Beethoven's Sonata No. 14 in C-sharp minor, tagged Quasi una fantasia, op. 27, No. 2, is ludwig van Beethoven's piano sonata. The signage, Quasi una fantasia, can be interpreted from the Italian title as being in the nature of fantasy or as if improvised. The song is in three motions, with the First Movement, sometimes called (technically called) Sonata Moonlight, is probably the most famous. However, all three movements, especially the main themes of each of them, have been known to countless millions over the past two centuries. (This is Ludwig van Beethoven, which we are talking about here.) Completed in 1801. Beethoven consecrated Sonata No. 14 to his disciple, Countess Giulietta Guicciardi. He confessed to a friend that he was in love with her at the time. The nickname Moonlight was not given to Sonata No. 14 by Beethoven himself. It gained popularity after a music critic used moonlight in his description. Notes - plus other * * My list here grows, so you can bookmark this page, and check it out often!
