The film is a sequel to the Hunger Games (2012) and the second installment in the Hunger Games series, produced by Nina Jacobson and John Killick in collaboration with Lionsgate Films and distributed by Lionsgate Entertainment. Francis Lawrence directed the film, with screenplays by Simon Biovoy and Michael Arendt (credited with Michael De Bruyne). Adding to the existing cast, the supporting cast was filled with Philip Seymour Hoffman, Jeffrey Wright, Sam Claflin, Lynn Cohen, Jenna Malone, and Amanda Plummer. Filming began on September 10, 2012, in Atlanta, Georgia, before moving to Hawaii. The plan to catching fire begins a few months after the previous installment; Katniss Everdeen and fellow 12th District tribute Peeta Mellark have returned home safely after winning the 74th annual Hunger Games. Throughout the story, Katniss senses that the revolt against the tyrannical Capitol is simmering across the regions. The Hunger Games: Catching Fire premiered in London on November 11, 2013 and was theatrically released on November 15, 2013, in Brazil; November 20 in Finland, Sweden, and Norway; The film set records for november's biggest opening weekend and the largest sum of the three-and-five-day Thanksgiving Office box office, and outseed the first with the movie's Office box office of more than $150 million. It ranks as the 26th highest-paid film in the domestic box office and the highest-paid film at the domestic box office in 2013, becoming the first two-after film since The Dark Knight (2008), which topped the annual box office, as well as having a lead woman at the top of the box office since The Exorc; The film grossed more than $865 million worldwide and is the fifth highest-paid film of 2013, the highest-paid film released by And the highest-paid entry in the Hunger Games series. The film follows the Hunger Games: Mockingbird, a two-part sequel and franchise finale: The First Episode was released on November 21, 2014 in the U.S. and Episode 2 on November 20, 2015. Catching fire received positive reviews and regarded by critics as an improvement over its predecessor, with feelings that it is more confident, more polished movies; The praise also goes to Lawrence's performance as Katniss. It's a critically acclaimed chapter in the Hunger Games series, according to a review by the Rotten Tomatoes aggregator. The film also received numerous nominations, with the Academy Critics Association Award for Best Action Film and the Saturn Award for Best Sci-Fi Film. Lawrence was nominated for the Empire Award for Best Actress for her performance for her performance, as well as the Saturn Award and the Film Critics Association Award. The song Atlas was also nominated for the Grammy Award for Best Song written for Visual Media and the Golden Globe Award for Best Original Song. Sketch more: The list of Hunger Games characters comes sometime after Katniss Everdeen and Peeta Mellark returned to the 12th district after their victory in The Hunger Games 74, President Snow visited Katniss and explains that his actions at the Games inspired the rebellion. He instructs her to use the upcoming Victory Tour to convince her that her actions are out of love and not defy the Capitol, warning her that friends, family and District 12 would suffer otherwise. During the tour, Katniss coach Heimwich warns him that the Viktors will have to serve as the coach of future tributes and that their love show will be forced to last for the rest of their life. Peacekeepers enter District 12 to crack down on illegal activities, and friend Katniss Gili is publicly lashed out after attacking peacekeepers. Yamovich, Pita and Katniss use their influence as hunger games victors to save Gale from execution. The Upcoming Hunger Games - 75 in total and quell's third quarter have been announced, and include a chosen tribute from the previous victor. Katniss dedicaates herself to ensuring Pita survives. On Drew Day, Rietsch's name is drawn, but Pita immediately volunteers to replace him. Yamovich reveals that the tributes are angry at being forced to return to the Games and will likely attempt to stop it. Katniss wears a wedding dress for her pre-games interview, as Snow ordered, but Sina adjusts her style of work to become a symbol of a mockery. Pita announces that she and Katniss, who had previously announced their engagement during their victory tour in a failed attempt to quell the