Facebook Twitter Looking for something to help keep your hands busy this winter? The original Boy Scouts Handbook released in 1911 by the Boy Scouts of America is full of great ideas for those who encourage interest. This free e-book offers not only a rubric of sorts, but also many, many practicalities help to achieve the goals. This Official Handbook for Boys says its purpose as:to give to patrols of boy scouts advice in practical methods, as well as inspirational information. You don't have to be part of the modern scouts to enjoy the many and varied ideas for both boys and girls! One of the notable contributors was Daniel Carter Beard, author of American Boy's Handy Book and The Outdoor Handy Book. Along with Honorary President William Taft, and Honorary Vice President Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, the other interesting notable pioneer in the book is Chief Scout Ernest Thompson Seton, whom some might recognize as the author of wild animals I have known and biography of a Grizzly, among many others. The book begins interestingly enough, with an ad for Shredded Wheat! But with these introductions over, we jump to the basics of the Scouting Movement: what scouting means, oath, scout law and brand requirements, etc. If you have a child interested in pursuing a particular campus - say art - and looking for a way to set up a course, or measure success, these requirements for the merit mark are a great place to start: To get a merit mark for Art a scout must1. Draw in outline two simple objects, one consisting of straight lines, and one of curved lines, the two subjects to be grouped slightly below the eye.2. Characters in book two books a little eye, a book to be open; also a table or chair.3. Layer in the outline of an Egyptian ornament.4. Make in the outline a Greek or Renaissance ornament from a cast or copy.5. Create an original scheme or design using some details of ornament.6. Create a drawing from a group of two objects placed slightly below the eye and show light and shadow.7. Draw a cylindrical object and a rectangular object, grouped slightly below the eye, and show light and shadow.8. Present a clay scene in color. Not so easy, huh? Areas covered include:AgricultureAnglingArchitectureStronomyAthleticsAutomobilingAviationAnd they are just A's! Other areas of interest include bee farming, business, chemistry, civics, cooking, first aid, gardening, invention, music and ornithology, to name a few. Also included in this section are knots every scout should know. I think everyone should know some of these! The rest of the nearly 400-page book is how - how to build a log cabin, how to measure distances, what to do when you are lost in the forest, how to treat sunstroke, and others help to achieve profit mark goals. The appendix contains useful equipment for scouts (some relevant to scouting only - bugle? - but others of general use) and a great book list of mostly recognizable titles covering the merits mentioned. An index helps you find your way around. We spent an evening reading and discussing the requirements listed in the manual. Ah, if we were only skilled in a small part of the aforementioned areas! Please note, when this manual was published in 1911, there are simply things we would not think of doing anymore - waterproofing our tent with lead, for example. But there is plenty of material, and what is questionable can be adjusted for modern times! Free eBook: Sign up © 1996-2014, Amazon.com, Inc. or its affiliates
