare A handful of specialized concession stands can be found down the hallway down the left field line. Various offers change annually, but barbeque, funnel cakes, and cheese steaks seem to be a constant. Coca-Cola controls the soft drinks market, but the alcohol options are numerous, with wine sold by the bottle, frozen margaritas served, and many beers available on tap. Not all beers are served at all stands, although Beer Garden is almost an exception because it taps a barrel of most. You can find Beer Garden mixed with specialized concession stands. Similarly, the complex of the two teams near Peoria stimulated the development centered on the stadium, as is done in Surprise. But the immediate development around the stadium in Surprise is much more community-oriented than in Peoria. Residences, schools, public recreation buildings and services flank different parts of the Surprise Stadium, while a Mecca trade can be found a short drive on Bell Road. It all adds up to a perfect blend of living, working, playing... and a lot of traffic congestion on game day. So be prepared to stop and go traffic before and after games.