districts, are expecting a child. Citizens then protest that the games should be stopped so that it is useless. Just Katniss enters the arena, Cinnamon is severely beaten in front of him as punishment for manipulating his clothing by peacekeepers and then pulled over. At games, Katniss pays tribute to his coach, Phoenix O'Dair and the elderly Mags, with District 4. When Forfield Arena shocks Pita and stops her heart, Phoenix revives her. The group is forced to escape toxic fog; When Pita can't go on, Mags sacrifices herself so that Phoenix can help her. When the mandrills attacked, Peeta was saved with unexpected dedication from a tribute from Zone 6. The group escapes to shore, where Phoenix salutes the wires of District 3 and Betty and Johanna Mason District 7. Wiress repeats the ticking phrase, leading Katniss to realize that the arena is designed like an hour, with regular risks every hour available in their respective areas. The throat of the wires is given by gloss, one of the cleavage jobs. The shiny then is shot dead by Katniss as Johanna kills her sister Kashmir. Phoenix gets injured by another career, and gamemakers spin the clock to disturb the tribute. Beetee shows luring the rest of the jobs to their wet beach and electricity. The group separates to prepare traps and lands the wire. When Brutus and Anwaria emerge, Johanna cut the tracker from Katniss' arm and ran away. Katniss finds a bit unconscious. Katniss, who is unable to find Pita and hears a canon almost kills Phoenix and thinks she betrayed them, but reminds her to remember who the real enemy is. Katniss attaches the wire to an arrow and shoots it into the roof of the arena as lightning strikes. Lightning is carried along the wire, causing arena shields to fail and roof collapses, and Katniss is struck unconsciously. Katniss wakes up on a plane to find Yamich, Beatty (still unconscious), Finic and Plutarch Skyby, the gamemaker's head revealed to be rebel against Snow. He tells her that they are bound for District 13, the headquarters of the new insurgency, and half the tributes were aware of the escape plan with Katniss, which symbolizes the growing insurgency. They were unable to save Pita and Johanna because they still have their trackers on them. The distraught Katniss remains silent after attacking Yamich for not fulfilling his promise. He wakes up to find Gail by his side, who assures him that his family is safe but that District 12 has been destroyed by the Capitol. To describe the character from the novels, the actors look at the list of Hunger Games characters. Simon Biofeey was hired to write the screenplay for the film, and before leaving, he wrote two drafts.[7] after Hunger Games director Gary Ross decided not to direct the sequel. The shooting timeframe was coordinated between Lyonsgate and 20th Century Fox, to allow time for Jennifer Lawrence to shoot X-Men: Days of Future Past, the X-Men fox sequel: First Class, in January 2013. [8] On April 10, 2012, it was announced that Hunger Games director Gary Ross would not return because of the 'tight' and 'installed' program. [9] Bennett Miller, Joe Cornish, Francis Lawrence and Juan Antonio Byona were all considered to direct the new film. [10] On April 19, 2012, it was announced that Francis Lawrence had been offered a directing position for the film. On May 3, 2012, Lyonsgate officially announced Francis Lawrence as director of Catching Fire. [11] Two days later, it was reported that Michael Arendt (game 3 story, Little Miss Sunstein) was discussing rewriting the script to catching fire. The film was renamed the Hunger Games on May 24, 2012: Catch fire[13] and Arendt was confirmed as the new author of the screenplay, which was reportedly inspired by the original catch fire text, a book written by Scipione Borghese, the 10th Prince of Solmona in the early 20th century. Arendt was paid $400.0 a week to rewrite the script. [15] According to sources, the adaptation had to be filmed by December 2012 to fit Jennifer Lawrence's show. [16] When X-Men: The Old Days lost their lead director's future[17] and the shooting for the film was delayed until April 2013, Jennifer Lawrence no longer needed to film in January 2013, and the shooting timeframe for the Hunger Games: Catching Fire was extended until March (including several breaks due to holidays and awards season). [19] In this film, sequences are shown that were filmed in the form of iMax. [20] The casting was announced in July 2012 that Jena Malone would portray Johanna Mason, who will portray Amanda Plummer Wayers, and Philip Seymour Hoffman' Plutarch Skyby. [22] Following this, in August 2012, it was announced that Cohen had played as Mags. Alan Ritchson played As Shiny on August 9.