As any dedicated romantic novel reader will tell you, it's one genre that is there for you at the best of times (to make your day 10 times better) and worse (to bring a little love in any sour situation). Didn't? Because romance guarantees a happy ending - an escape. And if there's a year where we particularly need it and then some, it was 2020. Novelist Alyssa Cole told OprahMag.com in April: I basically feel like the genre has the ability to show whether it deserves to be loved or not. And even if everything else in their lives or the story they wanted to achieve doesn't actually happen, happiness forever is actually finding someone to overcome the good and the bad. From their vibrant comic books to the stories of enemies who have turned into lovers, summer love, erotic entanglements, historical fun, and reading about love doesn't get old. So to help you keep your pile to be read stacked for years to come, we did some digging to bring you a variety of the most steamy, best romantic novels of 2020. Looking forward to shots like Lisa Klebs' continuation of the Ravenals series, Abby Jimenez is ever happy after the playlist, and more. Highest rating Latest releases All my favorite time.
