Mar 5, 2018 Version 7.1.13 was good for the first week after its release, but since I can't refresh notifications. I'll get an email telling me I have comments, then when I open the app and refresh notifications nothing happens, stuck on February 9th and won't refresh no matter what I do. I thought this application would be better separated from ohub, but just ended up being the same questions, if aggravating. The app was good when it came out, now that I've had a new iPhone, I can't post pictures of the app without going to the web view now that doesn't even die working. Also a lot of published photos won't load on the app so I can't see them without going to the web view, I'm really close to not using MSF anymore! It's horrible to wait, wait and wait for the pages to load. If after it loads you go back to the main forum and once again forever to load! The developer, Outdoor Hub LLC, did not provide details of its privacy and data processing practices to Apple. The developer will be required to provide privacy information when submitting its next app update. Developer Website App Support Michigan Sportsman Forums was established in 1999. Very cold temperatures have prevented most fishermen from fishing in open water. Most are now waiting for the start of the ice fishing season. All fishers 17 years of age and older are required to have a fishing licence. Buy your license - Southeast Lower Peninsula Lake Erie: Fishermen have caught the walleye, including some boundary catches taken from the Michigan side by those who use colored bandits in and around Brest Bay. Some boundary catches of panfish have been reported in the Metro Park Marina and the Downriver Marina near the mouth of the Huron River. Lake St. Clair: All docks have been removed from boat launches. Strong winds became envious when the Clinton River threshold was launched, so the boats were unable to take off. Skimmed ice has formed in canals and marinas at night, but often melts in the afternoon. Angling activity has been low. Muskie and the walleye fishermen did a good time trolling in the southern part near the Delphine Canal. St. Clair River: There were good reports for walleye in the upper river for fishermen to line boats and shores. Anglers are vertical jiggings. The yellow-walled fishermen also pick up a few steel and salmon heads scattered. Saginaw Bay: When they can get out, the anglers caught a few perch. Most were small, but some large ones started to leave. The walleye also manifested itself. Saginaw River: Some walleye fishermen caught fish. Dowagiac River from the southwest of the Lower Peninsula: Fishermen are reminded that the Losenski Park Boat Access Site near the Pucker Street Dam will be closed until further notice due to ongoing construction. St. Joseph's River: Fish ladders will remain open throughout the winter, but movement upstream of the steel head is low when the water temperature is below 40 degrees. The live fish camera on the Berrien Springs ladder has been closed and will be back around March 1, 2021. Grand Haven: On quiet days, those who were heading to the pole were getting some catches Grand River near Grand Rapids: The 6th Street Dam fish ladder will remain open throughout the winter. Closer to Grand Haven, perching stopped near the Petty's Bayou and Smith Bayou bridges. Grand River near Lansing: Fishermen are reminded that the Portland and Grand Ledge fish ladders are closed for the winter, but the Webber Dam will remain open. Lake Muskegon: Perch and walleye are captured. Muskegon River: Steelhead was captured near Croton Dam. White River: A steelhead couple were Happy Mohawk Canoe Livery at the podunk launch. Northeast of the Lower Peninsula Thunder Bay River: Yellow perchs were captured in the river and in the marina. Those who brave the cold can still find the occasional steel head near the 9th Street dam. Besser Lake, which is the first reservoir above the dam, had skimmed ice, but there is no safe ice to report. Sand River: Some fly fishermen fish for trout. The walleye and burbot were caught near the mouth. Houghton Lake: Shore ice begins to form; however, most of the lake had just skimmed ice and no safe ice. When they could, the walleye fishermen cranking near the mouths of the channels caught the occasional fish at night. Lake St. Helena: Recently frozen, but still no safe ice. Fishing will be closed until there are good ice conditions. Tawas: Those who venture on the bay can find respectable catches of walleye and lake trout. Most throw or drag bait. Lower Northwest Peninsula While small lakes were beginning to obtain skimmed ice, there was no safe ice anywhere in this part of the state. With the colder temperatures, there wasn't much steelhead activity. Cadillac and Mitchell Lakes: Although the lakes are partially icy, there was still no safe ice to report. The cold this week may help, but there was 8-10 inches of snow in the area and warmer temperatures are expected next week. Pentwater Lake: Some trolling fishermen were trolling for the steelhead or pole fishing. Upper Peninsula The first ice cream is excellent for pike and fish-casserole; however, ice thickness varies on most inland lakes and many of them still had unfished ice. It is not recommended to venture on an ice you do not know or without a plan in case you break through. Manistic River: Fishermen still had a steel head. Two Hearted River: Had just good steelhead fishing. Fishing Tip: Ice Fishing in the middle of the day We often insist on the best times to go ice fishing early in the morning and around dusk - but what about people who can't go during those times and prefer to fish in the middle of the day? Don't worry, there are options for you, too! Some species are ideal mid-day targets, including northern pike, yellow perch, bluegill and rainbow and brown trout. For the northern pike, you can install tip-ups enjoy a quiet day on the ice. For the yellow pole, you can drill a large number of holes and move frequently. For bluegill, you can use a fish locator to follow around a school. And for rainbow and brown trout, you can fish on sight for them in shallower waters. Water. Water.