[24] Sam Claflin as Finic O'Dair on August 22 and Jeffrey Wright as B.T. on September 7. [26] The filming of Lawrence, Hacherson and Hemsworth all once again dyed their hair for the film. Lawrence again went into archery training to get in shape for the role while supporting actors performed training in preparation for arena scenes. [27] Production officially began on September 10, 2012, and shootings for some actors came to a conclusion on December 21, 2012. [28] After the Christmas holidays, filming resumed for two weeks in mid-January for some of the original actors and was put on the wait for awards season. Original photography resumed in March 2013 and came to a conclusion. [29] Shooting first in Metropolitan Atlanta, Georgia and then moved to Hawaii, to shoot arena scenes. [30] The cast and crew were on a busy schedule, working 14 hours a day and six days a week. In an interview with MTV, Josh Houserson confirmed that scenes in the film will use iMax cameras by stating, They're shooting, I think everything in the arena is going to be iMax. Jennifer Lawrence and Liam Hemsworth in Ringwood, New Jersey were the scenes of the 12th District shooting, which included snow to begin the film on January 31 and February 1. Jennifer Lawrence confirmed she will fly to Hawaii on February 25, a day after she won the Academy Award for Best Actress at the 85th Academy Awards to shoot for the final nine days, along with Claflin and Houserson. In late March filming occurred at Universal Studios backlot and was kept strictly secret. Witnesses reported towers and fences on stage. None of the original actors were believed to have been on the scene. [33] The Reshoots were scheduled for April 13 in Atlanta. With base camp set up in exective park off North Doid Hills Road, filming also occurred at the Goat Farm Arts Center. [34] Francis Lawrence estimated that an hour of footage would be devoted to arena scenes, saying the cameras would be installed to prevent Cam’s shaky look from the first film. Francis Lawrence also confirmed in an IMAX feature that the scenes that take place at the arena were shot on iMax cameras to differentiate them from foreign scenes to arenas. [37] Approximately 50 minutes of the film was shot in the form of IMAX, using three IMAX 15 perf/65mm film cameras. [38] [39] Creative director Sarah Burton’s dress at Alexander McQueen gave pieces from the McQueen collection to costume designer Trish Somerville. [40] While designing Katniss’s wedding dress, Somerville collaborated with Indonesian designer Taksı Savirio for quarter-quell interviews. [41] Original article soundtrack: The Hunger Games: Catching Fire - the original animated image of British singer Ed Sheeran recording three songs for the soundtrack, but it rejected the offer. [42] On May 14, 2013, Alexandra Patsavas was placed on the credits list as music supervisor, replacing T. Boone Burnett from the first film. Coldplay became the first official artist to be placed on the soundtrack album Catching Fire, with the song Atlas released worldwide on September 6, 2013. [43] Christina Aguilera announced that her song We Remained would be part of the film’s official soundtrack. [44] Other artists featured in the soundtrack include Monsters and Men with Silhouettes, Sia featuring The Weekend & Diplo with Elastic Heart, The National with Lean, The Weekend with Devil May Cry, Imagine Dragons with Who We Are, Lorde with Everyone Wants to Rule the World, The Lumineers with Gale Song, Ellie Goulding with Mirror, Patti Smith with Letter , Santigold with Shooting Arrows at the Sky , Mikky Ekko with Place for Us, Photogram with Lights, and Antony and the Johnsons with Angel on Fire. On January 11, 2013, Entertainment Weekly released a preview version of its magazine in 2013, lawrence’s first look at the role of Katniss and Claflin as Phoenix on the cover, as well as several still screening scenes from the film. [48] On February 22, both Heitfox and the official Facebook page first displayed two viral posters of the Victory Tour with Jennifer Lawrence (Katniss) and Josh Houserson (Pita). [49] On January 28, 2013, CapitolCouture.PN, an advertising site for fashion and film culture, was opened and could only be locked with a password. Once in, a picture of a blue chair appeared and told readers to go back on March 4. On March 4, 2013, the site began publishing portraits of different characters. [50] [51] [52] [53] [54] Lyonsgate revealed a new website, TheHungerGamesExplorer, alongside the announcement of a teaser trailer that was first screened at the 2013 MTV Film Awards. On April 10, the website was updated and fans had to tweet using the hashtag to #HungerGamesExplorer new videos from the film. It can still open every day leading up to April 14, 2013, the release date of the teaser trailer. The teaser trailer was screened for the first time at the 2013 MTV Movie Awards on April 14, presented by Liam Hemsworth, and the trailer was post-ceremony on TheHungerGamesExplorer and YouTube. [56] T.T.L.’s Beyond Fire aired as trailer music. [57] The new exclusive trailer was first released at San Diego Comic Con International on July 20, 2013, also online that day. [58] Walmart posted the first TV spot on its Facebook page on October 14, which included Coldplay’s song Atlas. [59] On October 27, 2013, during the fifth game of Game 4 of the 2013 World Series, the final trailer was released. [60] Three days later, on October 30, 2013, iMax’s new poster for the film was first screened. [61] The screening was first screened at London’s Odeon Leicester Square theatre on November 11, 2013. [62] The film was later released in the United States on November 22, 2013, in regular theaters and iMax. The film was also screened in 4DX format in selected international lands. It features increased seat movement, wind, water spray, strombe lightning, and fragrance-based special effects. [63] [64] [65] The film was released in only 4,165 theaters in the United States. [2] The home video was the screening date of Blu-ray/DVD for the film in the United States on March 7, 2014. [67] The entire Hunger Games series was released at 4K UHD Blu-ray on November 8, 2016. [68] Actresses Lynn Cohen and Stephanie Lee Shelmond, who played Mags and Kashmir respectively, promoted DVD and Blu-ray versions of the film, attending the midnight screening of march 7, 2014, at Walmart in Secaucus, New Jersey. [69] As of March 16, 2014, catching fire was 2,073,719 DVDs and 2,186,430 Blu-ray discs for 3, respectively. It sold for $5,565,263 and $43,832,928, totaling $79,398,191 in revenue within two weeks of publication. [70] Accepting the Hunger Games’ critical response: Catching fire received very positive reviews from critics. Rotten Tomato aggregator review gives movie score 90% based on reviews by 289 professional critics, with an average score of 7.58.10. Smart, smoothly directed, enriched with a deeper exploration of the franchise’s contemplating themes proves catching fire on a perfectly compelling second installment in the Hunger Games series, the website’s critical consensus said. [71] It was the highest-rated sci-fi/fantasy movie of the year on the website. [72] In methacritic, which assigns an average weight score of 100 reviews from mainstream critics, the film received an average score of 76 (indicating generally favorable reviews) based on 49 reviews. [73] According to surveys conducted during the opening weekend by CinemaScore, the audience was moderate grade to Film A, on an A+ to F scale. [74] The Hollywood Reporter said that the film has received general positive reviews[75] and CNN reported that the review was overwhelmingly positive but noted that the complaint too was that it runs needlessly long ... And the script and direction sometimes fall short. [76] Entertainment Oakley said the consensus was that the sequel was a more confident and polished film that dele deeper into Panam’s political conflict. It is also reported that critics are impressed that [Lawrence] commits to Katniss as much as he will be a complex David O Russell character, stephanie Zachark, who wrote for The Village Voice, adried Jennifer Lawrence’s performance, writing that the actress is both on fire and becoming and watching magnificently. [78] Peter Travers of Rolling Stone gave the film 3.5 stars out of four, saying, The escape of pop culture can be exciting when dished out by experts. Katniss is a character worth a handful of trails. And Lawrence lights up the page, you’re