Courtney Greenhalgh is the kind of person you want on your side, I believe, in public relations efforts. He is sharp, discreet, and the power of nature. I'm proud to have him. - Rick Bragg, the Pulitzer-winning journalist of the Prize & bestsored writer Courtney helped us launch our Historical Decoding book with his skills, experience, and lots of pizzazz. I missed working with him! —Brad Meltzer, a bestsicle writer I can't say enough good things about Courtney. He is intelligent, enthusiastic, persistent, and always pleasant to work together. As a first-time writer, I was very lucky to have him in my corner. —Benjamin Wallace, author of the New York Times bestseller, The Billionaire's Vinegar: Mystery of The Most Expensive Bottles of Wine When you're on a book tour, you want to be busy every moment of waking up. And you want the public who are not only interview books but plan your campaign strategically. Courtney Greenhalgh delivered great time on both accounts. So separate your seat belt! —Steven Raichlen, the author of the best-selling cookbook, TV host, and food writer Let's get real, as a customer, we evaluate a solid PR campaign at its destination, rather than its journey. Rest assured, Courtney Greenhalgh was able to deliver the sought-after final results, while also carefully navigating you through the entire campaign from start to finish with expert communication, transparency, and 'can do' attitude to take your project to the next level, and beyond. —Matt Moore, entrepreneur and author of the upcoming book, The South's Best Butts: Pitmaster Secrets for Southern Barbecue Perfection came out in spring 2017 I worked directly with Courtney on James Beard's award-winning cookbook project. He is the real champion of the project, always fully aligned with the book's vision, never status-quo in his approach, and has always been very collaborative. He digs deep and gets things right. —Keith Schroeder, founder and CEO of High Road Craft Ice Cream and author of James Beard Award-winning book, Mad Delicious: Science Makes Healthy Foods Feel Amazing Courtney is a professional — of seasonally connected, motivated, organized, and effective PR. He is a pleasure to cooperate and achieve great results. —Jill Browning, Jill Browning PR It's a pleasure to collaborate with Courtney throughout the launch of my latest cookbook, Essential Emeril. He is professional and knowledgeable with true enthusiasm in a competitive market and is able to maintain the momentum maintained before, during and after the release. —Emeril Lagasse, chef, restaurateur, and writer Courtney are incomprehensible champions for writers. I knew he was the right public for me and my book when he appeared at our first lunch with manuscript prints that he had meticulously marked with post-its. This is only the beginning of a successful engagement allocated by his consistent, professional, and supportive and positive attitude. In short, she is a joy to work with, and an effective partner in raising awareness for me and my book. —John Tarnoff, career coach, speaker, and author of Boomer Reinvention: How To Make Your Dream Career Over 50 I love working with Courtney! He knows the challenges of pitching every day and consistently creates new ways of approaching media and safe coverage. His experience is extensive and insight really helps in any campaign. He's smart too, to be honest, and funny! —Wonder Farrell, My Wunderkind PR worked hundreds of events on the Book Trail for 28 years and the most memorable event I was the result of working with Publicist Courtney Greenhalgh. He is experienced, detailed oriented, oriented, communicate not only with the author but with the bookseller/event manager so there are no unexpected surprises. These events include cookbook author Sara Moulton, Steven Raichlen and Emeril Lagasse. —Marguerita Castanera, Book Path, San Francisco, CA In an age where publicity for a new book can make the difference between best sellers and average sales, it's a joy to work with Courtney Greenhalgh. He handles details and presses in a very professional way so I can focus on what I like - food. -Rebecca Lang, author of the cookbook and contributor editor for Southern Living Courtney is a gem to work with. Organized. Creative. Really in-know about the best way to get words about special projects. Working with him for the United Tastes of Texas cookbook from Oxmoor House was fun and he made it a piece of cake to manage. —Jessica Dupuy, cookbook writer and customer pr of food writers & A Well-Read Woman campaign: The Life, Love, and Ruth Rappaport Heritage, Kate Stewart (Little A/Amazon Publication) Survivors' Journey: From Victims to Advocate, Natasha Simone Alexenko (Amazon Publishing) Adventures with Old Vines: A Beginner's Guide to Being a Wine Connoisseur, Richard L.