looking anywhere, she also praised supporting actors Sam Claflin and Jena Malone. [79] Reviews on Roger Ebert’s website, Susan Wloszczyna of USA Today awarded three of the four stars, praising acting Jeffrey Wright, Amanda Plummer and Jenna Malone and pointing to arena challenges as visually appealing. Wloszczyna writes: ... One invention is really fresh and one that, most importantly, is Katniss himself. With each season on display, the poor girl from District 12 continues to fulfill her destiny as an inspiration and a rebel fighter. [80] Ian Nathan of Empire gave the film four stars out of 5, noting that it was even better than the first film. He adoff director Lawrence for taking a more muscular approach and sensibly bringing down the love triangle, noting that neither [Pita nor Gail], quite frankly, are fit to lie on the pink [Katniss] duvet. One of the faults he found was in Philip Seymour Hoffman’s surprisingly ineffective performance. [81] Negative reviews came from Sophie Monk Kaufman of Little White Lies, who praised Performance but criticism diluted the ingredients that make the Hunger Games so gripped. He also found fault with the wood plot, the hamminess of Presidents Snow and Plutarch Heavensbee and the lackluster and non-compelling script removed from a dramatically difficult box. [82] David Denby of The New Yorker argued that the premise doesn’t make a lot of sense. Denby found the second act faltering and rhythmless and criticized the end of insinuating that sends the audience back into the book to find out what’s going to happen. [83] Box Office Hunger Games: Catching Fire earned $424,668,047 in North America and $440,343,699 in other countries for a worldwide total of $865,011,746. [2] Worldwide, it is the highest-paid film in the Hunger Games series, the highest-paid film distributed by Lyonsgate and the fifth highest-paid film of 2013. [85] Outside North America, it is the highest-paid film in the Hunger Games series, the highest-paid film released by Lyonsgate and the seventh highest-paid film of 2013. [86] On its first weekend, it was released only in Brazil (November 15, 2013), [87], grossing $2.4 million on its opening day and $5.26 million for the weekend. [88] [89] On Wednesday and Next Thursday, it opened in 42 other territories, bringing the total to $32 million in one week. [90] The film opened in 63 other territories and gained $US138.4 million over the weekend ($146.6 million, including its first week in Brazil). [91] Its three major openings occurred in Britain, Ireland and Malta ($19.8 million), China ($13.0 million) and Germany ($12.9 million). In total, revenues, the largest, are Britain, Ireland and Malta ($55.5 million), Germany ($43.4 million) and Australia ($34.3 million). [92] In North America, Catching Fire is the 16th highest-paid film in the Hunger Games series, the highest-paid film distributed by Lyonsgate and the highest-paid film of 2013. [94] Buck Office Mojo estimates that the film sold more than 50 million tickets in the United States. [95] It became the first film 2 after The Dark Knight (2013), and also the first female lead film to top the box office since The Exorcum (1973). [100] [100] The film is also the highest-grossing film in Fandango’s history, outselling the previous avatar record. [98] The film gained $25.3 million during late Thursday night shows. [99] It topped the box office on its opening day with $71.0 million (including a late Thursday night show), which is higher than its predecessor Gross Day opening ($67.3 million) as well as the seventh big single day and gross day opening. [100] [101] The Hunger Games: Catching Fire claimed first place with $158.1 million, opening higher than its predecessor ($152.5 million). It was the sixth highest-paid opening weekend, the second highest-paid opening weekend of 2013 behind Iron Man 3 ($174.1 million), and the highest-paid opening weekend in November, breaking the record set by the Twilight Saga: New Moon ($142.9 million) in 2009. [91] He was in first place for two consecutive weekends. [102] The film also broke the following records: the biggest Friday for a movie on its second weekend, the largest three-day ($74.2 million) and the largest five-day ($109.9 million) Thanksgiving gross. [102] Achieved the fifth week of high-paying openings (Friday to Thursday), the third non-opening week of Wednesday and the fourth big second weekend.
